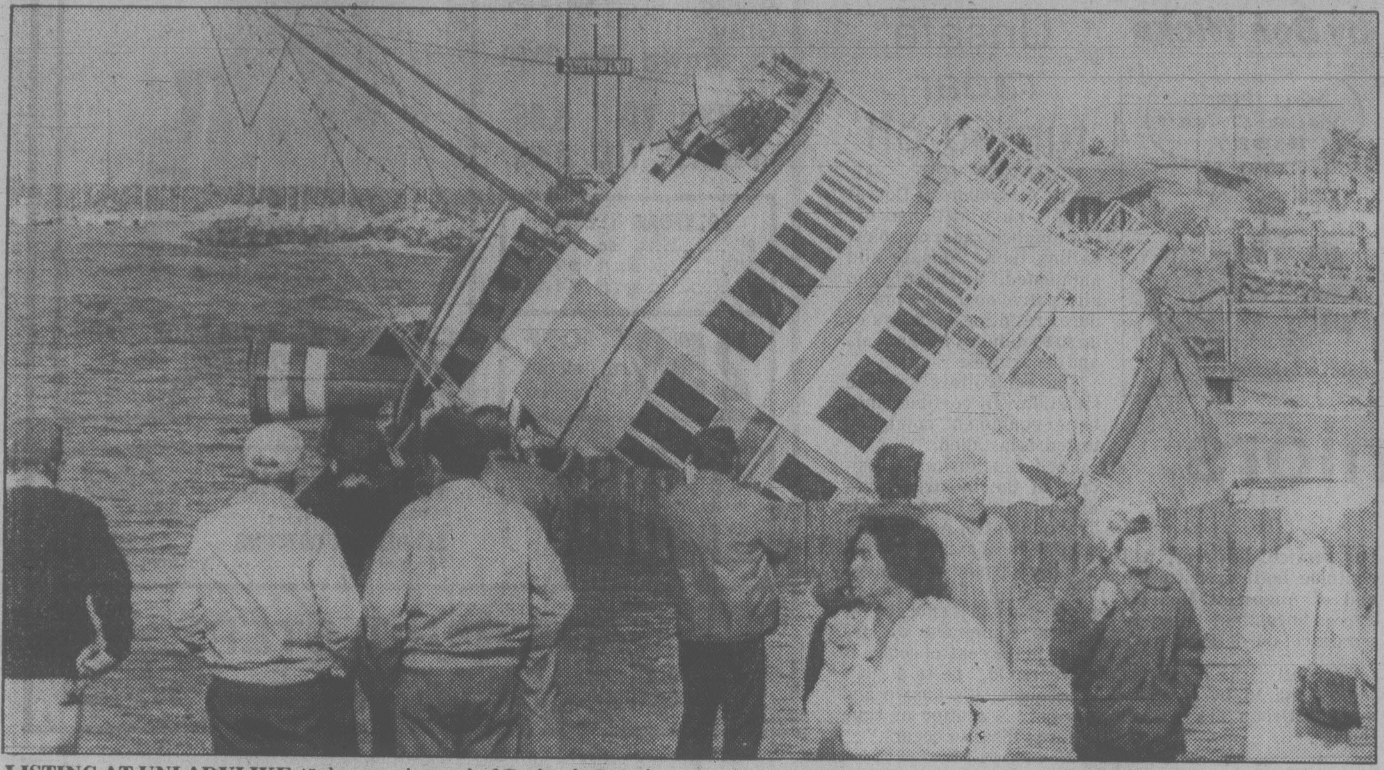
Hydro's billion not for B.C.



LISTING AT UNLADYLIKE 45 degrees in mud of Redondo Beach, former Union Steamship vessel Lady Alexandra is latest victim of storms lashing California coast (story on page 2). The ship, converted to a disco, cafe and backgammon parlor, was scuttled intentionally to avoid an "uncontrolled sinking". Lady Alexandra, familiar along B.C. north coast for 30 years, was taken out of service about 1955 and was for a number of years a restaurant ship in Coal Harbor, Vancouver. Fire destroyed much of her upperwork in 1961 and she was later sold to an American company which drastically changed her role one again.

Straits line jobs go to Italians, Japanese

By JAKE BANKY

B.C. Hydro's massive Cheekye-Dunsmuir power line project will create lots of employment — but not in B.C., Alberni NDP MLA Bob Skelly charged today.

Most of the jobs will go to Italians, Norwegians, Japanese or to Canadians in other parts of the country.

Skelly said a confidential B.C. Hydro document indicates construction of the 500-kilovolt line will put only about $10 million into the pay envelopes of B.C. workers.

That is only one per cent of the $1 billion-plus figure now being bandied about as the probable cost for the project, initially supposed to cost $315 million.

Hydro announced six months ago that the $235 million contract for manufacturing the transmission cable was awarded to two European companies, Pirelli, of Italy, and Standard Telefon, of Norway.

"They're going to create a huge number of jobs with that $235 million," Skelly said. "Very few will be created here."

Even the job of laying the underwater cable across the Strait of Georgia will be carried out by the Norwegian vessel Skagerrak using only Norwegian crew.

"Some unskilled labor may be hired locally," the Hydro document says, "but the skilled labor for this aspect of the construction is expected to be imported."

Skelly said Hydro awarded contracts this week for steel fabrication to firms in Quebec, Ontario and Japan.

The names of the successful bidders and the value of the contracts have not yet been made public.

Skelly said the huge construction project will provide few spin-off benefits for Vancouver Island or for the Sunshine Coast.

He quoted the Hydro document: "Post-construction employment supplementary to the normal B.C. Hydro crews in the region is expected to be minimal.

"Additional work would be generated only through periodic maintenance of the right-of-way. No additional permanent employment in the regional offices, directly related to the proposed facilities, is seen by B.C. Hydro."

Skelly said the impact on local businesses will also be minimal.

According to the Hydro document the project will not warrant hiring additional staff.

"The Cheekye-Dunsmuir Line is not going to benefit British Columbians," Skelly said.

"It will simply cause B.C. Hydro to borrow another billion dollars to build a power line which will be developed largely outside the province, creating jobs outside the province."

Campbell 'should be slapped'

"Most of the seniors I know are a hell of a lot better off than people of 30 or 40 who are raising families," Campbell said Wednesday.

"They all ride for nothing on the bloody ferry system and it is always for fun, and they drive good cars to do it."

Campbell said it is a popular political decision to give a concession and lay the cost on the backs of local government.

One pensioner spokesman, Pauline Barker, executive director of the Silver Threads Service said: "I'm so mad I could scream. The man should be slapped for what he said."

The CRD's transit planning committee recommended Wednesday that the passes be discontinued when they run out June 1 unless the human resources department agrees to cover the losses.

The committee was told the department issues the $5 six-month passes to people on supplementary income.

The CRD takes over public transit on April 1 and the district's transit planning committee was told Wednesday the cheap fares result in an estimated annual loss of $250,000.

The committee's decisions must be ratified by the full regional board next Wednesday but since the two bodies are almost identical in make-up, ratification is expected to be automatic.

But she said it would be premature to comment on the matter because there has been no final decision.

"However, senior citizens have traditionally been subsidized and we would still uphold that principle," she said.

"Let's wait until negotiations are through and then everybody can make a statement."

But the pensioners were bitter.

Barker said the maximum cash people on supplementary income can receive is $371.06 per month.

"Even a pretty sleazy room is going to cost you."

Barker said senior citizens are forced to use buses, even to get groceries, because the parcels are too heavy for them to carry any distance.

She said Campbell could hardly describe the bus passes as a vote-getting gimmick when they have been in existence so long.

Price-fix charge to movers

TORONTO (CP) — Five major Canadian moving companies have been charged under the federal Combines Investigation Act with a nation-wide criminal conspiracy dating back to 1963 to fix prices to lessen competition.

Court documents say the conspiracy existed in Metropolitan Toronto, Oakville, Whitby, Quebec City, Montreal, Saint John, N.B., Halifax, Charlottetown, St. John's, Nfld., and Yellowknife. The charges involve transport of office furniture as well as household goods.

Federal Crown Attorney Julius Isaac said RCMP served notice of the charges on those involved Wednesday and they are to appear in provincial court April 25.

Also charged are two professional associations, the Canadian Household Goods Carriers Tariff Bureau Association and the Canadian Warehousing Association.

Also named are 22 unindicted co-conspirators, mostly individual officers of the companies and associations, including the Canadian Association of Movers.

The indictment information says a conspiracy existed to fix tariffs in all 10 provinces and two territories between Sept. 1, 1963, and Jan. 1, 1980.

A source at the combines investigation branch said the companies named include all major concerns across Canada engaged in moving used household and office furniture.

A conviction under the section of the act under which the charges were laid carries a maximum penalty of five years in jail, fines up to $5 million, or both.

The Crown attorney would not elaborate on the circumstances of the charges before the accused have appeared in court.

Isaac also said customers of the five companies shouldn't rush to their lawyers looking for rebates on their moving bills.

He said individual customers should wait until the government has proven its case before thinking about private legal action against the companies.

Isaac said the federal law has a provision to ensure customers affected by such a conspiracy are reimbursed but "it's powers are pretty murky."

Canada fumbles report

Times News Services

A progress report on the Rhodesian elections campaign has caused considerable embarrassment for the Canadian contingent of Commonwealth observers.

The report said coercion and violence were rife in Rhodesia, attributing it largely to security force auxiliaries and guerrillas who had not gone to the assembly points set up under the London peace agreement. (For more on Rhodesia story see page 42).

The report was written as a progress report by the Canadians in Rhodesia for the foreign affairs department in Ottawa. A Canadian embassy spokesman in Addis Ababa said the report — distributed at last week's meeting of the Organization of African Unity foreign ministers — had been released by mistake.

A spokesman for the Commonwealth group in Salisbury later denied the group had made a report or reached conclusions on the way the ceasefire was being observed.

In Ottawa, an external affairs department spokesman said the document was not confidential and was an unclassified working paper outlining points the Canadians in the Commonwealth observer group wanted to raise with the British governor, Lord Soames.

Raid nets $16,000 hash oil

A joint Greater Victoria police raid on a house in Saanich Wednesday night resulted in the seizure of a pound of what is believed to be hashish oil worth an estimated $16,000 on the street, and $1,000 worth of liquor.

Three men and three women were taken into custody after police, armed with search warrants, entered the house at 412 Burnside West.

Two men and one of the women were released after questioning but charges were laid against the others.

Charged with possession of a narcotic for purposes of trafficking are Robert Joseph Basil Saunders, 47, and Susan Margaret Lamont, 23, both of 412 Burnside West.

Insp. Robin Stewart, chief of Saanich detectives, said seven officers, including three each from Saanich and Victoria and one from RCMP subdivision headquarters, took part in the raid about 9:30 p.m.

Heiden grabs fourth gold

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. — Eric Heiden of the United States won an unprecedented fourth Winter Olympics individual gold medal today in the men's 1,500-metre speed skating event.

It is the first time in men's competition that one athlete has won four gold medals in a Winter Games.

Heiden, 21, hopes to make it five golds by winning the 10,000 metres on Saturday.

Minister wants Hydro reasons

Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm said today he intends to look into an April 1 seven per cent increase in electricity rates announced by B.C. Hydro.

He said since Hydro is dropping its transit services that have been losing around $60 million a year March 31, there is a considerable saving to Hydro.

"Should this not have some effect? It probably should and I intend to look at that aspect," the minister said.

Vander Zalm said he has not seen Hydro's arguments in favor of the increase, nor has he discussed it with Energy Minister Bob McClelland who sits on the B.C. Hydro board of directors.

The minister said he doesn't know how long it will take for the government to set up its proposed Public Utilities Commission which will have the power to review Hydro's rates.

"In the meantime, Hydro should give us some justification."

Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber has also criticized the rate increase.

Barber has sent a letter to a person who doesn't exist — the chairman-designate of the proposed PUC.

The letter, addressed care of Energy Minister Bob McClelland, points out that on March 31 Hydro will be divesting itself of its Vancouver and Victoria transit systems which lose about $60 million a year.

"If Hydro saves some $60 million a year, their claim of need for a seven-per-cent rate increase is, to say the least, suspect," Barber states.

He urges the unnamed PUC chairman to deny B.C. Hydro's rate increase and to insist on an analysis of the Hydro revenue picture as they shed responsibility for transit.

The rate increase also drew criticism from the executive of the Victoria Labor Council.

"The council is very concerned about these increases, especially when the Hydro authority does not have to go before any group to justify the increase," the executive said in a statement released today.

BCRIC even has investors in Newfoundland

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ownership of British Columbia Resources Investment Corp. (BCRIC) has spread across Canada since the shares were issued last year, says the company's annual report released Wednesday.

Most of the registered shareholders — 129,728 at Dec. 31 — reside in B.C., but Albertans and Ontario residents have also been buying the company's shares — and there are seven registered shareholders in Newfoundland.

The greatest number of shares per registered shareholder is in Ontario where 1,619 shareholders own in aggregate 5.8 million shares or an average 3,596 shares each.

By the end of 1979, about 3,600 Albertans had purchased 2.4 million shares for an average holding of 677 shares. The 129,728 registered shareholders in B.C. own 74.3 million shares or an average of 573 shares.

Only registered shareholders (those holding 100 or more shares — there were 136,143 at Dec. 31) will get the annual report and only registered shareholders are eligible to attend the company's annual meeting which is tentatively set for March 27 in Vancouver.

The annual report, the first since the company's free distribution of shares and capital raising last year, contains no surprises.

BCRIC president David Helliwell reiterated BCRIC's intentions to augment its 81-per-cent ownership of Canadian Cellulose and its other forestry interests by making "additional investments in the forest products industry to achieve a stronger position."

A BCRIC spokesman also announced Wednesday it will participate in gas and oil exploration in B.C.'s Nechako Basin between Williams Lake and Quesnel.

The exploration program in B.C. was revealed a day after Calgary-based Sulpetro Ltd. said it and the BCRIC will conduct a joint exploration program in Alberta for natural gas during 1980.

Under the B.C. exploration agreement, the BCRIC will earn a 50-per-cent share of a 17.5-per-cent interest held by Esso Resources Canada Ltd. under an existing agreement with Canadian Hunter Exploration Ltd.

Canadian Hunter has acquired 43 permits in the area.

A geophysical program will be conducted and the first well drilled this year, the corporation said in a news release.

Sulpetro President James Saunders said at least 26 wells will be completed in Alberta on behalf of BCRIC.

Sulpetro, as operator, would give up 50 per cent net interest in its own lands and BCRIC would pay the full costs. The initial investment commitment was estimated at $9 million.

More storms poised off Calif.

United Press International

A new series of storms was poised today off California, already battered by a deluge of rain that spawned killer floods and mudslides. Heavy rains also threatened to trigger a major flood in an eastern Idaho town where a nearby dam was dangerously close to collapse.

The U.S. National Weather Service issued a thunderstorm watch for northern California. Flood warnings were in effect for the Sacramento Valley.

The heavy rains, with accompanying winds to 80 km/h, were expected to let up today but another front lurking off the northern California coast was expected to move into the state and linger into Friday.

"Right now there are a lot of weather fronts sitting out there ready to move," meteorologist Robert Brown said. "Our five-day forecast has rain off and on through Sunday."

Floods and mudslides in Southern California already have caused at least 22 deaths and destroyed or damaged some 1,500 homes.

More rain and snow was predicted today in Malad City, Idaho, where officials feared the Crowthers Dam, a 33-year-old earth dam just north of the town, would collapse.

In Southern California, the rains have loosened hillsides denuded by last fall's brushfires and sent walls of oozing mud into roadways and homes.

The storm wrecked the Imperial Beach Municipal Fishing Pier in southern San Diego County, tearing out 50- and 100-foot sections. Raw sewage, debris and silt were pouring onto the beach from the nearby mouth of the Tia Juana River.

'Unsafe' radar turned off

MONTREAL (CP) — Air traffic controllers at Dorval airport have switched off some of their radar consoles, calling them "unsafe and antiquated," and have begun alternative operating procedures resulting in delays of up to 90 minutes for arrivals and departures.

The controllers say the situation will continue until better equipment, now being tested, is installed.

Fred Petrauskas, president of the Montreal area division of the Canadian Air Traffic Control Association, said Wednesday: "This is not a labor dispute or a slowdown but a matter of our saying enough is enough.

"The equipment we are using in the control centre is 20 years old," he said. "It's inadequate, it's unsafe and it's only a matter of time before a disaster occurs."

Keep bus pass: seniors

branch director Helen Tudor commented: "We're all steaming, absolutely steaming. We're all very incensed by his statements. They're really out of place."

She said it is obvious Campbell doesn't know all the facts.

She said many senior citizens have families on the mainland and use the ferries not for fun, but to visit their relatives.

"We are being barraged with criticisms of Mr. Campbell's remarks. We are being asked to get a petition going," said Joan Hudson, director of the Saanich branch.

"There are some pretty hard feelings. Could he live on $371?"

George Hunter, president of the Old Age Pensioners Organization No. 1, said about 50 per cent of the 600 members in his organization were forced to live on supplementary income.

He said he intends to bring up the bus pass issue at a meeting March 2.

Victoria Ald. Ron McKenzie said the regional district has a moral responsibility to work out an agreement with human resources rather than cut off bus passes.

But Sidney Mayor Norma Sealey noted negotiations could continue until the passes run out.

In other business, it was decided the free downtown bus service, however, will continue until at least the end of August if Victoria agrees to continue to pay 50 per cent of the deficit.

Currently, the deficit is jointly shared by the city and the Urban Transit Authority.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — If the United States doesn't send its athletes to the Moscow Olympics, Levis won't send 23,000 pairs of its jeans.

"No U.S. team, no jeans," Levi Strauss promotion director John Houck said Wednesday. The same goes for 23,000 white T-shirts printed with a Levi logo and several thousand blue denim jackets.

ROYAL TRUST GUIDES YOU AROUND THE BUMPS.

We show you mistakes to watch out for.

Everyone agrees that RRSP's are one of the very best ways to increase retirement income and reduce current income taxes. But not everyone knows about the little RRSP mistakes that can reduce that income.

We do. Here are some of the more obvious ones. Our free booklet will help you understand more about RRSP's and how they work.

Steer clear of places that don't offer a full range of plans.

There are different kinds of RRSP's, providing various combinations of security, interest earnings and flexibility. Royal Trust offers a unique range of six plans. Our booklet and good advice will give you a clear picture of how your choice of plans today will benefit you at retirement, or even in a few years' time.

Dodge the misuse of cash. Borrowing your RRSP money may be the wiser way.

Say you have money set aside for your RRSP, yet at the same time, you're planning a loan for some other major purchase. That could be a mistake...you may be wiser to use your cash for that purchase, and borrow the money for your RRSP.

You see, Royal Trust offers Tax Saver Loans for RRSP's, and they have one big advantage: Interest payments on Tax Saver Loans (except for loans taken for spousal RRSP's) are tax deductible in the year they're paid...so tax savings can offset a portion of your interest costs. In short, you could be well ahead.

Don't dent your retirement income by putting all your deposits in your own RRSP, when maybe you should contribute to a plan in the name of your spouse.

This can often earn you the same tax advantages today while gaining you some very valuable future tax savings when the retirement income is received.

For instance, if you both have plans, then you'll both be eligible to receive the first $1,000 tax exempt each year when you draw on them for retirement income after age 65. Further, it often makes sense to build retirement income in the name of the person expecting the lower marginal tax rate after retirement.

Pick up this free booklet at any of our branches.

Find out how a Royal Trust RRSP can take the bumps out of your road to richer retirement savings.

Fleeing from politics to soothing Toronto

Balm, too, for the intellect (such as it is) because a chap encased in a silver cigar seven miles high for an election campaign tends to believe that Robert de Cotret and Bryce Mackasey and the Foreign Investment Review Agency actually exist.

What should be compulsory treatment for all participants is a dip in the outside world where life goes on, politics is put on the back burner it deserves and people actually earn their paycheques.

* * *

Toronto has its priorities. At the moment the priority is that Tiger Williams has been traded to the Vancouver Canucks. This is roughly equivalent to sending the Russians into Afghanistan and the Third World War may break out on the Pacific Coast as soon as there is a pause in commercials.

What else? Well, ran into Dr. Morty Shulman, the last socialist millionaire to run (and win) for the NDP in Canada. Former chief coroner of Toronto, best-selling author on how any dishwasher can make a million. Lots of brash, no couth.

Anyway, tells of how in research for his TV show he attended an orgy, regular weekend event in a penthouse on top of a building at the corner of Davisville and Ummm. Wife refused to attend because she'd just gained five pounds. Took the lovely Valerie Elia, of CBC fame, instead.

Crushed to find not a Bo Derek in the crowd. All dumpy, middle-class tire salesmen who had gained 15 pounds. Shulman and date left without sampling. "Unbending cowardice," he confesses.

Dr. Morty says he has just discovered an amazing gimmick. A large electronic disk he has purchased, positioned in his back garden, that can pick up thousands of signals from U.S. and Canandian satellites circling aloft.

Can grab any TV channel in existence — 33 separate porn movies, stage shows from New York, musicals from Las Vegas, plus tune in on anyone's telephone conversation. He listened to his neighbors. "Disappointing," he confesses.

It's illegal, naturally. And expensive?

"Oh, no. It's only $5,000." Oh.

Local joke is that Monday night was not the Night of the Long Knives. It was the Night of the Cuisinart.

What else? Well, note with interest that among Trudeau's new Toronto MPs is David Smith, another tiny perfect one who is a charter member of the John Turner 195 club, that being the 195 Liberals who stuck with Turner through to the last leadership ballot in 1968.

Also Jim Peterson, who just happens to be a law partner of John Turner. Caucus solidarity? Good luck.

Note with interest the helpful comments of Bob Coates, president of the Regressive Conservative Disunity Party, that his leader was to blame for the defeat.

Interesting, it is, to contrast the two parties. Senator Al Graham, president of the Liberal Party, travelled on all the campaign planes with Trudeau. He is, at all functions, so close to Trudeau one would think an unbilical cord is attached.

Nova Scotian Coates, we recall, was installed as Tory president at a party convention in Quebec City that quickly subsided into farce and Quebec reporters persisted in questioning him in French at his post-victory press conference and the unilingual Coates sank, unaided. There went Quebec, right there.

Another example of the Clark expediency that backfired. Coates was installed to appease the Tory old guard. He alienated Quebec and hasn't been seen with Clark since.

So? Well, ran into Barbara Amiel, well-known reactionary plain Jane. She says the major mistake of Joe Clark, who suffers from "premature jowls," is that while he looks like Woody Allen he attempted to appear as Charlton Heston.

* * *

If he would have capitalized on his Woody Allen potential, she maintains, seeking sympathy for his vulnerability, he would still be there. Hmmm.

Finally? Well, have been twice at the Empire Club lunches recently, it being the bastion of all the embattled Tories of Fat City. First, they listened to Rene Levesque in polite silence and a few weeks later listened to Joe Clark enthusiastically — and then voted against him. I see today the Empire Club will be addressed by Geoffrey Stevens.

Who's Geoffrey Stevens?

Beats me.

No Alberni PCB risk, says WCB

VANCOUVER (CP) — Workers at a Port Alberni pulp mill are in no danger from polychlorinated biphenyls — believed to cause cancer — leaking from plant transformers, Grant McMillan, Workers' Compensation Board spokesman, said Wednesday.

MacMillan Bloedel Ltd., operator of the Alberni pulp and paper plant, has complied with board directives, issued in Sept., 1979, McMillan said.

Last week MLA Gordon Hanson (NDP — Victoria) called for a full investigation into the PCB leakage after Len Nelson, a spokesman for the Paperworkers Union at Port Alberni, said unknown amounts of the chemical were leaking from electrical transformers at the mill.

Nelson said a higher level of the chemical was found in the Alberni Canal after a transformer containing PCBs was dumped behind the plant clarifier. He said some of the transformers were still leaking after "the Workers' Compensation Board issued a compliance order in September to correct it immediately . . . and they haven't."

But McMillan said Wednesday the board is satisfied MacMillan Bloedel is doing its best to repair the damage.

Help for Polish seaman

VANCOUVER (CP) — Senate Liberal leader Ray Perrault said Tuesday he will help a Polish seaman who must leave Canada Feb. 28 unless he gets refugee status.

Perrault said Tadeusz Jakubowski, 40, has real political reasons for not returning to Poland.

Jakubowski failed last week in a final attempt in the Federal Court of Appeal to end immigration proceedings against him.

He must leave Canada voluntarily or be deported and face probable imprisonment in Poland because of his anti-Communist feelings.

However, Perrault said he was surprised at the disparity between the treatment which Jakubowski has received and the special treatment given to two Russians who jumped ship here earlier this month.

The Russians — Alexander Ryagozov, 33, and Yelina Terekhova, 22 — were given ministerial permits allowing them to stay and work while their applications for refugee status are processed.

"Justice does not seem to have been even-handed when you consider that the Russians deserted for love and Mr. Jakubowski is a productive member of society," Perrault said.

Perrault said he has discussed Jakubowski's case with immigration officials in Ottawa and will continue them.

"Now that there's been a change of government maybe there's something we can do about a ministerial permit," said Perrault.

Second fraud conviction

VANCOUVER (CP) — A former vice-president of Seneca Developments Ltd. was convicted in county court Wednesday of defrauding the company of 50,000 shares of its stock in a kickback deal on uranium properties. Judge J.J. Anderson remanded Gino Cicci, 45, of West Vancouver, to March 6 for sentencing. Anderson convicted Cicci on Tuesday on a lesser charge of accepting a secret commission, but allowed a motion by Crown counsel Winton K. Derby that he should have given judgment on the more serious count in the indictment.

Bridge back soon

VANCOUVER (CP) — The Second Narrows railway bridge, heavily damaged last October when hit in heavy fog by a Japanese freighter, is expected to be back in service by the end of the month, a CN Rail spokesman said Wednesday. The centre span will be lowered into place Feb. 27 or 28 with the first train due to cross Feb. 29.

Traffic appeal

VANCOUVER (CP) — The attorney general's department is appealing a Vancouver traffic court decision last week that ruled invalid two sub-sections of the B.C. Motor Vehicle Act dealing with driver's licence suspensions. An appeal date has not been set. About 10 cases are affected. Last Friday, in ruling on the case of three men charged with driving while their licences were suspended, provincial court judge Kerry Smith said the province exceeded its legislative authority in passing two subsections and of the Motor Vehicle Act, one providing for a maximum fine of $2,000 or six months' imprisonmente for a summary conviction, and the other stating a driver can be found guilty of driving while his licence is under suspension whether or not he knows it.

Volrich supported

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Jack Volrich has gained the support of four other western Canadian mayors to meet informally with Prime Minister-elect Pierre Trudeau two or three times a year to discuss issues of interest in the West. Following the Liberal shutout in B.C., Alberta and Saskatchewan in Monday's federal election, Volrich consulted the mayors of Edmonton, Calgary, Regina and Saskatoon by telephone to discuss the lack of representation in the new Liberal government. They agreed that Volrich should meet regularly with Trudeau.

Pickets halted

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia Labor Relations Board ruled Wednesday that picketing at Douglas College's Coquitlam campus was illegal and directed the Carpenters and Laborers Unions to refrain from further picketing activity. The union is protesting work done by a non-union contractor.

Culture is not a factor

Now that the federal election is out of the way, Canadian attention will increasingly turn towards the next important vote in this country: the Quebec referendum on sovereignty-association to be held this spring.

Quebec Premier Rene Levesque said the federal campaign was nothing more than an event to get in the way of the important referendum campaign.

The results of the election, however, appear to have thrown a wrench into some of the most basic philosophy on which Levesque was basing his pro-separatist stand.

In particular, the Parti Quebecois had been arguing strongly that the election of the Clark government last May was a portent of things to come, a portent of a Canada in which the federal government needed no Quebec support at all in order to rule.

When Clark won, Levesque saw in his victory a deep splitting of Canada along ethnic lines. "Each people made a choice which was clearly based on its own identity," he said.

In the PQ's official government paper on sovereignty-association, the government said that Quebec francophones can no longer expect to share the power of the federal government. Rather, it suggested, the francophones "will find themselves more and more in a minority position, and it will become increasingly easy for English Canada to govern without them."

When Trudeau announced his resignation that never was, Levesque said his departure from the national stage would mark the end of "French Power" for the foreseeable future in a federal Canada.

Now Pierre Trudeau is back in power with a majority government. His party took 146 seats in the election, exactly one-half of them in Quebec. It must be expected that at least one-third of the new federal cabinet will come from Quebec.

Quebec and Quebecers will, in other words, take a much greater share of the federal power than is warranted solely by the province's population. A stranger arriving at the House of Commons could be forgiven for thinking that the government was divided equally among representatives of Canada's two founding nations rather than being based on a nation-wide election.

The voters of English Canada showed on Monday that their vote has nothing to do with cultural identity and everything to do with economic and energy policy and the images of leaders.

This prime lesson of the election — that federal voting patterns are not culturally or ethnically based — should not be lost on Quebecers when they vote on their future within Canada.

Fair way

Trying to be seen to be fair is noble of any government body — but sometimes it backfires, as Saanich Mayor Mel Couvelier found out this week.

Council convened at the Northridge Elementary School Monday evening. Forsaking city hall once a month is part of council's ongoing attempt to bring government to the people.

The people didn't disappoint and about 50 residents showed up to witness the umpteenth and perhaps final wrangle over how council should proceed with its experimental stab at streamlining its bureaucracy.

At issue was how to go about restructuring the committee system to make it compatible with the intention to hold council meetings once a week rather than twice a month.

Three choices were at hand. The aldermen and mayor could sit as a committee of the whole or as a standing committee (there's a fine legal distinction) after each council meeting, or they could retain the present committee structure with the various aldermanic chairmen and have committees convene after the council meetings.

A key element of the streamlining experiment from the start was to eliminate the third choice. During previous meetings there seemed a consensus to implement one of the first two choices. That, as it turned out Monday, was not the case.

One must keep in mind that the appointment of committees and committee chairmen is the prerogative of the mayor. Provincial legislation gives him the power. But Couvelier, with the audience present, must have felt that a vote by council would ensure that change in the committee structure would be seen to be done fairly.

The frustrated mayor watched while council defeated both options one and two. Rather than hold a third vote that would have undoubtedly seen council opt for the status quo, he told them "I find it ridiculous that you want to back up now." And with that he decided he would exercise his given right to form the committee system the way he (and staff) saw fit.

QUEBEC — Rene Levesque has trouble dealing with federal elections. For a premier who wants out of confederation, they intrude like uninvited guests at a dinner party.

And Levesque could not have found it easy to watch his old adversary Pierre Trudeau sweep back into power Monday with the aid of three out of every four Quebec voters.

The unprecedented endorsement of Trudeau, who won 73 of 74 Quebec seats, comes just as the PQ is set to embark on its spring referendum campaign.

It is an embarrassing reminder to Levesque that Trudeau's staunch federalism still rings a responsive chord in this province.

Levesque says election result could have dangerous consequences.

Levesque analysis

Trying to put the best face on the results, Levesque told reporters yesterday that the massive Liberal vote in Quebec was more like a "plebiscite" on Pierre Trudeau, the man.

"It was directly linked to the personality of Mr. Trudeau," said Levesque, adding that Quebecers were trying to exact "revenge" for the defeat of their favorite son by Joe Clark last May.

But the Liberal domination of the province could have "dangerous consequences" for democracy, he warned. With only one opposition MP elected in Quebec, voters could "quickly become disillusioned" with the Liberals if they try to abuse their power by taking Quebec for granted.

The Liberals could become "centralist and arrogant" in power and the best way to counterbalance that would be for Quebecers to vote a massive "yes" in the referendum on sovereignty-association, he said.

Levesque suggested that the federalist forces in Quebec might split with both Pierre Trudeau and Claude Ryan on the scene. "We'll see who fights with whom," he said with a twinkle in his eye.

That's the party line the PQ has been putting out ever since it became clear Trudeau would win this election. Party insiders said a Trudeau victory would be just the right thing to check the meteoric rise of Claude Ryan's provincial Liberals, who hold more radical views on constitutional reform than their federal cousins.

A Trudeau-Levesque squabble over constitutional reform would help emphasize the PQ argument that reform of existing federalism is a futile exercice.

But the election interpretation by Levesque and his entourage loses credibility when their record on federal elections is scrutinized.

Last May, the premier had an easy explanation for the Conservative election victory in which Quebec voted one way and the rest of Canada another.

English-Canada had rejected the Liberal party because it was dominated by Quebecers, he said. Pierre Trudeau's defeat meant the end of "French power" in Ottawa and meant that Quebecers would have to turn to their own government to take care of them.

Nine months later, Levesque is having to eat those words.

And Liberal leader Claude Ryan rubbed it in yesterday by claiming that Pierre Trudeau's return to power had stripped the PQ of one of its best referendum arguments — the end of French Power.

Ryan also squashed speculation he might not get along with the new prime minister by insisting that Trudeau was free to choose any avenue he wants in participating in the referendum campaign.

Confronted with Trudeau's return to power, the Pequistes hope to make the best of the situation by provoking the Liberal government into another round of "family squabbles" between Quebec City and Ottawa francophones.

Disputes aided PQ

Such high-profile disputes during the first two years of the PQ term often helped the Levesque government demonstrate that federalism was obstructing Quebec.

The Quebec-Ottawa confrontations cooled off under Joe Clark's Conservative administration. But hawks in the Quebec caucus of the federal Liberals may clamor for a get-tough approach with the PQ on the eve of the referendum campaign.

Trudeau's return to power once again turns the Quebec debate into a fascinating clash of politics and personality between three brilliant French Canadian political leaders.

The old and new Carter

WASHINGTON — President Carter seems confident and even cocky on the surface these days, but still there is a vague doubt in the night here among his people, as if they felt stronger and more dangerous tides under their feet.

Three things are worrying them: The persistent rise in prices and interest rates, the sudden emergence of young people protesting against registration for a military draft and decline in the confidence in the press and among the allies about the conduct or misconduct of U.S. foreign policy.

Since the days of Franklin Roosevelt, the Democrats have fought elections as the party of the young, the old and the poor, of low prices and interest rates, and cooperation with the allies. Recently, Carter has been talking about more sacrifices to come, about the possibility of war in the Persian Gulf, higher defense budgets, higher unemployment, new mobile combat units and new missile and conscription systems. Accordingly, his natural political supporters are now beginning to wonder where all this is going.

Second thoughts

In recent weeks, all this has been overwhelmed by the crises in Iran and Afghanistan, during which Carter has dominated both the news and the popularity polls. The Allies from the start, and lately the American press, have begun to question Carter's judgment that Afghanistan was the most serious foreign policy crisis for America since the last World War, and most recently, Carter has begun to agree with them and withdraw his sanctions against Iran and his opposition to a U.N. commission to investigate the charges against the shah before the American hostages were released. So he is now being charged with misjudgment and inconsistency.

This is not quite fair to the president. He had to react vigorously to the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, part of which was to call for the military registration of young American men and women. He had to withdraw his opposition to economic sanctions against Iran and agree to their demand for a U.N. commission to investigate the charges against the shah, for this was his only peaceful way of trying to get the release of the hostages.

But all his judgments of Soviet intentions to take over the Persian Gulf, his threats of sanctions against Iran, his withdrawal of these threats, his refusal and then acceptance of a U.N. commission to investigate the shah before the hostages were released, leave him vulnerable to political attack, and nobody knows this better than his political and publicity advisors.

In the last year, they have seen Carter dismissed unfairly as a "loser" and a "one-term president," who lacked the qualities of presidential leadership. And then, within a few weeks, they saw him proclaimed in the press as the unbeatable leader of the Democratic Party, who had destroyed Senator Kennedy and would not only be renominated but re-elected.

That is still their view, but they're not as sure as they sound. The political debate on the economy has not even begun. The price of oil is only a small part of the inflation. Carter began by proclaiming that unemployment was a greater threat to the nation than inflation and is going into the campaign with a rise in both. Not since the days of Herbert Hoover has a sitting president had a harder economic record to defend.

Carter has another problem, which is harder to define. He came into office believing that a Democratic president and a Democratic Congress could put an end to the confusion between the Executive and Legislative; proclaiming the higher morality, arguing for a government as "good as the people," serving the national interest; for allies who would sacrifice to defend a civilization, and even for adversaries who would prefer cooperation and arms control to confrontation and another round in the arms race.

It hasn't worked out precisely that way, and feeling betrayed, Carter has lately been assuming not the best but the worst in his critics, and is now playing hardball politics both at home and abroad.

He was so angry at the Iranians that, even after the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan, which finally made the ayatollah and the Revolutionary Council in Tehran realize that they were threatened primarily from the north, he still wanted to insist on punishing economic sanctions. And he wouldn't agree to a UN commission to hear the crimes against the shah before the hostages were released, until the secretary general of the UN and his own secretary of state persuaded him to take it easy and negotiate their release point by point.

Election fight

So we are now seeing, as often before, a "new Carter" like the "new Johnson" and the "new Nixon" as of yore — fighting as always for re-election, and fighting very effectively, and, the guess here is, very successfully. But he is no longer fighting primarily on the moral grounds that brought him to the presidency in the first place, with his appeals for compassion, human rights, arms control and aid to the suffering multitudes of the world.

Nevertheless, maybe he will win — nobody here would bet against it — but the people who believed in the Old Carter who won, still have their doubts about the New Carter, who has abandoned the old philosophy and will soon have to face the economic facts of his record.

Most of his aides, of course, are exhilarated by his success in the popularity polls — and hesitate to question his recent political tactics — but he was down so low a few months ago and is now up so high, that they wonder how long it will last, and even if he'll like it if it does.

Life without means

In your leader of the Feb. 12, "Debunking Some Myths", you quote "two prominent Candian economists" as saying "In 1978, the federal debt was smaller in relation to GNP than it was a decade ago." True, and the greater the inflation the more insignificant does the ratio become. In the end, as happened in Germany after the First World War, any German housewife going out to do the day's shopping carried bills of enough face value to pay off the entire debt incurred by Germany in the war.

The fact is, one is talking about two different kinds of money, the dollars that were lent to the Canadian government, and today's dollar which has only a fraction of the original buying power of that dollar. If anyone happens to have a pre 1967 Canadian quarter, still with a face value of only 25 cents, it has a bullion value of $6.00 or thereabouts today — 24 times as much. If Canada's national debt were expressed in equivalent dollars of the time it was lent, our debt would far exceed the GNP.

Another myth is the call, particularly at election times, for the government to "create jobs". Governments can only create an atmosphere in which industry can flourish. It has no money of its own. If it spends money to create jobs, it must first, either take the money from us in taxes (and everyone I am sure feels he could employ his money much better himself), or alternatively and worse to print more money. In the latter case the government again takes money from everyone, the poorest as well as the richest. In the end, there is more unemployment, because capital is diluted and put to less useful purposes than private enterprise would invest in. Sure, the poor get poorer all the time, they are bound to do in any period of inflation. In the end, governments and people must live within their means. There is no other permanent way. — J. P. Thornton, 943 Wilmer Street.

Flag confusion

The subject of flags and ensigns is always an emotional one. In the Times Feb. 2, a correspondent proposed that Canadian naval ships should fly the British White Ensign. The fact is that the White Ensign is the sole prerogative of the Royal Navy, and is not worn today by any Commonwealth navy. Both Australia and New Zealand adopted their own unique designs, and other members wear their national flag or a variation thereof. Likewise, the Union flag is that of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Northern Island and is only appropriate there and in the remaining Crown Colonies. In Canada, it has gained some status as the "royal" flag, to be flown in the presence of the Sovereign or members of the Royal family. Moreover, when in this country, the Queen flies her Personal Canadian Flag in lieu of the Royal Standard used in her other realms.

A flag is a symbol to identify a nation, a group or organization of that nation or its ships. We have a national flag, duly approved by the Queen, and it is the signal of our identity as a sovereign nation. The Maple Leaf has been a symbol of Canada since confederation, having been incorporated into the several versions of our coat-of-arms. Lacking a national flag, the members of the Canadian Expeditionary Force in 1914-18 were identified by the maple leaf on their cap and collar badges. This symbol was widely used in the Second World War by the services, for the same reason.

The Red Ensign never had official status as a national flag. Originally, it was the ensign for the merchant marine, just as the Blue Ensign was worn by government ships. It came into unofficial use on an ad hoc basis as a stop-gap identifying signal while we agonized over selecting a national flag, but its main drawback was that it was indistinguishable at any distance from a host of colonial ensigns.

The custom in Victoria seems to be to fly every flag in the locker that was ever associated with Canada. It must be confusing to visitors from other countries. — C. J. Dillon, 2325 Musgrave Street.

Brave and kind

The bravery and kindness so recently exhibited by Canadian diplomatic personnel in assisting six U.S. citizens to escape from Iran gives further witness to the centuries-old bond between Canada and the U.S. I, as one individual U.S. citizen, appreciate the action. Thank you. — Michael M. Grayson, Summit, New Jersey.

One theory says mystery star may be result of gas jets spewing into space in opposite directions

Bizarre 'star' a black hole?

By WALTER SULLIVAN
New York Times

NEW YORK — Scientists are beginning to offer explanations for the behavior of a bizarre "star" that has been observed in recent years approaching the Earth and receding from it at a speed of about 47,000 miles a second. The speculations include the possibility that a black hole is responsible for the celestial body's observed jets and light variations.

Two cyclic rhythms in the behavior of the object (or objects), originally catalogued as a star and designated SS433, have been recently identified, though the object was first photographed in the 1960s.

One rhythm implies that two objects are circling each other every 13.1 days (or possibly twice that fast). The other suggests that gas jets ejected in opposite directions from one of the objects are themselves rotating roughly every 164 days, like a double airport beacon.

The recorded emissions, which have been studied at more than 15 observatories on six continents, indicate maximum coming-and-going motion when one jet, moving at 30,000 miles a second, is aimed almost directly at Earth and its twin is blasting material in the opposite direction at 20,000 miles a second. Such a maximum occurred in May and October of last year.

Following each maximum the velocities of these motions gradually decrease, reach zero, and then climb in the opposite direction. That is, the receding motion becomes approaching motion and vice versa.

This is the pattern expected from rotating jets, but as pointed out recently by Dr. Bruce Margon of the University of California at Los Angeles, other explanations are possible. For example, it has been proposed that a ring of matter orbiting a compact object (neutron star or black hole) at very high velocity might be illuminated by a beam rotating every 164 days.

A black hole is postulated to be a star that has collapsed to such density that its gravity "swallows" any light from within it or from beyond. A neutron star is a star that has collapsed to a state of extreme density, but short of that required to become a black hole.

Both are believed to result from a supernova — the explosion and implosion of a star. It has been found that SS433 lies in the centre of a wide source of radio emissions known as W50, identified as the expanding cloud left by a supernova.

Motions in the two hypothetical jets are deduced by measuring the wavelengths of light emitted by their atoms. When the atoms are receding, their characteristic wavelengths are shifted toward the red, or long-wave, end of the visible spectrum. When they are approaching, the wavelengths are shifted toward the blue, or short-wave, end.

The recorded blue shift when the source material, possibly a jet, is approaching, at 30,000 miles a second, is 100 times greater than any previously recorded from a celestial object. It is believed that both jets are moving at the same speed, but their velocities are so great that the effect of relativity makes the receding one appear slower.

Also recorded from SS433 are light waves from a relatively stationary source, which vary in brightness in a cycle of 13.1 days. This has led to the suspicion that SS433 consists of a superdense object circling a visible star and causing these light variations.

The superdense object, according to this hypothesis, is not itself observed, but is ejecting the twin jets, whose aim wobbles or precesses every 164 days.

The power source for this energetic activity would be the extreme heating of material sucked from the companion by the gravity of the superdense object. According to Dr. Margon, however, the manner in which this energy produces the jets "must surely be obscure."

Particularly puzzling is the low temperature of the jets. Whatever their mode of acceleration to such extreme velocity, one would expect them to be very hot. Yet their emissions are those of only a moderately heated gas.

Another remarkable observation has been the mirror-image behavior in the motion of the two jets, despite their wide separation, suggesting that each "knows" what the other is doing.

Dr. Margon discussed recent observations of SS433 at a meeting of the American Astronomical Society in Cambridge, Mass., last month. At the same meeting Dr. Craig L. Sarazin of the University of Virginia suggested that the jets might be a small-scale model of those shooting out in opposite directions from some galaxies.

For example, several months ago the Very Large Array of the National Radio Astronomy Observatory in New Mexico, using 12 of its antennas, mapped jets radiating in opposite directions from the galaxy known as 3C449. From tip to tip they were measured to be more than a million light-years long.

In each of them material is flying from the core of the galaxy at 600 miles a second. The twists and turns of each are a mirror image of its twin. As a relatively nearby "beam laboratory," said Dr. Sarazin, SS433 may eventually help explain such phenomena on a far larger scale.

Argentina, My Love: patriotism's game

By JACOBO TIMERMAN
New York Times

TEL AVIV — There were about eight policemen living in my apartment with me — each shift was on duty for six hours — and they were able to watch the 1978 World Soccer Championship in comfort. They used one of my television sets. The other eight policemen, who made up the guard during my year and a half of house arrest in Buenos Aires, were able to see the games from the concierge's rooms on the ground floor, where they were assigned to watch the two entrances. For the policemen inside the apartment, the soccer-championship weeks were a lovely, exciting vacation. They occupied the kitchen, dining room and living room, so they were able to organize good meals for themselves, use the space and the tableware, and invite in maids from other apartments.

Actually the fun began quite a while before, with the preparations, the training of the Argentine players, the commentaries, the statements, the anecdotes, the shots of the wives looking a bit bored while the players practiced. Television spent several hours each day on the subject.

Patriotism. That was what was in the air. Patriotism. "We are showing the world what we Argentines are capable of," the government declared. And truly, the organization of the 1978 World Soccer Championship was exceptional: The playing fields, new or improved, were first-rate; communications were excellent; color-television technology, a novelty in Argentina, worked! It was a great event, and it ended with an Argentine victory and another magnificent phrase, created and broadcast by the public-relations advisers of a private bank: "Argentina, My Love."

(I am reminded, in thinking about language, that the Russian style has not been modified by Marxist terminology. It has lost sweetness and romance but it retains the gravity, solemnity and grandiloquence suitable for the dimensions of All the Russias, and for the sense of historic inevitability. Discussing the Moscow Olympic Games, the 1980 edition of the "Handbook for Communist Militants" in the Soviet Union emphasizes: "The ideological struggle between East and West is directly involved in the selection of the cities where the Olympic Games take place. The decision to hold the Games in Moscow is decisive proof of the correctness of the foreign policy of the Soviet Union." In other words: Russia, My Love.)

Many distinguished foreigners, invited by the government, arrived in Buenos Aires, giving liveliness and respectability to Argentina. The Brazilian soccer star Pele supplied the liveliness; Henry A. Kissinger, the respectability.

There were other outsiders present — Argentines — those who were prisoners, prisoners' families, the families of those who had disappeared. And there were the Dutch. The Netherlands had tried to prevent the World Soccer Championship from being turned into a vehicle for Argentine propaganda. One way or another, we Argentine outsiders learned about the Dutch efforts. It helped our morale.

Brief newspaper accounts about Dutch intentions — always emphasizing their failure — made us realize that somebody was thinking of us. At first, we surmised that the Dutch might get the championship cancelled; later, we settled for the possibility that the journalists from abroad would write about the human-rights situation.

It was said that the West German players were bringing a list of those who had disappeared, and that the Italians would demand, before the start of each game, the freeing of prisoners of Italian descent.

My police custodians celebrated the Argentine victories. They came to my room and made cheerful remarks. On my TV set I watched all the games, I "celebrated" all the Argentine victories and I "accepted" the policemen's pats on the back: "After this triumph there will be an amnesty, Don Jacobo; you will be able to go to Israel." But I wanted the Dutch to win.

It was a great Argentine triumph — of organization, of athletic prowess, and of propaganda. And there was no amnesty. Those who had disappeared did not reappear. No information was disclosed about the anonymous corpses to allow their families to pray on All Souls Day or say Kaddish.

Yes, we were all Dutch. Today, all the political prisoners in the world and their families and supporters are all with Sakharov. As if it mattered.

Let's not trivialize 'belittle'

Trivia Question

The word "belittle" — a great Americanism — coined around 1780 by Thomas Jefferson, meaning "to make unimportant" — has been disparaged and may soon be altogether replaced

"Belittle" is being slighted in favoı of "made trivial" and "trivialize."

In putting down press coverage of the pope's visit, President Carter said: "A beautiful and significant moment was kind of glossed over and made trivial."

While seeking to derogate the challenge of some Quebeckers advocating separation from Canada, Prime Minister Joe Clark admitted: "We should not diminish or trivialize the importance of this local or regional pride."

"Trivial" is a significant word, from the Latin tri via ,"three streets," a busy crossroads where much takes place that is commonplace. I don't want to minimize the achievement of "trivial" in becoming a vogue verb — "trivialize" has overwhelmed Jefferson's "belittle" — but I have this question: Since "ize" is a much-decried construction, why do the same people who comdemn a verb like "prioritize" as some sort of bureaucratic monstrosity rush to embrace "trivialize"?

We're making too much of "trivialize"; the underrated "belittle" will make a comeback.

Fumblerule Follow-Up

Late entries in the Fumblerule Derby:

— Never use a long word when a diminutive one will do.

— One will not have needed the future perfect in one's entire life.

— Unqualified superlatives are the worst of all.

— If this were subjunctive, I'm in the wrong mood.

— Surly grammarians insist that all words ending in "ly" are adverbs.

— De-accession euphemisms.

— In statements involving two word phrases, make an all out effort to use hyphens.

— It is not resultful to transform one part of speech into another by prefixing, suffixing, or other alterings.

Cyclicalisms

Two cometlike synonyms, one based in physics and the other in geology, re-enter the earth's political atmosphere every four years, permeate our vocabulary for about six months, and then vanish until four years later.

One term is slippage , which physicists know as the difference between the theoretical and the actual output of power. The other is erosion , which geologists know as destruction of the earth by such means as wearing-away by water or glacier, from the Latin erodere , to gnaw, as by a rodent — as the dictionaries say, "See more at RAT."

In politics, erosions and slippages are what happen to leads. Before conventions, and before elections, leads never grow, or lengthen, or widen; gaps do not merely narrow; instead, the distance between front-runner and the pack is said to suffer "erosion" and "slippage."

Anachronism

A phrase that has come into use since the Soviet invasion of Afghanistan is "the second cold war," or "cold war II," and was probably coined in the mid-70s by Richard J. Whalen, now a key Reagan defense adviser. (An aide or adviser who isn't "key" is locked out.)

This brings to mind the best intentional anachronism I ever saw, useful in illustrating the meaning of that word. Comedian Sid Caesar, in a skit about the doughboys in 1918, came onstage in an Army uniform and shouted happily, "World War I is over!"

Dust-to-dust theory dims lizards' lights

SAN FRANCISCO — An asteroid struck the earth 65 million years ago and kicked up so much dust in the atmosphere that the sun's light effectively went out all over the world for several years — and dinosaurs and many other creatures consequently did not live to see it come back on again.

This theory was advanced here at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science by a team of University of California at Berkeley scientists to explain the sudden and mysterious mass extinction of dinosaurs and other living things 65 million years ago.

* * *

According to Luis W. Alvarez, the Nobel-winning physicist from Berkeley's Lawrence Berkeley Laboratory, his geologist son, Walter Alvarez, and chemists Frank Asaro and Helen V. Michel, an asteroid about 10 kilometres in diameter would have crashed into the earth and gouged out a crater 150 to 200 kilometres in diameter.

The matter and the crater would have been pulverized by the impact and thrown high, far and wide. Dust-size particles would have been injected into the atmosphere and spread by winds entirely around the globe. This would have been similar to the dust that was fired into the atmosphere by the violent eruption of the Krakatoa Volcano in 1883.

The large amount of asteroid-created dust would have remained suspended in the air for anywhere from three to 10 years, said Alvarez, acting as a lid to prevent sunlight from falling on the surface of the planet. Without that solar energy, photosynthesis — the conversion of carbon dioxide into edible sugars by both water and land plants — would have come to a halt.

The stopping of photosynthesis would have effectively snipped the food chain at its first and most important link. All the creatures that feed on plankton and plants would have starved to death in a fairly short time span, followed soon thereafter by the larger animals that dined upon the smaller ones.

Dinosaurs — both of the plant- and flesh-eating varieties — were at the top of the food chain 65 million years ago, just as humans are today. When the first rung of their nutritional ladder broke, the whole ladder collapsed and so did the reign of these animals, the theory goes.

* * *

And when the dust finally settled, the returning sunlight revived dormant plants that had managed to survive the dark, or at best, gloomy years. Life struck out along a new tangent with those creatures that had proved themselves to be adaptable.

The evidence for the hypothesis, according to the Alvarezes, Asaro and Michel, is to be found in the concentrations of a relatively rare metal — iridium — in clay layers discovered in Italian and Danish geological rock formations.

The elevated level of iridium suggested that some major event took place at that time, an event that may have been causally connected to the extinction of the dinosaurs.

Cabbies want curb on fleet

Victoria taxi owners say there are too many taxis operating in the city and they want council to do something about it.

In a brief to be submitted to council's finance committee today, the Greater Victoria Taxi Owners Association and Bluebird Cabs, the largest taxi company in the city, jointly appeal for a moratorium on licences effective immediately.

Together the two represent 80 per cent of the taxicabs in Victoria.

Their brief notes that while Vancouver has 363 licenced cabs for a population of 600,000, Victoria has nearly half that number — 165 — for a population only one third as large — 200,000.

Vancouver has limited the number of licences it issues since 1946. In Victoria anyone can get a licence provided he has no criminal record and can pay the initial licence fees.

The taxi owners say that because of the limited economies of scale in the taxi business, the only way economies can be maximized is if there is maximum use of cabs. That means servicing more people with fewer cars.

The brief recognizes fewer cars could result in longer waits for passengers but argues that would happen only during peak periods. It suggests the situation could be alleviated if the city approved more taxi stands in the downtown core, particularly in the area of the bus depot.

It contends indiscriminate issuing of licences leads to problems.

It says there may be a deterioration of drivers and equipment because the competitive nature of the business forces owners to cut costs.

The proportionately high number of cabs also makes it difficult to police the taxi bylaw.

The one-man city police taxi detail has found instances of taxicabs being taken through the safety inspection with borrowed equipment, of cabs that ignore the twice-year inspection notices, and of drivers who flout the dress and grooming standards.

Last month the owners requested council to approve rate increases which would bring metre charge from 90 cents per mile to 70 cents per kilometre ($1.12 a mile) and allow the flag fee to be increased 10 cents to $1.10 and waiting time charges hiked to $15 an hour from $12.

Norfolk girls to Quebec on exchange

The other half of a Quebec-B.C. student exchange involving Norfolk House School starts Friday when 26 girls leave for a Montreal suburb.

The Grade 11 and 12 students are taking part in an Open House Canada Bilingual Exchange sponsored by the federal government and initiated in November when French-speaking girls from Villa Ste. Marcelline school visited Norfolk House.

Their program will include a visit to the Quebec National Assembly, a bilingual play at Place des Arts, a maple bush party, a visit to CBC Radio Canada, a trip to Quebec City and a day of skiing in the Laurentians.

Offer averts tugboat strike

VANCOUVER (CP) — A threatened strike by B.C. towboat workers has been averted after the executive of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers decided Wednesday to accept the industry's latest contract offer.

The union, representing 550 deckhands, cooks and oilers of 12 towboat companies, had served 72-hour strike notice Tuesday after rejecting a contract offer calling for a $1-an-hour wage increase in each year of a two-year agreement.

Details of the latest offer have not been revealed.

A union leader said the offer will be put to the membership with a recommendation to accept. Results of the ratification vote should be known in about a month.

Under the old agreement, which expired Sept. 30, 1979, union members earned between $8.77 and $9.15 an hour.

Racquet Club sale 'relief' to Couvelier

"I'm personally relieved. I wasn't happy with the prospect of (Saanich) taking it over," Couvelier commented today.

However, Ald. Geoff Vantreight said he is disappointed club shareholders voted Tuesday to accept an offer by Mark and Terry Grimwood of Vancouver-based Grimwood & Co.

Vantreight said Tuesday he is angry the club isn't being sold to Victoria interests.

Thirty club members made an unsuccessful bid to purchase the facility but with a much smaller renovation program.

A spokesman for Alexander Achtem, the law firm handling that offer, said businessman Vantreight is not a member of the group.

Couvelier said he is happy about the sale because Saanich's offer to assume the financially troubled club's $900,000 debt was made primarily because council didn't want to see the facility demolished.

The Grimwoods, who own two private squash-racquetball clubs in Greater Vancouver, expect to take over in March and start a $600,000 renovation and expansion project.

Under the conditions of sale the fee structure will remain for two years and present members given a 30 day option to join the new club.

Saanich Ald. Sandy Noel said today he is happy the club will remain private.

But he said the Grimwoods' offer would have been his second choice and that he preferred a previous offer by Concord Developments, of Victoria.

Concord's proposal to build a luxury motel on the site and lease the recreation facilities back to the club for a limited time was rejected by shareholders.

"I don't think a luxury inn beside it (the racquet club) would detract from the facility," Noel said.

Noel opposed the municipality taking over the club because it would be too expensive.

The only two recreation facilities operated by Saanich operating in the black are the municipal golf course and the tennis bubble, he said.

The Grimwoods also own the Capilano Winter Club and the Courthouse in Vancouver.

Allowance changes sought

TORONTO (CP) — A Gallup poll released today says the public still favors changes in family allowances that would eliminate the wealthy.

In 1969, a majority — 58 per cent of the Canadians polled in a Gallup survey — approved a change that would have reduced or eliminated payments to well-to-do families.

Today, 68 per cent in a comparable poll supported the suggestion.

In the 1969 poll, French-speaking Canadians and those whose first language is other than English were less likely to support the change. Today, there is less difference in viewpoint, regardless of language spoken.

Asphalt plant urged for city

He estimated a saving of at least 20 per cent over what the city pays now to commercial suppliers.

A recent report by consulting firm Willis Cunliffe & Tait stated that the city could match the price set by private industry, but Sansom said there are other savings which would bring the cost down.

Sansom said recyling old asphalt removed from city streets and the saving in time by using a city-owned plant would make paving cheaper.

He told the committee a plant would cost $1.25 million but the savings generated would pay for the plant within 20 years and finance construction of a new plant at that time.

The committee was receptive to the idea but delayed a decision. Aldermen asked for more information from the engineer.

Ambulance pact

VANCOUVER (CP) — A tentative agreement has been reached between negotiators for 500 ambulance workers in British Columbia and the Emergency Health Services Commission.

Terms of the two-year agreement were being withheld pending a ratification vote by the workers.

Good attitude wins Smith top marks

Education Minister Brian Smith got A for Effort from the B.C. Teachers' Federation executive after its first official meeting with the minister Wednesday.

Smith has an "openness" in his approach that was missing in his predecessor, Pat McGeer, said BCTF president Allen Blakey.

Compared with McGeer, Smith is less knowledgable but more understanding, Blakey said.

The BCTF report card on McGeer says: "What he had in his mind was very set. There was no way the facts were going to intervene."

Smith gets a better mark.

"I think Mr. Smith is more sympathetic to the problems teachers face in the classroom," Blakey said.

Following the meeting Smith said he will take a look at teachers' concerns regarding the provincial core curriculum, established by McGeer.

"The core curriculum is not designed to be a strait-jacket on teaching," he said.

However, the new minister does not intend to get rid of the core curriculum.

"We are not going to move back to an era where individual teachers around this province are designing their own curriculum."

Smith was non-committal about the BCTF argument that teachers should be able to negotiate conditions of work, including conditions in the classroom.

Unlike other unions, the BCTF is excluded from the Labor Relations Act and bargains under the Public Schools Act which limits negotiations to salaries and bonuses. Any change would require legislation.

"Teachers have an expertise that should allow them to negotiate for the improvment of the quality of education within the classroom. They should not simply become cogs that are responsive to direction from a centralized authority," Blakey said.

He warned of a growing resistance among teachers to continuing centralization of authority.

Uranium foes plan rally

Radioactivity-fighting activists are organizing a rally to coincide with the Feb. 29 opening of the legislature.

Rally co-ordinator John Moelaert of Kelowna said the demonstrators have a message for the B.C. government: "If you want to stay in, keep uranium mines out."

Demonstrators, musicians and speakers from several organizations from Vancouver Island, the Lower Mainland, the Interior and the northern part of the province are expected to attend.

The rally will start at the James Bay Community Hall, 140 Oswego, at 11 a.m. There will be music, talks and information displays.

Shortly after 1 p.m., demonstrators will leave for the Legislative Buildings where opening ceremonies are planned for 2 p.m.

Bridge closed on Sunday

The Johnson Street bridge will be closed from 8 a.m. Sunday for structural steel work, the city traffic department said today.

It will reopen some time in the evening when the work is completed.

Toronto

Trading in shares of Gulf Canada was delayed at the opening and later halted pending an announcement.

Mobil Oil Canada, Gulf's partner in the Hibernia 0-35 well being drilled off the Newfoundland coast, announced that zones of interest noted in the well have potential hydrocarbon-bearing sands in six separate intervals for a total thickness between 75 and 85 metres.

Mobil said potential hydrocarbon-bearing sands in the zone of interest noted in the Ben Nevis 1-45 well have a total thickness of about 30 metres.

The Ben Nevis well is located on a geological structure about 40 kilometres southeast of the Hibernia structure.

Gulf Canada Products Co., a division of Gulf Canada Ltd., announced that it will expand its production at its Edmonton refinery by 40,000 barrels a day.

Gulf said the expansion will be designed primarily to process synthetic crude oil.

Among industrials, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas gained 6½ to $144, Texaco Canada 5¼ to $90¼, Aquitaine of Canada 4¾ to $59½, Falconbridge Nickel A 4 to $135 and Crestbrook Forest 3 to $30.

New York

American Telephone and Telegraph was one of the notable losers today as the stock market abruptly turned downward again.

AT and T shares led the active list, down 1½ to $48⅜. On Wednesday the company, the nation's most widely held stock with nearly three million shareholders, decided not to raise its dividend, declaring only the regular $1.25-a-share quarterly payout.

The yield on the stock at its current level of payouts is better than 10 per cent. But lately yields on competing bonds have climbed well above that level.

Among Canadian issues on the NYSE, McIntyre Mines rose 4 to $79, Canadian Packers ⅞ to $41⅞ and Seagram Co. ⅝ to $48⅛.

Alcan fell ⅜ to $58⅝, Bell Canada ⅛ to $16⅞ and Inco ⅛ to $29⅞.

London

Golds moved higher, banks declined and industrials were mixed.

Canadian stocks were mixed.

Stock Market Signals Bullish Times ahead.

Biggest Bull Market in History Could Occur in Next Five Years.

That is the opinion of Don Cormie, President of the $250-million Edmonton-based Principal Group. He has 25 years of experience and research to back him up.

Cormie has observed that stock prices and economic trends occur in recurring cycles. "Compared to real estate prices, North American stocks have not been as cheap, since 1921," says Cormie. "The eight year period following 1921 was the beginning of the last great bull market. During that time the Dow Jones Average went from 64 to 385."

Cormie believes today's stock prices could offer the same buying opportunity as in 1921. At that time the majority of investors were frantically buying real estate and gold and ignoring the stock market — except the few astute investors who saw the bargain basement prices of the stock market.

"The key to successful investing is to buy the bargains. Today, as in 1921, the majority of investors are still ignoring bargain basement prices in the stock markets. In fact stocks are still valued at historically low prices."

This straight forward philosophy is not idle speculation on Cormie's part. Principal Group's Investment Department maintains charts, graphs and computerized records that date back to the 1700's. Based on this data, Principal Group has become one of the rising stars among economic research and investment firms in Canada.

Principal Venture Fund Ltd. has increased over 3½ times after all fees, or 28.8% per year since January 1975. One thousand dollars invested then would have been worth $3,546 as of December 31, 1979. This fund emphasizes agressive capital appreciation.

Principal Growth Fund has increased 168.4% after all fees in the last five years. One thousand dollars invested on December 31, 1974 would now be worth over $2684. with reinvestment of all distributions. This fund is eligible for RRSP investments.

Collective Mutual Fund Ltd., which stresses international blue chip companies, has increased 141.1% after all fees since January 1, 1975. That's a compound annual rate of return of 19.2%.

None of these returns are guaranteed, nor is there 100% certainty that the next bull cycle will be like the rest. But Principal has committed itself to a growth strategy that has been successful.

Why should you as an investor buy Principal's investment funds? When you do, you immediately share in the 25 years of research and investment expertise the company has developed. You buy the full-time, professional management of managers who know a bargain when they see one. You immediately buy the safety represented by the diversification of over 30 stocks each fund owns. You buy the accounting and tax reporting forms that the company provides. You make an investment with liquidity. And, your shares in the fund may be presented for redemption on any business day at their net asset value. Net asset value is reported daily in the major Canadian newspapers.

Can you afford to miss what could be the investment buying opportunity of this coming decade? For as little an investment of $600.00 or more you can buy and own the investment expertise of real professionals.

Whether you're a small or large investor phone us now for further information to get the whole story on why we think stocks are a bargain.

NEB refusal 'no surprise'

EDMONTON (CP) — The National Energy Board's refusal to certify an oil pipeline proposed by Trans Mountain Pipe Line Ltd. was not a surprise, the company president said Wednesday.

Ken Hall also said he would have preferred to receive board approval of his company's project and thinks a final decision now is unlikely before late this year.

The board announced earlier in the day that it would refuse to certify the pipeline portion of the company's plan to move Alaskan oil south to U.S. markets until the firm completed environmental studies on its tanker route along the British Columbia coast.

It gave the company until March 31 to decide whether to do the studies.

A competitor and a spokesman for an environmental group lauded the decision to set the deadline.

Hall said in an interview the issue of the environmental impact of West Coast tanker traffic had been raised when Trans Mountain made its submission to the board.

The company had outlined some studies and agreed to undertake them if the board required, Hall said.

He said he expects that Trans Mountain will provide the studies the board wants, but he wants to read the board's decision and learn exactly what is required before he makes a commitment.

"I would have liked to have received the permit," he said. "It would have allowed us to proceed with efforts to finance the project."

Earlier, he told the Western region conference of the Engineering Institute of Canada that Trans Mountain's application was a simple request to build a line parallel to its existing Edmonton-Vancouver system.

In a decision released after stock markets had closed, the board said that the company had filed all the required information in its pipeline application, but had not assessed adequately the effect of more tankers and a new port in resource-rich B.C. waters.

Foothills Oil Pipe Lines Ltd. of Calgary, whose competing proposal for an overland pipe was rejected last month by U.S. President Carter, said the board's decision is "a significant judgment in the Canadian public interest."

Patrick Moore, director of the environmental group Greenpeace, said the decision indicates there are deficiencies in the $1.2 billion Northern Tier proposal as well.

Carter has endorsed the all-American Northern Tier proposal which also would route tankers down the West Coast.

"That (NEB) decision implies that if Northern Tier was under Canadian jurisdiction, it would not comply with NEB requirements," Moore said.

"It is further justification for the Canadian government to protest the Northern Tier project to the U.S. government. It should be a signal to the Canadian government to take the issue to Washington and that it has some backing in doing so."

West Fraser bid rejected

VANCOUVER (CP) — West Fraser Co. Ltd. shareholders have refused to sell controlling interest in the firm's forestry operations to the British Columbia Resources Investment Corp., BCRIC said Wednesday.

Corporation president David Helliwell said the Ketcham family, which owns about 90 per cent of West Fraser, made the final refusal to sell.

West Fraser and Daishowa Canada Co. applied recently to the provincial government through Quesnel River Pulp for rights to wood residue. Quesnel River Pulp is a new thermo-mechanical pulp mill to be built in Quesnel.

Meanwhile, Helliwell said, BCRIC has been examining several possible investments in the forest industry and intends to continue its study into additional forestry investments.

SHERATON LANDMARK HOTEL

The big difference between a Mazda 626, and Volvo, BMW or Mercedes is the Mazda 626 is affordable.

The more you look at the Mazda 626, either the 2 door Sport Coupe or 4 door Sport Sedan, the more you'll like the idea of a European-style luxury car at a non-luxurious price. You get the engineering, performance and durability found in the more expensive European imports at a price you can afford. And when you compare the 626 with equally equipped North American cars, you'll find the 626 compares most favourably. The price for the 4 door Sports Sedan is $7295*. And the economy continues at the gas pumps where you'll find the 626 gets a healthy 8.4 L/100 km (54 km/gal).

The luxury is throughout and starts with orthopedically contoured front bucket seats with a lumbar support and height adjustment in the driver's seat. Versatile 60/40 split fold-down rear seat back for extra trunk space. AM/FM stereo radio. Electric clock. Electric remote trunk release. Rear window defroster. Styled steel wheels with steel belted radial tires. Tinted glass and much more.

So if you're looking for a car with luxury appointments coupled with superb performance at an affordable price, see the 626 at your Mazda dealer soon.

* Based on Manufacturers' Suggested List Price on January 14, 1980. Dealers may sell for less. Freight, pre-delivery inspection and tax extra.
 Numbers based on laboratory tests for the Mazda 626 with 5 speed manual transmission using approved Transport Canada test methods. Actual consumption will vary. Urban winter consumption will be significantly greater.

Abacus creditors restless

CALGARY (CP) — Hints were dropped in court Wednesday that creditors of Abacus Cities Ltd. may launch civil action unless they receive money soon.

Meanwhile, Jack MacPherson, counsel for the receiver-manager handling Abacus affairs, successfully applied for an adjournment to April 2 of hearings in Court of Queen's Bench on release of funds.

He said companies involved in the Abacus affair are not producing records as promised.

MacPherson, counsel for Thorne Riddell Inc., said the records had not been produced although Thorne Riddell has provided $90,000 to help get their records in shape.

MacPherson has asked for earlier adjournments. They began Nov. 30.

He said Thorne Riddell was trying to find out which company or group of companies properly owned certain sums of money, and had "an undertaking" from some companies to get their records in shape for audit.

"Each occasion, the companies have breached this undertaking," MacPherson told Justice H. J. MacDonald.

"We have paid them $90,000 to get their records in shape. That money, it seems, has been used to no gain."

Involved is $2.7 million in receipts from property sales activated by the receivership of Abacus, a Calgary tax-shelter development company, since last May.

British Pacific Securities Ltd. is seeking the release of $1,153,000 and 98956 Investments Ltd. is seeking release of $692,163.

Imperial General Properties Ltd. had been counting on receipt of some of the money to retire $3.7 million in preferred stock held by minority shareholders,

Abacus defaulted on a Dec. 1 payment because the court had adjourned its hearing.

Bonds

TORONTO (CP) — Prices advanced in active trading on the Canadian bond market Wednesday.

The short end of the market rose 20 cents. Mid-, long-term and provincial issues gained three-eighths of a point. Corporates were up one-half.

Day-to-day money was available at 14 per cent.

The market rallied as participants covered short positions and moved in for bargains after a long period of declines.

Investors continued to ignore the long end of the market, an analyst at Levseque, Beaubien Inc. said. Instead, they continued to purchase two- to five-year maturities where the potential capital loss risk is minimal compared to the long end.

Dollar's strength interest easer?

OTTAWA (CP) — The strength of the dollar since Monday's election may spare Canadians from another round of interest rate increases, one money market analyst says.

The dollar opened today at 86.71 cents U.S. up from Wednesday's close of 86.69 cents U.S.

Peter Martin, chief economist for investment dealer McLeod, Young Weir Ltd. of Toronto, said there's now just a 50-50 chance the Bank of Canada will follow the lead of the U.S. Federal Reserve Board which last week raised its discount rate to 13 per cent.

Since the board's move, money market analysts speculated the Bank of Canada would have to respond to raise its rate higher than the current record level of 14 per cent.

As long as the dollar remains strong, the bank does not have to use higher interest rates to buoy up the currency, says Martin. As a result, he forecasts no bank rate increase this time around.

Sick of being merely rugby wives or girlfriends, the ladies will get into the action themselves this weekend.

Also, we're heading very rapidly toward a first-of-its-kind universities tournament here and local referees need help. Desperately! But more about that in a moment.

James Bay Nighthawks will come out into the daylight Saturday and play the feature game of the day (they kick off at 2 p.m.) on Macdonald Park against a women's rugby team from Western Washington University in Bellingham.

The James Bay girls' captain and fly-half 21-year-old Jill Weinberg says their biggest problem is not with injuries in the rough-and-tumble game but in finding opponents to play them.

"There is a girls' team over in Vancouver," she explains, "called the Jericho Old Girls and we played them about five months ago. But there just aren't enough other teams around."

The James Bay girls are hoping to find quite a bit of competition, however, if they can make a trip down with the JBAA men's team to the big spring tournament in Monterey.

* * *

There should be plenty of good wide open rugby in the University of Victoria's international tournament set for March 13 to 15. Teams from New Zealand, England, America and Canada will be taking part.

Viking coach Bruce Howe says the Auckland team coming is one of the top two university sides in New Zealand and Exeter University is probably among the top four university teams in England.

"These two will be the tournament favorites although the University of California in Los Angeles (UCLA) won the recent Santa Barbara tournament and has five U.S. national team players aboard," Howe explains.

UCLA and Exeter will be in section "A" for round-robin play in the tourney along with the University of British Columbia and Brigham Young University. Teams in section "B" will be the University of California at Berkeley, Auckland, York University in Toronto and UVic.

After round-robin games on the Thursday, the top two teams from each division go into the championship round for semi-finals under lights at UVic's McCoy Road field Friday night and a final at Centennial Stadium at 3 p.m. on the Saturday. The bottom two teams in each section after round-robin play go into the consolation playoffs. A match to decide third and fourth positions will be played at 1:30 p.m. on the last day.

* * *

And finally, the great work being done by the Vancouver Island Rugby Referees Society is being recognized with two of its members — Jan Curnow and Keith Morrison being invited overseas.

Curnow will go to Wales in September to represent Canada at the Welsh Rugby Union's centenary celebrations and Morrison has been selected by the Canadian Rugby Union to go to Europe in the fall to attend clinics and do a bit of refereeing.

But, while this is indeed an honor for the little Island society it also has its problems. It is, in fact, much too little!

"We are very short of referees," explains the society president Wynn Gittins. "We have only nine active referees on the Island and this often means people have to referee two games in one day."

The society can do with at least another six refs right now and anyone interested in helping out is urged to call Wynn at 592-3415 or Bill Hutchinson at 598-6564.

New recruits will be given instruction on the art of refereeing and, of course, won't be expected to handle big games until they're experienced.

* * *

Apart from its size, there is something quite unusual about the Island Rugby Referees Society.

"In an attempt to raise the standard of rugby here, we now subject all our referees to rather stringent physical fitness tests," Gittins points out.

Having fitter referees means more keeping up with the play, fewer bad calls and therefore fewer fights and bad feelings. There's no doubt about it — the standard of rugby has picked up.

And the Island refs have become pace-setters, too.

"These fitness tests are unique in Canada," says the president, "and they are now being copied in the rest of the country and in the United States, too!"

USOC chief blasts Carter

No choice but follow decision

WASHINGTON (Reuter) — Robert Kane, head of the United States Olympic Committee, today criticized the Carter administration for saying its decision to boycott the Olympic games in Moscow was irrevocable.

But he added that the USOC would have no choice but to go along with the government-urged boycott, imposed in retaliation for the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

Kane, in a television interview at the Lake Placid site of the Winter Olympics, was reacting to the government's flat insistence on a U.S. boycott of the Moscow Games after Wednesday's deadline for a Soviet withdrawal from Afghanistan had passed.

"I don't think anything is irrevocable," he said. "Only the foolish and the dead say anything is irrevocable."

Kane said such categorical statements by the government at this stage were not wise because world conditions could change between now and when the Games started in July.

If such changes happened, American athletes, whom he said saw themselves as unwitting victims of high government policy, should have a right to compete in Moscow.

Kane added that for American athletes to go to Moscow, the Soviet capital would "have to be a more appropriate place to hold the Games" than it was now.

Kane said the USOC, which already has said it would observe a boycott if the government wished, could not make a final decision before its meeting April 11-13.

But he said the outcome of the meeting was not in doubt.

"If he (Carter) states that it is in the national interest not to be at Moscow, I'm sure the USOC will follow his admonition," he said.

Kane said many American athletes were not happy with their government's move.

"On the whole they don't care whether they shoot baskets in a gymnasium in Moscow or whether they run on a track in Moscow. They want to compete, they want to compete in the Olympic Games."

Canada's surprise spoiled

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. (CP) — After an absence of 12 years, Canada's return to Olympic hockey ended in elimination as a young national team fought the Russians all the way but lost a thriller 6-4 on Wednesday night.

Canada surprised everybody and appeared headed for the upset of the tournament by leading the Soviet squad 3-1 early in the second period, but the Big Red Machine exploded for four third-period goals to enter the medal round with the only perfect 5-0 record.

Aleksei Kasatonov scored for the Russians with 13 seconds left in the middle period and Boris Mikhailov and Aleksandr Golikov, each with his first of two goals for the night, gave the Soviet Union a 4-3 lead after 2:05 of play in the third, scoring just 12 seconds apart.

Dan D'Alvise tied it exactly one minute later when Soviet defenceman Sergei Starikov fell and the Canadian centre walked in alone to beat veteran goaltender Vladislav Tretiak. But Mikhailov and Golikov added their second goals to wrap things up.

It was as if a part of themselves had died along with the country's medal hopes for Clare Drake and Lorne Davis, two-thirds of the Canadian Olympic hockey team's coaching staff.

"I thought we played with a lot of heart and enthusiasm but we weren't able to sustain our play defensively," Drake offered. "We lost our poise in our own end, started to chase them and that cost us the game."

Despite the loss, the partisan crowd at the Olympic Field House gave the Canadian team a thunderous ovation at the end of the game.

"Both Lorne (fellow-coach Lorne Davis) and I were very proud for our players and the program," Drake said of the outpouring of appreciation.

The Soviet Union and Finland qualified in the Red Division and Sweden and the United States in the Blue Division. The four countries begin medal play on Friday night with the Russians meeting the U.S. and Sweden playing Finland.

Sweden eliminated Czechoslovakia, winning 4-2, while the U.S. edged West Germany by the same score.

Canada and Finland wound up tied for points in the Red Division, each with 3-2 marks. Finland defeated the Netherlands 10-3 on Wednesday night and earned a medal berth.

Under Olympic rules, two-way ties are first broken by the result of the game played between the clubs. In Finland's case, it defeated Canada on Monday night 4-3.

In the two medal events on Wednesday, Alpine skier Henri Wenzel of Liechtenstein and speed skater Bjoerg-Eva Jensen of Norway were the hottest numbers as spring-like weather spread a thaw over the Olympic sites.

Wenzel, the World Cup champion, took a firm grip on the gold medal in the women's giant slalom with the fastest time in the first run — one minute, 14.33 seconds.

Jensen, a 20-year-old student, came close to the world record in winning the women's 3,000-metre race — the last of the women's speed-skating program.

Sports tonight

Television coverage will begin at 5 on Channel 8, 7 on Channel 2 and 8 on Channel 4.

Wrap-up features will be shown at 11:30 on Channel 4 and 11:45 on Channels 2 and 8.

Basketball and hockey provide sports fans with live local action.

Rangers snap losing streak

Times News Services

A forward in a scoring slump and a defenceman out of position combined Wednesday night to help New York Rangers put the brakes on a three-game losing skid.

Don Murdoch, distressed by trade reports, scored his first goal since Jan. 11 and defenceman Tim Bothwell notched his second of the season to snap a 1-1 tie and the two goals boosted the Rangers to a 4-1 win over Edmonton Oilers.

Murdoch has had his troubles finding the net — he was benched by coach Fred Shero while the Rangers were losing to Hartford Whalers on Monday — and the Rangers have been struggling. Wednesday's win moved New York to ninth spot in over-all league standings with a record of 26 wins, 24 defeats and nine ties.

Murdoch's goal was his 23rd of the season.

Elsewhere, on a night when home teams won all the games, the Penguins handed Detroit Red Wings a 7-5 setback in Pittsburgh, the Black Hawks defeated Toronto Maple Leafs 4-2 in Chicago, the Sabres edged Winnipeg Jets 4-3 in Buffalo and the Kings defeated Boston Bruins 3-0 in Los Angeles.

Defencemen Ron Stackhouse and Randy Carlyle scored in the last 2:28 of the game to give Pittsburgh its win. Stackhouse had two goals, including the winner, as the Penguins managed their second win in 10 games. Detroit is winless in its last eight games.

By winning its eighth game in its last 11 starts, Chicago took sole possession of fifth spot in over-all league standings. The Leafs had won three in a row.

Victoria gets the 'Blues' with showbiz on the side

By MAX LOW

What has a 185-foot banana split and the exercise of stuffing as many dollar bills as you possibly can into your pockets got to do with baseball?

Nothing, you say. Then you'd be wrong!

Read on.

The ill-fated Mussels will be back for another season in the Northwest Single "A" Baseball League this summer, only this time they're putting forward a new face as the Victoria Blues and are promising more razzmatazz than ball-playing.

Break the Bank is a stunt that will highlight the season opener at Royal Athletic Park on June 17 and is only one of 33 promotions promised by the club's new general manager Lorne Barnswell of Victoria.

That game, the baseball that is, will be against Walla Walla Padres and will be the first of 35 home contests on 33 different days (there are two double-headers) and Barnswell told a press conference Wednesday night he hopes to have a good promotion lined up for every home game.

Only two other promotions so far are definite, however — a local radio station-sponsored 10,000-metre run and the construction of the giant banana split by Dairy Queen that will attempt to break the world record of 180 feet held by Denver Bears. It will be consumed by hungry young fans.

In the Royal Bank-sponsored promotion on opening day, a fan will run from home plate to first base where he'll find a pile of money and attempt to stuff as much as he can in his pockets in 15 seconds.

"If the game is boring, then at least the promotions will be exciting," was Barnswell's reasoning. "And if you are still bored, you can always watch the cheerleaders and here are three of them," he said nodding toward Gypsy, Luciana and Kathy, all decked out in appropriate short shorts and tops, and their choreographer Theo Doroshuk who has done the dance arranging at none other than the New York New York disco.

When asked if he didn't think the product could sell itself, Barnswell said he thought it needed a little help. Victoria had a winning team yet drew only around 250 to 300 fans each game and the new owner Bob Peden of Victoria is left with $35,000 of the former owner's debts to pay off.

The main sponsor this season will be Labatt Breweries of Victoria and director of player personnel will again be Van Schley of Los Angeles, who has agreed to supply the team with a minimum of 15 players.

"Eugene Emeralds were the most successful team in the league last year," Barnswell explained, "and they had 32 special promotions, so that's what we're going for this time."

That doesn't mean, however, they won't be concentrating on the game of baseball.

"Van has assured us we're going to have one of the best three teams in the league and should win the Northern Division," the general manager said.

The club will offer books of 34 tickets (good for any game) at $35 a book and are hoping that as well as individuals, places like hotels will buy them and give tickets away to tourist guests. Admission is $2.50 per game.

The whole thing — the tickets, the stunts and the new face — is, of course, geared toward getting more people into Athletic Park. As Barnswell said, there are a lot of things on in Victoria in the summer, including the Shamrocks, the Budgets and Western Speedway.

"But we feel if we do things properly we can get between 500 and 1,000 a game," ventured Peden. "Somewhere in there would be a nice figure . . . and it will keep us here."

Coomber still has chance; Martin remains unbeaten

Times News Services

Who says it doesn't pay to steal?

Stacey Coomber's Nanaimo rink relied on theft Wednesday for a 7-4 victory over Nova Scotia and, all of a sudden, British Columbia is very much in contention for the Pepsi Cola Trophy in the Canadian junior men's curling championships being played at Sault Ste. Marie.

The Nanaimo rink stole two points coming home to seal the victory over Nova Scotia and record its fifth win in its last six games.

B.C. coach Howard Christopherson said: "We were in deep trouble in the 10th but got out of it with the hit-and-stick from Stacey (skip Stacey Coomber). That turned the end around and gave us the win we needed desperately."

Earlier in the day, B.C. clipped the Yukon-Northwest Territories 5-3.

Ontario remained in first place with a 7-1 record, losing its first game 8-7 Alberta after blowing a 6-3 lead. Ontario was followed by Quebec at 6-2, Alberta, B.C. and the Yukon-Northwest Territories entry at 5-3 and Northern Ontario at 4-4.

The top three teams advance to the playoffs, beginning Saturday.

* * *

The four-time and defending B.C. champ and twice winner of the national crown, Martin scored a pair of victories to remain unbeaten in the B.C. senior women's showdown at North Vancouver.

Martin's rink defeated Pearl Hiebert of Williams Lake 7-5 and Shirley MacDonald of Fort St. John 6-5 to stretch its record to 5-0. Also unbeaten, at 6-0, is Connie Barker of North Vancouver.

* * *

Former Victorian Dave Wilson, now of Dawson Creek, won his sixth B.C. police championship by defeating Brock Giles of Vancouver 8-6 at Kelowna.

It was the second consecutive title for Wilson, who shared his four other provincial victories and two Canadian championships while in Victoria. He advances to the national final March 9-16 in Thunder Bay, Ont.

Dave Edlund of Vancouver was third and Ed Gee of Chilliwack was fourth in the three-day, 16-rink tournament.

Fine tuneups required

Although both the University of Victoria Vikings and Vikettes have already sewn up their respective Canada West University Athletic Association basketball titles, they still have missions of importance this weekend.

Vikings must stop in their tracks close rivals UBC Thunderbirds, who need at least a split of the two-game series with the Vikes here to retain hope of staying ahead of Calgary and grabbing the other playoff berth.

And the Vikettes will use their two games against UBC Thunderettes to get back in form for their Canada West playoff series the following weekend.

Vikettes play the Thunderettes at 6:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday night at UVic's McKinnon Gym and the Vikings and Thunderbirds meet each night at 8.

The Vikings won by one point in overtime the first night and squeezed out a six-point victory in the second game in their first series, played at Vancouver.

Final league outings for the Vikings will be a two-game series in Saskatchewan next Friday and Saturday (Feb.29 and Mar.1) and the Canada West playoffs will be in the McKinnon Gym Mar.7, 8 and, if necessary, 9. The winner of that goes on to the national universities championships in Calgary starting Mar.13.

The league games with UBC are the last for the Vikettes, who take on Calgary in the best-of-three Canada West playoffs in the McKinnon Feb.29, Mar.1, and, if a third game is needed, Mar.2. Only the winner goes through to the five conference national tournament at Halifax's Dalhousie University Mar.6 to 8, although the runner-up has the chance of getting there, too, as one of two wild card teams.

Vikettes had no problem beating UBC twice earlier in the season but the Thunderettes showed a lot of improvement last weekend in winning their first game of the season against Alberta in Vancouver.

"We've had some poor performances lately," says Vikettes' coach Kathy Shields. "We didn't really play well in beating Simon Fraser University Tuesday and so we will be looking for some improvement this weekend.

MacKenzie powers DataTech

Brian MacKenzie fired 34 points Wednesday to lead DataTech to an 88-79 victory over Cuckoo Clock in Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League action at Central Junior High School.

The victory was the 12th straight for DataTech and set the stage for a game against first-place Henderson Realty tonight at 9 at Central.

Bob Burrows added 24 points for DataTech and Gord Hoshal was the high gun for Cuckoo with 20.

Easy ride for Bays, easier for Spartans

Claremont Spartans had a little easier time than Oak Bay but the Barbarians still enjoyed a breeze as both teams pushed unbeaten streaks to three matches Wednesday in the Greater Victoria High School Rugby League.

In place of the league tussle, Spartans tripped Brentwood College of Mill Bay 28-3 in an exhibition.

In other matches, Mt. Douglas Mountainmen blanked Stelly's Stingers 16-0, Reynolds Roadrunners nipped Belmont Braves 12-10 and Parkland Panthers shut out Victoria Titans, 6-0.

Death shocks junior league

ST. ALBERT, Alta. (CP) — Trevor Elton, 20-year-old captain of Sherwood Park Crusaders of the Alberta Junior Hockey League, died in hospital Wednesday night after he was injured in a game earlier in the evening.

Elton, whose team was playing the Saints in St. Albert, collapsed during the second period after a body check along the boards. He went into convulsions.

Elton's father, who is a physician, and team physician Max Plageman both examined Elton immediately and sent him to hospital in nearby Edmonton. The game was postponed with Saints leading 4-3.

No penalty was assessed on the check that led to the injury.

Cooper's heroics keep Hawks flying

Times News Services

Victoria Cougars, bidding for the lead in the Western Division, aren't getting much help from Eastern entries in the Western Hockey League. Part of the problem, it seems, is Ed Cooper.

The 19-year-old winger, who missed several weeks of action because of an injury at the start of the season, scored the overtime goal that helped Portland defeat Calgary Wranglers 5-4 in overtime Tuesday. Cooper hit for the winner again Wednesday as the Hawks nipped Medicine Hat Tigers 4-2 to move five points ahead of Victoria.

In Wednesday's only other game, Doug Wickenheiser and Glen Sorenson each scored twice to power Regina Pats to a 5-1 victory over Seattle Breakers and first place in the Eastern Division standings.

Yankee veterans heads for Japan

NEW YORK (AP) — Veteran outfielder Roy White, who played out his option last year after 13 seasons with New York Yankees, has signed to play with Yomiuri Giants of the Japanese Baseball League.

White, 36, said the Giants expect him to play right field and bat ahead of the legendary Sadaharu Oh, Japan's all-time home run king.

Martin to pilot Oakland

CHICAGO (AP) — Billy Martin will manage Oakland A's this season, Charles O. Finley, manager of the American League baseball club, said Wednesday night.

Finley said he was calling a news conference for this afternoon to announce that the former New York Yankees manager had been hired. He said Martin would have a two-year contract but refused to discuss other terms.

Martin was fired by he Yankees last October for a fight in a Bloomington, Minn., hotel bar with a marshmallow salesman.

Finley said he didn't discuss that incident with Martin.

Martin had resigned as manager during the 1978 season after calling Yankees owner George Steinbrinner a "convicted liar," but Steinbrinner rehired him. Later in the season, Martin was replaced by Bob Lemon, who guided the Yankees to the World Series championship.

Martin subsequently replaced Lemon during the 1979 season.

On whether he had received assurances from Martin that the fiery former Yankees infielder would behave himself, Finley said: "I never talk to a man like that.

"He's matured. He's old enough to know right from wrong."

Bout cancelled

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Sunday's scheduled light-heavyweight boxing match between Mike Rossman and Ramon Ranquello has been cancelled because Rossman claims he has bronchitis.

"They say he's got bronchitis. He's missed 12 days of training. There's no possible way he can make that fight," said his brother and cornerman, Andrew Rossman, 20.

At a required pre-fight physical Tuesday, Mike Rossman told the physician for the New Jersey State Athletic Commission that he was ill and not prepared for the scheduled 10-round bout with Ranquello.

Promoter Frank Gelb said the state's doctor reported that Rossman's temperature and other vital signs were normal.

Sources at Resorts International Hotel Casino, where the fight was to be held, said Rossman was really backing out of the fight in a money dispute with his father and former manager, Jimmy DiPiano.

Voodoo is killer: victims' parents

OTTAWA (CP) — Parents of two men killed in a CF-101B Voodoo jet fighter crash here Tuesday have bitterly attacked the aging planes. But armed forces spokesmen say there is no immediate plan to ground the aircraft.

A defence department spokesman said Wednesday the department will not take any action until it receives the findings of a board inquiring into the crash. The accident was the 20th Voodoo crash since the armed forces acquired 66 of them in 1961.

Capt. Robert Abbott, 29, of Ottawa and Capt. Al Oostenbrug, 33, of Stratford, Ont., were killed when the plane attempted a landing at a Canadian forces base in Ottawa. Abbott, the pilot, and Oostenbrug, the navigator, were flying to Ottawa from their home base at Chatham, N.B.

Abbott's father, Robert Abbott of Ottawa, said his son survived two earlier brushes with death in Voodoo fighters. He said the planes "should have been replaced years ago."

Oostenbrug's father, Gil, a Stratford resident, said in a telephone interview "those old planes should never have been flying — I think they're no good, I think they're a bunch of rubbish."

A defence department spokesman said there is no deadline for the four-man board to finish its inquiry. The inquiry could take a week or longer, he said.

Once Abbott was landing a Voodoo in Saskatchewan when the hydraulic system failed forcing him to land much faster than usual, his father said.

"He hit the runway at 250 miles an hour (about 400 km an hour) and crashed into a metal barrier at the end of the runway. The plane was destroyed but somehow he escaped uninjured."

Voodoos have been crashing at a rate of one or two a year in recent years. Fourteen men have died in the 20 accidents.

Major Fred Belliveau, a spokesman at Canadian Forces Base Chatham, N.B., said " age (of the Voodoos is not a concern to the pilots.

"There is really no reluctance, as far as I've heard from the pilots, of their getting into the aircraft and flying tomorrow."

Pension 'proper'

TORONTO (CP) — A lawyer in the firm representing Bryce Mackasey says it would be "absolutely proper" for the former Liberal cabinet minister to continue to accept his Air Canada pension even though he has been elected to Parliament again.

Mackasey was fired as chairman of Air Canada by the Progressive Conservative government last year.

Paul French, an attorney with Mackasey's lawyer Arthur Maloney, said he saw nothing wrong with Mackasey accepting the pension, but he did not know if Mackasey would.

Mackasey, elected Monday in the Hamilton-area riding of Lincoln, is not saying what he will do.

The amount of the pension has not been disclosed.

West different in many ways

They also tend to score higher in murder, attempted murder, assault, rape, robbery, divorce, suicide and alcoholism. And the further west they live, the higher they score.

That's the conclusion of a study conducted by Dr. Gus Thompson, a psychologist at the Alberta Mental Health Services Clinic in Grande Prairie.

"A few years ago, I came across a study which looked at capital punishment and related factors in Canada," Thompson said.

"This study included provincial data on such features as homicide, suicide, divorce, alcohol consumption, crime etc. One noticeable feature was that these negative features appear to show inflated rates moving from east to west in Canada."

When he analyzed the data for correlation with the east-west factor, Thompson found that British Ctlumbia scored highest on most of the problems listed — homicide, rape, assault, divorce, suicide and alcohol consumption while Newfoundland scored lowest on most of the same problems.

The provinces in between scored higher for social problems the further west they were located.

Thompson said it follows from the study that human problems will "pile up" in B.C. and "such being the case, there is no alternative for the responsible mental health professional but to go where our skills are most needed — B.C."

LONG LIFE MEANS MORE THAN JUST A MAINTENANCE-FREE BATTERY FROM FIRESTONE.

The battery in your car provides the electricity needed to crank the engine and fire the spark plugs to start the engine. Without a good battery all the electrical systems fail.
Firestone Long Life batteries give you power to spare for cold weather starts. Oh yes, and maintenance-free means it never needs water added under normal conditions, reduces gassing, virtually eliminates corrosion from the battery and reduces self-discharge.

Extra $4B for oil: Crosbie

OTTAWA (UPC) — Finance Minister John Crosbie says his Liberal successor will have problems finding up to $4 billion in extra revenue to pay Canada's imported oil bills.

"We already have a deficit higher now than was forecast in the budget by $1.1 billion just in the oil-import subsidy alone because of the increase in oil prices (by OPEC)," Crosbie told reporters Wednesday before the Clark cabinet met for the last time to discuss the transfer of power to the Liberals.

"They're going to have to find three or four billion dollars in revenue somewhere, since they're not going to go ahead with the excise tax. They have their work cut out for them."

Crosbie said he shared the blame with other members of the Tory government for the election defeat. But he said his controversial 18-cent-per-gallon increase in the federal excise tax on gasoline was not the reason why his party was defeated.

"I share the blame, naturally. I'll accept it all, I don't care about that," he said. "It (the 18 cents) was the right policy. We didn't lose the election because of the 18-cent excise tax, believe me."

The outgoing finance minister, who sarcastically labeled Pierre Trudeau and the Liberals as "Disco Daddy and the Has-Beens" last fall, indirectly congratulated Trudeau for his majority victory Monday night.

"Well, Disco Daddy has done pretty well," Crosbie said with a smile. "So, I guess we're going to have a lot more discoing."

Petro-Can digging in

CALGARY (CP) — Petro-Canada is looking for a new headquarters now that the state-owned oil company's future is no longer in doubt, a Petro-Canada spokesman said Wednesday.

Bill Foulkes said in an interview that Petro-Canada has been looking for a suitable downtown site for more than a year without success. Petro-Canada now houses its 2,200 Calgary employees in seven locations scattered around the city.

Foulkes said Petro-Canada had been operating under a cloud of uncertainties since May 22 because of the Clark government's "privitization" plans. He said the uncertainties have been removed with the election of a Liberal government.

"We have been carrying on as normal for the past nine months but there has been a certain uncertainty. Now the cloud has been lifted. Petro-Canada was the creation of a Liberal government so now its future is more secure."

Foulkes expected no dramatic changes in Petro-Canada immediately. He also has no idea when the company will find its new headquarters.

StatsCan outlook grim for its own future

TORONTO (CP) — The future of Statistics Canada looks grim if Ottawa does not reassess the organization's purpose and budget, says its outgoing chief statistician.

Peter Kirkham told the Professional Marketing Research Society on Wednesday that recent reorganizations of Statistics Canada could improve its performance if it had more money.

Kirkham joins the Bank of Montreal in Toronto on April 1 as senior vice-president and chief statistician. He said, as a user of the service, he intends to "take an active role in trying to influence its evolution."

He told users of the service their influence "could well determine whether you continue to have one of the best statistical systems in the world, or whether the system is going to be left to be buffetted around in the gales of socio-economic and political events to fend for itself in an increasingly hostile climate."

The bureau's budget "has been dramatically cut over the past five years. In personnel terms, the cuts have been nearly 1,300 person-years down to a new level of 4,400.

"Just the other day, I was informed that Statistics Canada's budget is likely to be cut further for the fiscal year 1980-81."

Stargazers get first dividends

The first photographic plates from the new Canada-France-Hawaii telescope on Mt. Mauna Kea are expected shortly in Victoria for analysis at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory.

The new observatory, which has a 3.66-metre optical telescope, opened last fall atop the 13,825-foot mountain on the main island.

Director Dr. Sidney van den Burgh will be one of the first Canadian astronomers to take part in the facility's guest observer program.

He will leave in early April for three to five days observation time at the Hawaiian observatory.

He will be accompanied by Dr. William Harris, of McMaster University.

Half of the Saanich staff also want to use the new telescope to further their own astrophysical research projects but the difficulty will be to get a share of the limited viewing time available, van den Burgh said.

He hopes six researchers — about one quarter of the staff — might get time on Mauna Kea this year.

Meanwhile, a recent acquisition by the observatory on Little Saanich Mountain will help scientists there interpret the photographic plates from the new telescope.

Van den Burgh said the device — a microdensitometer — was added just before the scientific spending freeze imposed by the Conservative government.

Canadian boycott probable

LAKE PLACID, (UPC) — Dick Pound, president of the Canadian Olympic Association, said Wednesday no western nation, including Canada, can withstand mounting U.S. pressure to support a boycott of the Moscow Olympics.

Pound said the most delicate and difficult issue facing Prime Minister-elect Pierre Trudeau will be the forging of an official Canadian reaction to the U.S. decision Wednesday to boycott the Moscow Games.

In an interview with UPC, Pound, the youngest member of the International Olympic Committee, made his gloomiest statement yet on Canada's hopes to be represented in Moscow.

''But, I have no real doubt,'' said Pound, ''that if it comes down to the crunch the U.S. has enough clout to make it (a boycott) stick.''

Earlier in the day, the U.S. made good on its threat to boycott the Moscow Olympics .

In Ottawa, a spokesman for the Conservative government said the decision on Canada's participation now rests with the Liberal party which won Monday's general election.

Clark wraps up last loose ends

OTTAWA (CP) — A visit by Prime Minister Joe Clark to ailing Gov.-Gen Ed Schreyer today clears the way for Pierre Trudeau's Liberal party to resume governing the country.

Clark also told reporters here Wednesday he does not know when the Liberal administration will be sworn in but said his ministers will remain on the job until their replacements take over.

"The decision as to the date of the swearing-in of the new government rests with the prime minister-elect,'' Clark said as he left the last meeting of his cabinet.

Trudeau has not yet indicated when he would form a government, but his newly-elected MPs and the appointed cabinet will be sworn in by Chief Justice Bora Laskin of the Supreme Court of Canada since Schreyer is recuperating in hospital from emergency surgery Monday for an acute ulcer condition.

Clark said the cabinet meeting was positive and that ministers talked mainly about rebuilding their party ''in areas where that has to be done.''

Other cabinet members, asked their opinions on Clark's continued tenure as leader of the party, gave him unqualified support.

''It's as safe as a church,'' said Finance Minister John Crosbie, the architect of the ''get tough'' federal budget that brought down Clark's government in Parliament Dec. 13 and largely resulted in his election defeat.

Employment Minister Ron Atkey, defeated in his Toronto riding, said Clark will be party leader for the next ''two or three years.''

Perrin Beatty, minister of state responsible for the treasury board, also pledged support for Clark. He said he was an ''honorable man ... who is an asset to the party ... who ran an admirable campaign.''

The cabinet has decided to defer some decisions to their successors, including:

— A final one on the boycott of the Summer Olympics in Moscow. Confidantes say Trudeau will probably wait until about May 24 before deciding whether to support United States President Jimmy Carter's call for an Olympic boycott.

— Which jet fighter to buy from either McDonnell Douglas with its twin-engine F-18 Hornet or General Dynamics and its single-engine F-16. The $2.3 billion sale is for 130 to 150 aircraft.

— How to negotiate a new domestic oil price agreement with Alberta Premier Peter Lougheed who already says Trdueau won't get a better one that that offered Clark last year. Outgoing Energy Minister Ray Hnatyshyn warned Wednesday that Trudeau would have to ''pull some rabbits out of his hat'' to get a better one.

— Whether or not to ask Carter to reconsider his decision to back an oil tanker route along the West Coast as opposed to a cross-Canada pipeline. Clark was hammered throughout the election campaign for not pushing Carter hard enough on the question.

Second pipeline studied by Hydro

By AL FORREST

B.C. Hydro has unveiled a new proposal to construct two natural gas pipelines to Vancouver Island.

It includes Hydro's original plan to run a pipeline from Delta to a point just south of Nanaimo.

But in addition, a Hydro spokesman revealed Wednesday in Victoria, the Crown agency is also considering building a second, smaller pipeline to send some of the natural gas back to Powell River on the Mainland, an area which can't be reached directly from Vancouver because of difficult terrain.

It would help to counter a proposal by Pacific Northern Gas, a subsidiary of Westcoast Transmission, which wants to supply Powell River and Vancouver Island through a single, long pipeline from Williams Lake through the coastal mountains.

They are PNG, Hydro, and Vancouver Island Gas Co., of Nanaimo, a subsidiary of Intercity Gas Utilities Ltd. of Winnipeg

The panel featured spokesmen for the three firms.

They were: Al McPherson, Hydro division manager for natural gas engineering, Norm Didur of Winnipeg, president of Intercity, and Robert O'Shaughnessy of Vancouver, vice-president and general manager of Pacific Northern.

The following points were made at the meeting:

— Two companies are bidding to construct the pipeline, PNG in a northern route and Hydro in the south.

— If the pipeline is constructed, residents could expect to pay between $700 and $800 to convert their oil furnaces to the cheaper fuel.

— The cost of natural gas would be set by the provincial government but would be at least 10 per cent below oil and might be as much as 50 per cent less.

The line would be 69 kilometres long. Once gas arrives on the Island it could be distributed in a Hydro pipeline to be constructed mainly in existing Hydro rights-of-way between Campbell River and Victoria.

A spur line to Alberni is also planned, meaning that natural gas would be available to 70 per cent of Island homes.

Hydro has been studying the proposed natural gas pipeline for more than a decade, he said, but only in the past two years with the escalating price of rival fuels, has the project become economically attractive.

— Natural gas would be the same price in Victoria and Vancouver. In effect, people on the Lower Mainland would help finance the cost of the pipeline.

— Ottawa might pay some or all of the $700 to $800 cost of converting oil furnaces to natural gas.

— And finally, Ottawa and the provincial government would have to approve the project and several hearings might be required. Nobody could state when a decision might be expected.

McPherson said Hydro is studying three route options, all in a narrow belt between Delta and just south of Nanaimo.

McPherson said a natural gas pipeline could not replace the new Dunsmuir power cable which is about to be laid across the strait but would reduce future electricity needs.

O'Shaughnessy said PNG is the logical firm to construct the pipeline because its parent firm, Westcoast Transmission, moves all natural gas found in B.C.

In addition, he said, PNG has had experience constructing a gas pipeline from Prince George to Kitimat and Prince Rupert.

The PNG proposal involves a new direct pipeline from Williams Lake through the coastal mountains to Powell River and across to the Island.

A Squamish lateral line could also supply mills at Port Mellon, Squamish and Woodfibre.

O'Shaughnessy said the pipeline should be built as soon as possible because B.C. has a great surplus of natural gas while it must import about 75 per cent of its crude oil from Alberta.

In addition, he said, the domestic price of natural gas is set in B.C. and not by Ottawa or OPEC.

Didur said his company, Vancouver Island Gas, was established in Nanaimo in 1955 in the expectation that natural gas would be brought to the Island.

The company was recently purchased by Intercity when it became likely that a decision on the line was near.

Didur's company wants the right to sell natural gas on the Island after it has been brought over in a pipeline contructed by Hydro or the PNG.

But Hydro and PNG also want the Island distribution rights.

The National Energy Board would have to approve the pipeline and the question of distribution rights would be made by the provincial government.

They don't call us cheeseheads anymore south of the border after our ambassador in Iran organized the escape of half a dozen American hostages, but the euphoria has worn off.

On a brief holiday in Seattle last week, nobody was particularly effusive to Canadians. One department store clerk praised "all the Canadians had done" and she was sorry to charge us the going exchange rate.

Even the Canadian-owned hotel where we stayed, the fading Olympic which is in the grand style of The Empress here, had a business-as-usual air about it.

Visitors from Canada are attracted by its television commercials advertising an "even Steven" policy on the exchange rate — in effect, a 16 per cent saving — but nobody said a word when we checked in about the general 55 per cent discount prevailing this month.

We found out from a half-page newspaper ad in the local morning dailies.

The Four Seasons chain bought it recently and plans to shut it down in October for renovations, reopening sometime later as a super-luxury hotel. One of the first casualties will certainly be "even Steven." Thanks a lot, fellow Canadians.

Seattle is more worried these days about the invasion of Canadian developers, the latest in a series of speculators who have driven downtown property prices up to record levels.

A Canadian development group called Carma of Calgary recently paid $165 a square foot for a block and a quarter on Second Avenue in the heart of downtown Seattle — a cool $14 million in all — more than three times the going rate for prime space as recently as 1977.

It plans to put up two office towers, one 30 storeys and the other 40, with a total floor space of 1.4 million square feet, says a Seattle paper.

(A comparison: all the retail shopping space in downtown Victoria, including the two big department stores, totals 1.9 million square feet.)

Daon Development, described by The Weekly as "the mammoth Canadian developer" run by Jack Poole of Vancouver, has plans for a 260,000-square foot, 19-storey block at 8th and Olive Way, called the Daon Building, of course.

* * *

While Seattle residents are apprehensive about the effects of the boom on downtown, the Canadians get marginally higher marks for quality.

"The new buildings will feature mediocre architecture, with rare exceptions. The Canadian giants coming into Seattle, however, have more urban sensitivity, (especially in a fondness for mixed office-and-retail projects) than their American counterparts," says The Weekly.

At least that's their reputation south of the border. Maybe we should send them some pictures of the uniformly ugly black towers which dot the downtowns of most big Canadian cities.

Let's hope they don't ruin the most livable city in the U.S. It's a great place to visit, despite those bad memories of what a dump it used to be and the mundane views most travellers see from the ugly freeway that slices south through town.

Vancouver has a beautiful physical setting and an unmatched ethnic flavor, but Seattle comes out ahead on several counts.

There's the incomparable Pike Street public market and the Kingdome with its strong professional sports teams. Hundreds of Canadians go down every summer to watch the Mariners play baseball. Some even have season tickets.

Seattle has a rejuvenated Pioneer Square area that puts Gastown in the shade and a downtown waterfront without fences to keep people out.

The city also has a strong environmental conscience and a fairly enlightened municipal government. Some parts of it still stink — like the incredible Aurora Avenue, the old main highway into Seattle — but Vancouver has its imitators in Surrey and on Kingsway.

All Seatle lacks is a decent transportation link with Vancouver Island. A tunnel to Tsawwassen? Dig it under the strait to Washington state instead. That would make more sense. The tolls on Canadians going down to shop at K-Mart on Sundays would pay for it in no time.

Saanich faces heavy flak on marine park proposal

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY

Saanich will face a flock of angry residents if it creates a "Coney Island atmosphere" by constructing a marine park at Cordova Bay, a retired scientist said today.

Dr. Gordon Baines said most Cordova Bay residents feel a proposal to bulldoze a park after dumping tons of municipal fill along the shoreline will create a carnival atmosphere and is ecologically unsound.

"Dumping fill is a stupid thing to do, it will destroy the beach," said Baines, of 4961 Wesley.

Opponents include a medical doctor and a University of Victoria marine biologist who is an ecology expert, he said.

Storms along the unprotected stretch of waterfront make the project impractical.

"They'll have to have a massive structure to stand up to heavy gales," he said.

And there's no way Cordova Bay's road system can handle the added pressure — heavy truck traffic is already shaking houses, said Baines.

Thurber Consultants were hired by Saanich to do an $8,000 environmental impact study

Residents are annoyed about the unauthorized expenditure, because the project is not part of the local area plan put together last fall, he said.

The study is expected to be completed and handed over to Saanich council by the end of the month.

Cordova Bay Residents Association president Eric Robinson told the Times he doesn't know anybody who approves the project and most believe it would drastically change the neighborhood.

Robinson said residents believe increased traffic created by the park will bring all kinds of problems, including congested roads and landslides.

"They should call it a marine dump, not a marine park," said one woman who said the proposal is a thinly disguised attempt to get rid of municipal fill.

But Mayor Mel Couvelier said today residents are wrong if they think getting rid of fill is the municipality's only motive.

Council also wants to create a recreational asset that will last for years, he said.

Council hasn't approved the project — the study is to determine environmental side effects.

Saanich won't create a park if it proves ecologically unsound, it will just go on dumping fill into the saltchuck somewhere else, Couvelier stated.

The multi-use park would probably contain a boat marina similar to the one in Oak Bay, he said.

The entire operation will be self-sustaining because local truckers would pay a fee to dump fill in the marine park and the boat marina would collect revenues, Couvelier said.

The municipality has one of the longest stretches of coastline on the island and should be making more use of it, he said.

No switch on ferry decision — Fraser

Transportation Minister Alex Fraser said today there is absolutely no chance the government will reverse its decision to retire the elderly Princess Marguerite.

The Queen of Prince Rupert definitely will be used on the Victoria-Seattle run this summer, Fraser said.

Three unions representing employees of the B.C. Steamship Co. Ltd. have written to Fraser asking that the Maggie be put back into service.

Using the smaller, slower Rupert will mean 95,000 fewer passengers brought into Victoria this summer and could eventually spell the end of the Victoria-Seattle service, the unions say.

But Fraser is adamant.

"The government came up with a decision and I don't anticipate any change. As much as the government would like to come up with something better, I think it's impossible at this time."

He said engineering studies show it is unsafe to keep the Marguerite in service.

"The government isn't prepared to take the further risk that might be involved," he said.

(The Canadian Coast Guard, however, has consistently given the Marguerite a clean bill of health.)

Fraser said no decision has yet been made on a schedule for the Queen of Prince Rupert but he claimed the proposed two round trips per day will not be the big money-loser many critics claim.

"The Marguerite's fuel consumption was an absolute disgrace and what the Rupert saves on fuel will be used to offset the cost of double-crewing for the twice-a-day runs," the minister claimed.

Fraser said the government did the best it could with the vessels available but admitted nobody is happy with the arrangement.

The people of Victoria are unhappy with the Queen of Prince Rupert and the people of the mid-coast are unhappy with the six-week gap in service between the beginning of April when the Rupert goes into drydock and mid-May when the refurbished Queen of Surrey resumes the Port Hardy-Prince Rupert run.

Fraser said he will ask the B.C. Ferry Corp. to consider leasing a small vessel to serve isolated Ocean Falls and Bella Bella during that six-week period.

Okay, thugs, lay off the cabbies

By DEREK SIDENIUS

Victoria Taxi Ltd. president Bud MacLean has a message for would-be robbers:

Don't rob us any more, because it won't be worth your while.

Starting this week none of MacLean's drivers will carry more than $20 in cash when driving the late-night shift.

The decision follows two recent incidents in which drivers for the company have been beaten and robbed.

The first was Feb. 8 when Claus Hellmodt, 58, was attacked in the 600-block Moss, beaten and robbed of about $100.

The second was last Friday when another driver who has not been identified was attacked by two passengers in Sooke who tried to steal his cab.

MacLean, president of the Greater Victoria Taxi Owners Association, said he's concerned about the vulnerability of taxi drivers.

He said limiting cash is one of the simplest forms of deterrence and has worked effectively in other areas.

"It's only common sense. If you reduce the amount of money, you reduce the amount of risk."

Bull said drivers are constantly being encouraged not to carry much money.

But Tom Fristoe, a driver with Esquimalt Taxi, said that while he can understand the need to reduce risks, the $20 limit is impractical.

MacLean doesn't feel the new system will pose problems for taxi patrons, noting many service stations demand exact change after normal business hours and there is a trend for late-night stores to limit the amount of cash they keep on hand.

MacLean believes that because of the growing need to take precautions, everyone in the taxi industry will have to eventually follow suit.

He said offences against taxi drivers have risen sharply in recent months in Victoria, although his view isn't shared by everyone in the industry.

Bruce Woodward, manager of Bluebird Cabs, the city's largest taxi company, said there have been only two or three incidents involving his drivers in the past year and that is about average.

However, MacLean said he knows of eight incidents so far this year where drivers have been robbed, beaten up or had their vehicles vandalized.

Only this week, he said, a man jumped on the hood of one of his cabs parked outside the Surfside Club on Wharf Street and kicked in the windshield.

While none of the taxi operators talk about it, it is not unusual for a cabbie to put a tire iron under his seat . . . just in case he has to defend himself.

Most companies also have elaborate code systems for cabbies to alert dispatchers of possible danger.

MacLean said cab companies in the U.S. have been forced to take even greater precautions than those contemplated here.

Some companies have installed safes in the cars.

But the ultimate security, said MacLean is computerized dispatching.

A company with such a system can monitor taxi movements on a video screen and its dispatcher knows precisely where the cab is at all times.

As one operator said, "It's like Big Brother watching you."

But then again 1984 isn't that far off.

Tofu — the next yogurt? A new fast food? Maybe so. The potential for this relatively new, low cost, high protein entry into the Canadian food market is mind-boggling. Tofu sales are akin to those of gold — soaring. One U.S. firm predicted Tofu's annual sales growth this year will be in the 25 to 30 percent neighbourhood. And that's without any promotion!

The Chinese, Japanese and Koreans have been snacking for centuries on this bland-tasting curd.

Tofu is very simply a soy bean-derived curd originally produced as animal feed. It has a soft, almost custard-like texture, with a "nothing" taste. Tofu's beauty lies in the fact that it can replace meat, fish and cheese in our diet! It's a real boon for everyone from vegetarians to cholesterol and sodium watchers.

Scrambled, fried, braised, broiled, baked, deep-fried — even barbecued, it's great. Cube it, dice or slice or crumble for meat and casserole dishes. Toss it into soups and salads. And by adding a sweet flavouring, transform it into desserts. It's super mashed into dips, sauces and salad dressings. Endless possibilities. To top it all off — the raw materials needed ro produce Tofu are easily available and it can even be produced at home! (It's made in a similar manner as cottage cheese). To meet the rising demands of the western market, more than 60 Tofu-producing U.S. companies have been established since 1976. Food Product Development magazine reported that one dairy in New England increased Tofu production from 500 pounds a week in 1977 to nine tons per week in 1978 and the dairy expects revenues of some $750,000 for '79.

Nutritionally speaking, it's ideal. A 5¼ ounce serving of Tofu has about 80 calories (600 calories in the same amount of minced steak), seven grams of protein, four each of carbohydrate and fat. As far as fatty acid content is concerned, there's one gram saturated fatty acid and two grams polyunsaturated. It's zero cholesterol and sodium level has endeared it to those on restricted diets because of heart disease. Tofu is also an excellent source of thiamine and has some riboflavin, niacin, calcium, iron and phosphorous. It's the only vegetable protein classed as high quality protein.

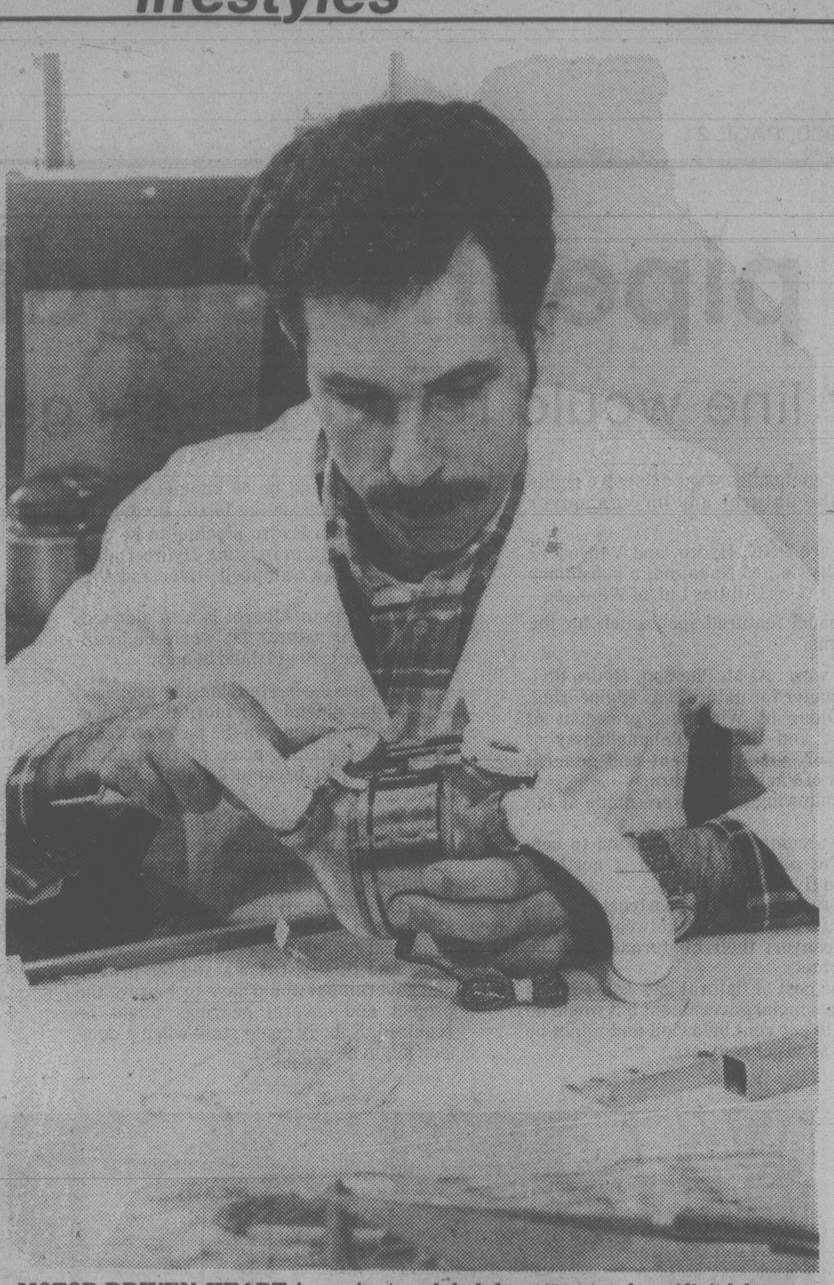
Western consumer acceptance of Tofu will continue to mushroom as more and more firms jump on the bandwagon and modify (as they did with yogurt) the current product to suit the Canadian demand for a more taste-tempting goodie. Sales will be helped by the fact we're into ethnic foods now, we have a growing Oriental population and we also love to quick stir-fry foods. Tofu is also a natural because of current concern about how much fat we eat and our need to cut food preparation time way down because of our lifestyle. As meat costs continue to soar, we're looking for suitable substitutes. And we've changed our thinking. When soy bean products were introduced a few years ago, consumers turned up their noses. Not now! We're interested in "healthy" food products, particularly those of plant origin.

Because Tofu blends so well with spices, the recipe possibilities are endless. It's a good substitute for higher priced cheeses in lasagne, pizzas or grilled cheese sandwiches (top with a tomato slice and a few herbs). To satisfy our demand for "sweets", it can be used in cheese cakes and pastries. Serve it scrambled for breakfast, crumbled into salads for lunches and stir-fried with vegetables for dinner.

Currently, it's available in three forms. Firm Tofu has the highest soy bean-protein content; medium, slightly less and soft, the least. The water content of Tofu is reversed with the firm Tofu having the lowest water content and soft, the highest. Cost-wise, it's about $.80 per pound at oriental supermarkets and health food stores.

Perishability appears to be Tofu's main problem. Refrigerate it, and use it within a week.

Watch out for two other imported soy-products — Indonesia's Tempeh and Japan's Miso, to start making healthy inroads.



MOTOR-DRIVEN HEART is a giant step closer to realization at Penn State's Hershey Medical Centre. Dr. Gerson Rosenberg of the Hershey staff checks dimensions of the unit that will soon get its first pre-implant trial with a calf. Full implant is scheduled for 1981. total artificial hearts for humans are predicted by 1990. Power for the motor comes from a normal alternating current wall outlet. A battery pack would permit patients tomove around easily for up to six hours.

Medics pass some credit on to others

TORONTO (CP) — Surgeons now perform tricky operations ranging from attaching a toe where a thumb used to be to open heart surgery. But many of them say a lot of the credit belongs elsewhere — to the teams operating with them and to technological advances.

Dr. Donald Wilson, a heart surgeon and chief of surgery at University of Toronto, says surgeons are really no better than they were 10 years ago.

He said the difference lies in advances in other fields — diagnostic tools such as computerized x-ray scanners and fibre-optic instruments that let doctors see inside the body, operating microscopes that magnify tissue and tiny microsurgery tools that join blood vessels with sutures the size of an eyelash or monitoring instruments that watch a patient before, during and after surgery.

"Nowadays, you know what's happening right away, instead of finding out too late that lung pressure is up, or there's too much fluid, or the heart is failing," Wilson said.

Dr. Neil Watters, chief of general surgery at the university, says surgeons now spend at least as much time in diagnosis as at the operating table. And they may decide drugs or radiation are better treatment than surgery.

Both Watters and Wilson emphasize the teamwork involved in modern surgery, particulary improved nursing care.

"Nurses specialize in the same way surgeons do," Watters said. "So we have vascular surgery nurses, neosurgery nurses — they become experts by working with the same team in the operating room.

Ian Munro, plastic surgeon at the Hospital for Sick Children in Toronto, is known world-wide for repairing defects in the head and face. He recently listed the specialists involved in a single case:

A neursurgeon, neuroradiologist, eye specialist, ear, nose and throat specialist, anesthetist, orthodontist, dentist, speech pathologist, audiologist, psychiatrist, psycholigist, social worker, geneticist, medical artist and facial anthropologist. The last named helps work out appropraite distances between ears, eyes, nose and other features.

Besides the operating microscope and tiny instruments used in microsurgery, surgeons have other technological aids to help their patients.

Knitted, braided and woven synthetic yarns are doubling for arteries, and used to patch heart defects and repair tendons, bladders and bile ducts.

These new materials can withstand the body environment without damaging nearby tissue, causing blood clots or toxic reactions.

He's recently been conducting a survey — commissioned by the Chock Full O' Nuts fast food chain — on personality differences between hamburger eaters and hot dog eaters.

To Miss Lillian draft registration for women is more than a moral or legal point — it's a point of honor. Says Jimmy Carter's mother: "I think we have made so much about equal rights, including me, that most women would be insulted if they were not asked to register."

Hazleton — promoting her new book, Israeli Women: Reality Behind the Myths in Columbus, Ohio, says, "Army duty without combat roles for women will only prolong and encourage sexual inequality, reinforcing stereotype sex roles." And, she laments, "What this means in Israeli society is that, according one psychologist, women come out of the army more inclined to follow traditional female roles than when they went in."

abby

Dear Abby:

My husband (I'll call him Leo) was having an affair with his secretary, and I found out about it. He broke it off, and we are now getting counselling. Leo says he wants to make our marriage work, and I believe him.

I was (and still am) devastated by this affair, and want to do everything I can to restore our once-wonderful marriage since we have a beautiful family.

I told Leo that I cannot feel comfortable as long as that woman is his secretary. He tried to get rid of her, but she threatened to sue the company.

I can't stand the thought of that woman staying in my husband's office. Is there any way he can get rid of her without causing a nasty law suit? She was working elsewhere in the company when the affair began, and she asked Leo to hire her as his secretary.

Nameless

Dear Nameless:

There is nothing to prevent a person from suing. Win or lose, the suit alone in this case could initiate some embarrassing publicity. Consult a lawyer, and let him guide you.

Dear Abby:

My husband is crazy about my feet! He gets turned on just playing with my toes.

I do have pretty feet, but I never thought my feet would be sexually stimulating. My husband is a kind, gentle and loving man, but this thing he has about my feet puzzles me.

Pretty Feet

Dear Pretty Feet:

It's normal for a person with a foot fetish, and your husband has one. According to Freud, the foot is a primitive sex symbol.

There are more foot freaks around than you suspect. Ask any podiatrist.

Dear Abby:

I'm a 19-year-old girl who wears contact lenses. I recently spent the weekend at a girlfriend's house, and her little sister was fascinated as she watched me put in my contact lenses. She had never seen anything like that before, so I very carefully explained that contact lenses were "little eyeglasses" made especially for me, and she should never put anything into her eye that was not made especially for that purpose!

I made sure she understood me because I once heard of a child who had often watched her mother put in her contact lenses. The child found a small piece of broken glass and, wanting to imitate her mother, stuck the broken glass into her eye and subsequently lost the sight in that eye.

I hope you find this worth passing on, Abby.

Dear Laurie:

I do. Thanks for writing.

New Housewife emerging

By MARILYN HOFFMAN
Christian Science Monitor

Does the dutiful, cheerful "little housewife" still exist? Is she living idyllically in her suburban split-level home, chauffering the children, shopping, cooking and critically eyeing the state of her laundry or the shine on her kitchen floor?

If anyone doubts there are still housewives around, surveys in the U.S. show that most major North American advertisers apparently think so, since they continue blithely to beam commercials out to that vast target group known as "housewives, aged 18-49," based on market surveys that label 36 per cent of women in North America as housewives.

Declares Rena Bartos, a senior vice president and director of communications development at the J. Walter Thompson advertising agency in New York and perhaps advertising's best-known expert on the women's market, many homemakers within that 36 per cent consider themselves atypical, and they plan later to work outside the home. She also said that 50 per cent of U.S. women have joined the work force, and many of the remaining 14 per cent are in school or retired.

Traditional housewives now are a minority group.

Paradoxically, she said that marketing leaders who pride themselves on knowing what's what seem to have been looking the other way during the last 10 years.

Mrs. Bartos, a trained sociologist and researcher, began in 1972 to study in depth this woman's market, tracking the social changes and trends that were affecting the marketing of products and ideas. She analyzed all her company's data resources and began to seek answers to some pertinent questions of her own, which she also fed into the company computer.

One day, she said, "I saw a new picture of women consumers emerging. It was clear that things change dramatically for a woman when she marries, when she goes back to work, when her children leave home and when she becomes single again through widowhood or divorce."

Mrs. Bartos then saw that the women's market fell naturally into four distinct segments, in each of which the women have different motivations, are committed to different lifestyles, favor different products and shop differently.

Working women, she found, could be classified as committed career types or as "just-a-job" workers who seek jobs out of economic necessity, desire for independence or to add interest to their lives.

Homemakers could be divided into those who plan to remain at home and those who plan to find jobs later, most often after young children are in school.

Mrs. Bartos and her computer have come up with a few generalizations about each of these four groups:

Career women are the best-educated, the most style-conscious and the heaviest users of magazines and newspapers and they listen most to radio. They are the most likely to plan ahead, to be cautious and to be brand-loyal when they market.

Shopping is only part of new homemaker's role

Career types have the strongest and most positive self-images and see themselves as more broad-minded, self-assured, efficient and independent than the women in the other groups. They do, however, admit to being impulsive buyers.

The just-a-job working women claim to be "experimental" when they shop and not particularly loyal to brand names. They are more likely to try new products and new brands when they go marketing. In all ways, they are closest to the "norm."

The planning-to-work housewife is the youngest of the four groups, and she echoes many of the same self-perceptions as the career woman. She is intelligent and aware and well-educated. She is the most active user of all media and the most active consumer. She expects more help with the children from her husband, and also watches the most TV.

The more traditional homemaker tends to think of herself as kind, refined and reserved and not as brave or dominating. In general, she is the oldest and has the lowest level of education. She is an economy-minded shopper who rarely buys on impulse and thinks of herself as more easily persuaded than the others do.

Mrs. Bartos found husbands of working women to be far more likely to help around the house than are husbands of homemakers. The stay-at-home women are the least likely to expect to receive help from husbands and children, she said.

Women in all the categories have far more voice in the way families spend their money than they did a generation ago, according to her studies.

Mrs. Bartos said that social change in women's lives is not reflected in most of the advertising we see today. Ads continue to portray women as traditional housewives and mothers, shoppers, cleaners and family cooks and to minimize their roles in the business and professional world and in community affairs.

However, more and more manufacturers and advertisers are beginning to take this more diverse women's market seriously. Some have moved from daytime to prime-time slots on TV and radio to reach more of the working women. Many are updating their images of women in their commercials.

A recent study made by Mrs. Bartos indicates that women in all four categories approve of advertising that presents such contemporary points of view as a young father diapering his baby, a middle-aged woman dressing up to go back to work and a young woman asking all the right questions when she goes to purchase a new car. Traditional household commercials that depict women as sex objects or household drudges were criticized by respondents.

Mrs. Bartos said she only records and reports change, she doesn't bring it about. But she is too modest. When she talks and writes, people pay attention, the kind of people who can effect change.

Housewives body woos members

Housewives do exist and Canada, according to a press release received by The Times Wednesday from an eastern group called Canadian Housewives Register.

"At the beginning of the 1980s, Canadian Housewives Register reaffirms its original purpose as an organization for intelligent, lively-minded women and at the same time acknowledges the changing horizons of women in Canada today," states the release, written by CHR spokesman Libby Bond. "Many more women work outside the home than in 1967 when the CHR was founded, and this change is reflected in our membership."

The release does not state how many have joined CHR, but mentions that it is not restricted only to full-time homemakers.

"We recognize that women in the work force often have as little opportunity to participate in discussues and non-domestic topics as somen who work in the home," said Bond.

Last year, says the release, the membership decided to pick a single theme to work on this year to provide a common forum for individual housewives and women's groups scattered across the nation.

Housewives registry logo

"The subject chosen was The Portrayal of Women in the Media — a topic conveniently broad enough to enable groups to focus on many aspects from stereotyping and its influence to the way women are portrayed in news reports. Some members are planning to offer their personal opinions to the Canadian Radio and Television Committee hearings on Women in Television Advertising in Toronto on March 5," said Bond."

The CHR has been a member of the National Action Committee on the Status of Women since 1977 and this year four members will be attending a NAC conference March 14 to 17 in Ottawa, she said, and that women wishing to know more about the organization may write her c/o P.O. Box 365, Brampton, Ont., L6V 2L3.

"We would like to hear from women who would be prepared to organize a group in their locality," wrote Bond. "We will give full support and guidance to all who contact us."

Dizziness laid to coughing pressure

By DR. L. L. COLEMAN

I am 65 years old. My heart and lungs were found to be in good shape during a recent physical checkup. I have one problem that bothers me. Whenever I begin to cough I get a sudden feeling of dizziness. Is it possible that my doctor has overlooked some important problem I have with my heart or lungs?

Mr. E.C.T.

Dear Mr. T.:

A very complicated mechanism exists in the body that may explain the sensation you describe. Some people find that when they strain hard during bowel movements a similar sense of light-headedness and dizziness occurs. Rapid overbreathing can also produce a like sense of discomfort.

Scientists who have tried to determine the exact reason have found that coughing can produce an increase of pressure within the chest. This, then, decreases the ready flow of blood to the heart and brain.

Among elderly people, particularly those who have some narrowing of the blood vessels, the simple act of coughing can be responsible for momentary light-headedness.

There is also a condition know as the "carotid sinus reflex." A small network of nerves lies on the carotid, the major artery that goes from the heart to the brain. With coughing, and hyperventilation, the sinus reflex can cause dizziness. (This sinus has no relationship to the nasal sinuses.)

Since your heart and lung examination has been proved normal, there should be no concern about these episodes of discomfort. A recheck with your doctor will substantiate that no problem has been overlooked.

Dear Doctor:

I have had two attacks of sciatica in a year. I have not been able to attribute the onset of these attacks to anything I did. What causes sciatica?

Mr. J.J.

Dear Mr. J.:

The sciatic nerve is probably the longest nerve in the body. From the point where it emerges from the spinal cord, it sends branches to the muscles of the legs, the thighs and the buttocks. Consequently the pain associated with sciatica can be distributed over a wide area.

The causes of sciatica are many. Injury, herniated disks, arthritis, alcoholism and lead poisoning are only a few of the causes. Some cases of sciatica have been attributed to the injection of a drug in the buttock.

Since there are so many possible causes, and since sciatica can be confused with other types of low back pain, it takes arduous study to track down the exact cause. Yet, this is absolutely essential if any treatment program is to be instituted.

Oven fruit dryer with produce sliced for drying

Dry it and you'll like it

By BEATRICE COMAS
Christian Science Monitor

When I received a leaflet in the mail describing a fruit dryer consisting of oven dryer, racks and drying crystals, I was reminded of the Neanderthals, who discovered fruits that had dried in the sun. Later, men realized they could dry fruits and vegetables during the seasons of plenty and undry them during the lean seasons.

In early North America this job was made more interesting when disguised as an apple-paring or corn-husking party. The boys took the green corn for husking and the girls divided the apples for paring. As they cored and quartered them, they tossed the pieces into buckets of cold water. When finished, the pieces would be strung with a darning needle into long ropes of fruit. These, and sometimes rings of pumpkin, would be hung near the kitchen stove or in the sun to dry.

Once dry, they were put in bags and stored in the attic to be used as needed. They either were eaten as a snack or made into cakes and pies. Pumpkin was good for either pie or soup. The dried fruit pies were put outdoors, in the ice house or in some other storage area where the temperature would remain below freezing.

By 1845 fruits were being dried mechanically. Pretreatment by sulfur, chemical dipping and steam blanching replaced the old sacks of dry, hard discolored fruit. However, if you are concerned about chemical treatment, you might prefer to dry your fruits in the sun, like many oldtimers who enjoyed Dried Apple Pie when they were youngsters. One friend of mine decided to try drying some fruit herself.

Fortunately, she knew a carpenter who designed for her a cabinet about 18 inches square and 22 inches high, covered with fine aluminum wire, with five removable shelves. My friend, Grace Dow, says she usually sets it on an old wheelbarrow in the sun and in addition to apples, is drying pears, peaches and prune plums.

To dry apples, she peels, cores and slices them, then places the slices on cheesecloth on the screens.

Pears are washed, peeled and cut in half. She steams them for 20 minutes and places them upside down on the cheesecloth.

Peaches are immersed in hot water so the skins slip off easily, then quartered so they will dry quicker. After steaming them 5 to 10 minutes she places them on cheesecloth, using paper towels beneath the cheesecloth because the fruit is so juicy.

Plums are dried without peeling.

The commercial oven fruit dryer is similarly designed, but the fruit is dried using only the gas pilot light or electric oven light. Fruits are washed and cut to desired size, then dipped in a solution of drying crystals and water for 1 minute, after which they are placed on trays. The rack then is set in the oven until the fruit is dry, from 12 to 18 hours.

The heavier texture and stronger flavor of dried fruits makes them even more adaptable to cooking than their fresh counterparts. They have a concentrated, natural sweetness, requiring less processed sugar than fresh fruit.

Food drying allows the homemaker to take advantage of the bounty of her garden or fresh food "buys." This oldest form of food preservation is less complex than canning and uses less energy than freezing. Dried fruits are easily stored.

Whether you decide to do your own fruit-drying or buy packaged dried fruits, you will enjoy these delicious recipes.

DRIED APPLE CAKE

2 cups dried apples
2 cups molasses
1 cup hot water
1 cup sugar
Two-thirds cup shortening
1 egg
3 cups flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
One-half teaspoon nutmeg
One-half teaspoon cloves
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup sour milk
1 teaspoon soda
1 cup raisins

Cook the apples in molasses and hot water until thick. Cream sugar, shortening and egg together, and add cooled molasses-apple mixture. Sift dry ingredients together and add to the creamed mixture with sour milk and soda. Fold in raisins. Grease two loaf tins and divide mixture. Bake in a 325-degree F. oven for 1 hour, or until cake tester or toothpick inserted in center comes out clean. Makes 2 loaves.

DRIED FRUIT COMPOTE

Two-thirds cup sugar
Four and one-half cups water
1 cup raisins
1 cup pitted prunes or figs
1 cup dried mixed fruits or apricots
Two-thirds cup almonds, halved
1 cinnamon stick
3 whole dried allspice
One-half cup chopped nuts

In a three-quart saucepan, combine sugar and water. Stir until sugar dissolves, then simmer gently, uncovered, for 5 minutes. Add fruits, almonds and spices. Cover, and simmer 8 to 12 minutes. Spoon into individual serving dishes and chill. Top with chopped nuts and whipped cream, if desired. Serves 6 to 8.

POT ROAST WITH DRIED FRUITS

3- to 4-pound beef chuck roast
2 tablespoons shortening
One-half cup finely chopped onion
One-third cup finely chopped carrot
One-fourth cup beef bouillon
1 clove garlic, minced
One and one-half teaspoons salt
One-fourth teaspoon pepper
One and three-fourths cups mixed dried fruits
(or 1 11-ounce package)
One and one-half cups hot water
3 tablespoons all-purpose flour
One-half cup cold water

In Dutch oven, brown meat on both sides in hot shortening. Add onion, carrot, bouillon, garlic, salt and pepper. Cover. Simmer 2 hours. Pour one and one-half cups hot water over fruit and let stand one hour. Drain, reserving liquid. Place fruit over meat. Cover and cook 45 minutes to 1 hour or till tender. Remove to warm platter. Measure pan juices. Skim off excess fat. Add reserved liquid to equal one and one-half cups. Blend flour and one-half cup cold water. Stir into pan juices. Cook and stir until bubbly. Pass with roast. Serves 6.

DRIED FRUIT PIES

2 cups mixed dried fruit, cut up

Three-fourths cup dried apricots

Three-fourths cup raisins

1 cup water

Three-fourths cup sugar

One-fourth teaspoon cinnamon
One-fourth teaspoon ground cloves
1 teaspoon grated lemon rind
Pastry for two-crust 9-inch pie

Combine all ingredients except pastry in saucepan. Bring to a boil and simmer 5 minutes. Cool. Line bottom of 9-inch pie pan with pastry. Fill with dried fruit mixture. Cover with top crust. Bake at 400 degrees F. 15 minutes, then reduce temperature to 325 degrees F. and continue baking 20 minutes more, until pastry is browned.

Dishes help dieters

Low-calorie food tastes better when it's served elegantly; try Waterford crystal, and even a lowly scoop of low-fat cottage cheese can take on filling proportions.

At least, that's the theory Roslyn Nitkin uses to get her seriously overweight patients on the road to slimmer, healthier bodies. "Invest in proper dishes," advises Nitkin, a nutritionist at Long Island Jewish-Hillside Medical Center in New Hyde Park, N.Y. "It doesn't cost that much extra and I always tell my patients, you're on a diet, you deserve it. Besides, food tastes better in stemware!"

"I think it's very important psychologically to have a dessert," said Nitkin. Fruit is the preferred choice, with a garnish to liven it up.

Hosie hosts hour

The company of 20 includes some of Canada's finest dancers and Victoria's Bill Hosie as principal singer and host-narrator.

On Sunday at 8 p.m. on Channel 2, it will be the subject of an hour-long CBC Superspecial.

Filmed before a capacity audience at Confederation Centre instead of, as on former occasions, in a CBC studio, it will bring to television audiences the quality of inspiration that is a special property of live performance.

Hosie, who most recently was delighting sell-out audiences here with his cameo performance in The Belfry's Da, will be prominent in the Superspecial. Multi-gifted wife Sylvia says it is virtually a new show with an all new expanded Scottish presentation and a brilliant Chinese section.

Also portrayed will be rituals of the Plains and West Coast Indians; hunting dances of the Eskimos, the joie-de-vivre of French songs and dances, Irish jigs and reels and samples of European cultures related to the various groups who settled this country.

In May Bill and Sylvia and their family will return to Charlottetown where Bill will again be starring in the summer-long festival.

Seminar set on the brain

Leslie A. Hart, specialist in teaching and learning techniques, will speak in Victoria March 1 on the last great unexplored territory — the brain.

He will conduct a day-long seminar under auspices of Camosun College and the University of Victoria, at UVic's Maclaurin building, on the subject brainpower and learning.

The seminar is open to teachers, students, parents, researchers, clinicians and the public at $10 each, $5 for students.

Hart is an author and recognized internationally for his writing on the complexities of neurological research, translated into practical terms to describe the unique way in which the human brain functions, allowing people to think, learn and feel.

Montreal-born, Hart has lived in New York since his teens, has been an advertising copywriter, communications specialist, food manager, inventor, business manager and consultant, and now describes himself as a generalist focussing on the brain and its normal functioning.

His book, The Classroom Disaster, which drew wide notice, was sharply critical of the class-and-grade school system, predicting difficulties now being encountered in education and suggesting alternatives.

Hart has lectured or spoken at universities, conference and workshops across the U.S. and is consultant to New Rochelle, N.Y., public schools.

City student on WSU honor roll

Four with homes on Vancouver Island were Kim R. Brunt and Richard C. Young, of Nanaimo; R. Colleen Bovaird, Parksville, and Harley B. Elias, Campbell River.

McKinnon wants Grits to act fast on fighter

One of the first priorities of the new Liberal government should be a decision on a new jet fighter for Canada's armed forces, says former Conservative defence minister Allan McKinnon.

He said the Conservatives were only one day away from choosing between the F-16 and the F-18A aircraft when the government was defeated in the House of Commons.

McKinnon, who easily won re-election in his Victoria riding, said he is frustrated he has to give up his defence and veterans' affairs portfolios because he had several things "I was just getting in line to do."

McKinnon said he hopes the Liberal government will carry on with some of the Conservative initiatives, such as a bill to correct inequities in veteran's pensions.

Also left to the Liberals are decisions on increasing the defence budget to fulfil NATO commitments and a report, due March 15, assessing unification.

Before the judge

An Oak Bay man who had 16 marijuana plants in his house was fined $100 in provincial court Wednesday by Judge Gilbert Hogg who refused a request for a conditional discharge.

Samuel David Gillies, 38, of 1868 Hampshire, was described by defence lawyer Michael Hutchison as a "passive possessor" of marijuana because the young woman with whom he lived was a "plant freak" who had placed the illegal plants there.

Crown counsel Martha McNeely said Oak Bay police, armed with a search warrant, went to Gillies' residence on Aug. 24 and found the marijuana plants growing in various parts of the house and four containers of marijuana seeds in the kitchen.

Asking for a discharge, Hutchison said it was common knowledge that in Vancouver discharges are granted on a fairly frequent basis for first offences.

But the judge refused and said that some years ago, when young people were constantly before the courts for marijuana and other soft drugs, he pointed out the terrible consequences.

"Those consequences are well known," Hogg stated.

A 30-year-old Vancouver man was fined $500 for obstructing a peace officer but was given a suspended sentence for mischief causing wilful damage and causing a disturbance.

Crown counsel N.K. Varma told the court Quirk took a cab to 3156 Carrol about 9:35 p.m. in the belief his common-law wife was there.

Witnesses heard him swearing and yelling before he kicked in the door. Not finding her there, Quirk left and was picked up shortly after at Harriet and Burnside. Police had to struggle with Quirk before arresting him.

Defence lawyer Patrick Sweeney said it was a gross error in judgment on Quirk's part, due partially to drinking. He said Quirk wished to pay for the $135 damage to the door.

"In the old days, there used to be great respect for police officers," Varma observed. "Somewhere along the line, something went wrong."

Pearce agreed that the obstruction charge was the most serious offence in this case. He said the police must be backed up by the courts but also said he was aware how liquor "can change an otherwise intelligent person into an animal."

On the mischief and disturbance charges, Pearce also placed Quirk on six months probation and ordered him to make restitution by the end of March.

Two 17-year-olds were given suspended sentences by Judge Harold Alder but ordered to pay for more than $300 damage to an Esquimalt school.

Crown counsel Don Laughton said Timothy Brett Bender, 229 Cadillac, and Michael Ferguson, 3241 Wascana, were first checked about 2:40 a.m. on Feb. 9 by Esquimalt police as they were walking along the 800-block Esquimalt.

Fifteen minutes later, Sgt. Archie Browning, on routine patrol, spotted the youths prowling around Harborview School, 637 Head, and heard breaking glass. Browning radioed for assistance and the two were caught after a three-block chase.

Alder placed them on eight months probation and ordered them to perform 25 hours of community service work each.

A 26-year-old Duncan man was given a 30-day jail term after pleading guilty to driving with a blood-alcohol content over .08 and driving under suspension Jan. 26.

Court was told Jimmie was spotted at 5 a.m. by Sidney RCMP and was followed along the Pat Bay Highway at speeds up to 140 km/h, until he was stopped after making a sharp left turn on to Mount Newton Cross Road. Subsequent readings of .15 were obtained.

Jimmie was convicted in 1978 of impaired driving April 26 and driving over .08 Oct. 30. He also was convicted April 2, 1979, of driving while under suspension.

Fined for drinking-driving were: Ray Milton Tremain, 41, of 2031 Byron, $400; Grant Wesley Froman, 37, of 1736 Newton, $400; and Dean Barry Caviness, 19, $100. In addition, Caviness was ordered to perform 50 hours of community service work.

Camosun opens name contest

Victorians will get a chance to name the new Camosun College building that was damaged by fire last week.

Members of the college board Tuesday agreed to open a public competition for a name for the multi-purpose building, and a March 31 deadline was set. The winner will be chosen by the board in April, well in advance of the scheduled fall opening.

A screening committee will include representatives of the board, the faculty and students.

An asphalt boiler operated by a roofing crew last Thursday caught fire, and caused propane tanks to explode.

Damage estimates Tuesday were 25 per cent each to the roof and third floor electrical wiring, 10 per cent to third floor mechanical equipment, minor damage to interior and exterior wall cladding, and smoke damage throughout. Cleanup and replacement will not delay completion.

Arsonists get 3 years

Two men were sentenced Wednesday to three years in the penitentiary for setting fire to a teenagers' disco at 1318 Broad.

"The arson involved in this matter was a planned, deliberate act," county court Judge Montague Drake told Anthony John Mettes, 22, of Victoria, and Paul Leonard Joseph Taylor, 25, of Burnaby, who pleaded guilty last month to setting the $135,000 fire Oct. 17, 1978.

Drake said there was a callous carelessness for the lives of others in the late-morning fire on a business day downtown and it was fortunate no one was burned.

The motive, said Drake, was to defraud the insurance company.

Court was told the insurance was in the name of Mettes' father who financed much of the disco which was managed by Taylor with assistance from Anthony Mettes.

Mettes said Taylor suggested setting the fire because the club was not generating enough funds to pay bills. He said he became involved to help out his father financially.

Taylor, however, said he felt Anthony Mettes was as involved in the arson as him.

He also said the plan was to do enough smoke damage so the club could be renovated but when asked if that was the case why 10 gallons of gasoline were used, Taylor said they didn't think 10 gallons would cause as much combustion as it did.

Crown counsel Robert Mulligan said the insurance on the disco itself was for $61,500 and two hours before the fire Taylor checked that the policy was in effect.

Both men gave an alibi statement at first to police but a month later, Mettes gave a second statement implicating both men and adding that he participated because the only way his father would get any money was from the insurance.

Also in county court, Drake sentenced Ginny Pearl Webster, 18, of Port Alberni, to 30 days in jail for stealing clothing worth $340 from Eaton's April 14. But he made the term concurrent with a five-month term she is serving for five breaches of probation and two failures to appear in court.

Brian Edwin Ferguson, 40, of Edmonton, was given a suspended sentence and placed on probation for two years. He pleaded guilty to breaking and entering the Rice Bowl Restaurant, 2656 Quadra, on April 24 with intent to commit an indictable offence.

Theatre beyond words isn't beyond laughter

By AUDREY JOHNSON

If you've never been addicted to the art of mime don't let that keep you away from The Belfry this week.

Theatre Beyond Words, currently in residence there, will addict you. That's a promise.

Theatre Beyond Words is an Ontario-based professional company of five — three men including artistic director Harro Maskow — and two women.

The show they are playing this week (nightly through Sunday) is entitled Five Good Reasons to Laugh; with good reason. Singly and together they are funny, all the way from gently whimsical to uproarious.

Another thing: this one's for the family. Take the kids and enjoy their laughter along with your own. They may not catch all the subtlties and the connoisseur bits but they'll love the Chaplinesque things and the clown techniques that bubble up throughout.

Who could resist little Nancy Potato's (Paulette Hallich) attempts to teach Bud the Dog, bored and supercilious, to fetch a stick?

Or the trials of a dead bullfighter trying to get into heaven? This one is performed by Harro as a solo. It is one of the longer pieces and it is indeed beyond words.

Harro is an incomparable artist when it comes to facial expression. Lean of body and slightly saturnine of feature, those features change with every thought and sensation as a pool's mirrored image alters with any slight movement of the water.

Sound effects in this piece are great, from the bloodthirsty roar of the bull ring crowd to the angry explosions from heaven each time the would-be angel sets foot on the celestial stair.

This company, while adroit in all the classical mime and clown techniques, does not hesitate to depart from the complete silence of a Marceau when words can add an effective dimension.

The actual words do not matter all that much. For example, in the parody of the Samurai warrior defending his honor (again done by Harro) the high-pitched hysterical chatter in pseudo-Japanese, brilliantly compliments the flamboyant posturings.

Bus Station is another long piece involving all five artists in a joy-making cartoon of extroverts and introverts forced into proximity in a waiting-room.

In Laundromat the actors are first customers and then machines, shaking and gyrating rhythmically to wonderful off-stage sound effects while Paulette maintains an obligato chatter of ignored instructions.

Briefer but equally delicious moments involve an unpredictable store dummy (Robin Patterson) and a hilarious attempt at courtship in a restaurant. The show opens with the whole company manipulating a length of cord to provide a clever succession of musical images; and it closes with a reprise that, like a coda to a musical composition, reflects all the themes of the show.

This company — the other members are Terry Judd and Larry Lefebvre — reveals an outstanding capability of invention and power of observation supported by technical virtuosity and enriched by a broad and free vision.

Correction

In its edition of December 6, 1979, the Victoria Times reported that Larry Ryan, secretary of the Victoria Labor Council, told a meeting of the council that Monday magazine has its paper printed in one of the most anti-union shops on Vancouver Island.

In fact, Monday magazine is printed by E.W. Bickle Ltd., of Courtenay, a union shop that has been certified by the B.C. Labor Relations Board for several years.

The Times regrets any embarrassment to the company, the union or the employees.

Obstetrics move fuss surprises planners

Opposition from Saanich Peninsula communities to moving obstetrics into the new Victoria General Hospital on Helmcken Road has surprised the Capital Region hospital planning department.

Hospital planner Murray Halkett said Wednesday the idea of amalgamating the obstetric wards was made six years ago.

"There hasn't been any attempt to keep it a secret but I guess the public wasn't aware of what was happening until now," said Halkett.

The region says the plan to move all obstetric services to the new hospital was developed because it will permit higher quality care by ensuring the patient load is sufficient to maintain the skills of physicians and nurses. Sophisticated and expensive equipment needed in occasional births is also more efficiently housed in one location.

Emergency obstetric services will always be provided at the other hospitals, said Charles Perkins, a member of the region's hospital commission, but the vast majority of pregnant women aren't admitted on an emergency basis.

North Saanich municipality prepared a report on the impact of removing the obstetrics department from the Saanich Pensinsula Hospital on Mount Newton Crossroad.

Ald. Jim Cumming, who investigated the situation, said the move should be reconsidered.

"The peninsula hospital should not be considered in the same light as the two city hospitals," said Cumming.

Search for pair resumes

A search resumed today for two fishermen missing since Sunday near Ucluelet.

Involved are four aircraft from CFB Comox and RCMP members.

The spokesman denied an earlier report that the search for Robert Harrigan, 30, and Robert Laidlaw, 29, both of Ucluelet on western Vancouver Island, had been called off.

The two went fishing Sunday in a three-metre aluminum boat off the entrance to Ucluelet harbor and were to have returned Sunday night.

School move urged

Saanich council will ask the province to move the 125 year-old Craigflower school to another heritage site close by because the property extends about five metres on to the Admirals Road right-of-way.

Admirals is destined to become a major road with four full traffic lanes and sidewalks.

The heritage conservation branch of the provincial secretary's ministry will be asked to move the school from its site on the edge of the Gorge waterway across Craigflower Bridge to the Craigflower Manor site.

The manor has already been restored as a heritage building, has good access and parking and enough room for the school house, municipal engineer Cliff Warren says in a report.

"Indeed, it may even enhance the character of both buildings and create an ambience not possible with separate sites," Warren states.

A ministry proposal that six or seven metres of right-of-way be closed to correct the situation would make the total road allowance too small for widening, he said.

CRD planning group calls for budget hike

The Capital Regional District's regional planning committee will recommend a 21-per-cent hike in its 1980 budget after spending Wednesday afternoon arguing over what chairman Jim Campbell called "chicken feed."

The 1980 budget stands at $385,000.

The main issue was an additional $70,200 the planners wanted to complete the region's cost-of-growth study in one year, rather than two.

"The work described in the program is the very thing the taxpayers think we (municipalities) do and it's one thing we don't do."

He said municipal planners had neither the time nor the expertise to carry out such a study.

Campbell said planning developments worth "hundreds and thousands of millions of dollars" are being done in the regional district and the $70,200 at issue is "chicken feed" in comparison.

The committee finally allowed the $70,200 to be added to the budget with the exception of $2,060, which was to have been used as the district's share for an additional summer student employee.

UVic conference site

A major study into the delivery of community-based human services will be held in Victoria Feb. 27-29.

The Lansdowne conference, sponsored by the University of Victoria faculty of Human and Social Development, will be held in the UVic Student Union Building and is open to the public.

The faculty includes the schools of child care, social work, nursing and public administration, and each school has invited a guest speaker.

The conference will also feature comments and questions from other speakers and members of the audience.

Dr. Neil Agnew, a professor of psychology at York University, Toronto, will speak on the moral and technical issues of community-based services.

Another psychologist, Dr. Paul V. Gump, of the University of Kansas, will discuss his research on identifying children likely to be at risk in the school system.

Dr. Audra Pambrun, a nurse and program analyst at the White Cloud Centre, University of Oregon, will present a paper on community health care delivery systems to native and minority groups.

The bidding:

2 NT	Pass	3 NT

Opening lead — king of spades.

The secret of good play is the ability to read how the unseen cards are divided. Once you know the location of the missing cards, your task is much easier to accomplish.

If you're a defender, your knowledge of declarer's hand will come first and foremost from the bidding. Declarer is sure to have described his hand to at least some extent, and any further information you require will ordinarily come from either your partner's plays or from declarer's plays.

For example, suppose you're East and your partner leads the king of spades, which wins, and then the ten of spades, won by South with the ace. Right at this point, if you put your mind to it, you can predict the outcome. You should pretty much know declarer's hand, and you should also know that he will be unable to avoid going down one — neither more nor less.

It is not really difficult to pinpoint South's values. He has shown up with no values in spades except the ace, and he is also sure to have the ace of clubs, based on his bids of one and three notrump. There is nothing else left for him to have. So when South leads a diamond at trick three and finesses the jack, you should win it with the king and return the king of clubs!

This play knocks South out of the box. Whatever he does, he ends up with eight tricks — assuming you defend correctly therafter. But if you neglected to pay attention to the bidding, or to the significance of your partner's king of spades lead followed by the ten of spades, you might not make the key play of the king of clubs at trick four. You might return a low club, or some other suit, in which case declarer would easily make the contract.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20): Utilize lessons recently learned — spotlight on experience, production, money and intensified relationship. Capricorn, Cancer persons play key roles. Count your change — piece together bits of information and you will come up with 'complete story.'

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): You strike chord of universal appeal. Lunar cycle high — trust judgment, intuition. Take initiative. Wear brighter colors. Accent independence, originality and willingness to pioneer a project. Aries, Libra persons figure prominently.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): Light is shed on areas previously dark — you gain rare insights. A new contact proves productive and fruitful. Leo, Aquarius individuals play significant roles. Accent on special organizations, institutions, hospitals.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Investment potential is highlighted. Relationship becomes 'serious.' Decision can be reached concerning direction, business, emotional attachments. Cancer, Aquarius and another Leo figure in scenario. A wish is transformed into reality.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): Social activity indicated in connection with business associate, community leader or one who is in position of authority. Be versatile, but avoid scattering your efforts. Perceive your own potential — map future plans, including publishing, travel, language and education.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Emphasis on long-range project, better relationship with loved ones, including children. Aquarius, Taurus, Leo persons figure pro- [illegible] special communication is highlighted. Events occur which mold future activities. Be alert, aware and perceptive.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Nothing occurs halfway — for you, it is now hot or cold, all the way, a valid commitment. You learn lessons concerning costs, special financial arrangements and 'secrets' concerning one close to you. Gemini, Virgo, Sagittarius persons figure prominently.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Important lifestyle adjustment may be on agenda. Home, family, money and luxury product dominate scenario. A legal document requires your personal attention. Maintain low profile. Avoid direct confrontations. Gather information for future use.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Those who say they will do something and continuously make excuses should be called to task. Act accordingly. Accent on work, nutrition, basic services. Short journey could involve a Pisces individual. Be gracious, but don't sell yourself short.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Emphasis on emotional responses, significant changes, ability to express self in graphic manner. Member of opposite sex confides secrets, tells of physical attraction. Spotlight on speculation, variety, romance and children.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Long-range projects come into focus. Perceive potential. Write, communicate, initiate correspondence. Aries, Libra persons figure in scenario. A task is completed and your security is enhanced as result. An aggressive associate becomes valuable ally.

IF FEBRUARY 22 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY, major adjustment is indicated on homefront. A possible change of residence could be highlighted this year. You are unorthodox, independent, considered by many to be rebellious. You were 'on your own' at a relatively early age. This means you did not fit into usual patterns. You could have been separated from one or both parents in a physical or psychological sense.

250 HOUSES FOR SALE

OPEN TO VIEW FRI., 2-5 P.M. 451 NEWPORT AVE. $375,000

Very rarely does the opportunity exist to purchase a residence and property of this caliber.

ONCE INSIDE

The solid oak doors you enter a different world. A world of luxury and quality where careful planning is evident at every step.

THE VIEWS

are, I believe, unsurpassed in the Victoria area and must be personally experienced. Floor to ceiling windows take every advantage of this superb vista from all major rooms. To simply list the generous proportions of the 14 plus rooms, the extra height full basement, the 7 spare cupboards, the 4 bathrooms and the many, many extras, does no justice to this home, there is too much to say.

THE GROUNDS

of nearly one acre are secluded and absolutely beautiful. There is a swimming pool, tea house, aviary, storage building, dog run, 2 car garage, 2nd driveway, rock patio and 3 ornamental pools, contained within a blaze of colour from the carefully controlled plantings of flowering shrubs and blossoms over many years, all automatically sprinkled and surprisingly easy care.

Talk it over with pruner

Professional tree pruners are unjustly criticized by some who use their services. It is common to hear that the "man" was gone in 30 minutes and hardly cut off anything.

In such instances it is evident there was no discussion between the worker and the owner; that no information had been sought on the amount of pruning that should be done nor had the owner explained what he expected when asking that the tree be pruned.

To one gardener, pruning means reducing a tree to one-half its present size; to another it means shaping a tree into an elegant design; to the professional pruner it means neither.

Pruning is the maintaining of a delicate balance between top growth, root growth, new growth and fruit production, with due consideration given to the vitality of the tree, whether sheltered or exposed, and the condition of the soil as indicated by its over-all appearance.

The professional pruner can decide in a few minutes what is necessary, how much or how little pruning is advisable or permissible to maintain the balance, and do the job in a minimum of time.

He will willingly explain his reasoning if the owner is interested and knowlegeable. Without some knowledge of pruning any explanation is of little value.

A neglected or improperly pruned fruit tree soon becomes a mass of interlaced sideshoots and branches, requiring the removal of possibly 50 per cent of the top growth to open up the centre and space the branches.

Since only 10 per cent should be removed at any one time, the professional often suggests he be allowed to prune the tree for about five consecutive years. He does this because a five-year plan is the only way to get the tree back into shape without totally upsetting the aforementioned balance.

This suggestion is often viewed with suspicion, some kind of a racket to get the owner's money. The gardener does not understand the importance of the plan, nor that any interference in intervening years will compound the problem that has to be solved.

No two pruners, professional or knowledgeable amateur, will work to exactly the same plan. When a different man does the job each year, none has the chance to follow this method to a conclusion and the gardener has little chance of being satisfied with the work.

Some professionals will only work under a contract which is immediately voided if any other person touches the trees. They know that a few false cuts can throw everything they have done out of kilter.

Most of us are satisfied to pay the fee set by a lawyer or a doctor to whom we have taken a problem. We figure that years of training, and the experience gained in practice, are worth the fee. But we do not apply the same line of reasoning when we take a problem to a tree doctor, or when we engage the services of a professional gardener.

It is difficult to understand why we should respect the knowledge and training of certain professionals, yet depreciate the knowledge and training of others when associated with gardening. Could it be because we do a little gardening ourselves and think we know all the answers?

When it is necessary to use the services of professionals we should have confidence in their abilities. We should discuss fully the problem and the remedy before agreeing to have the work done; and we should not criticize unless we can prove from our own knowledge and experience that the job has been improperly executed.

Militants douse hopes for early hostage release

United Press International

In a tough new statement, the militant captors of 50 Americans in Tehran said today it would be "foolish" to expect clemency for the hostages if the deposed shah and his riches were not quickly returned.

"Criminal America must deliver up fugitive Mohammed Reza (Pahlavi) and the assets he has stolen," the militants said in a Tehran Radio statement monitored by the BBC in London.

The statement, on the 110th day of the hostages' captivity in the U.S. embassy, threw cold water on hopes a U.N. commission appointed to investigate Iranian charges against the United States would quickly secure the release of the American prisoners.

Iranian authorities insisted the commission has no connection with the release of the hostages, although Western diplomats said the freeing of the hostages was expected to be a tacit quid pro quo for the investigations of the commission, provided Iranian President Abolhassan Bani-Sadr could persuade the militants to give up the Americans.

Both Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini and Bani-Sadr said Iran was determined to get the shah returned for trial and Foreign Minister Sadegh Ghotzbadeh denied the work of the commission had any direct connection with freeing the Americans.

In Geneva four of the five members of the U.N. Commission met today with U.N. officials and international organizations to gather documents and background information for their mission to the Iranian capital.

President Bani-Sadr, in an interview with Radio Canada quoted by Tehran Radio, also said Iran was "firmly determined" to get the shah back, and said: "The U.N commission's work had no direct connection with the release of the U.S. Embassy hostages."

Khomeini said Iran will never desist in its attempts to have the shah returned along with the "nation's lawful wealth" that he "plundered."

The lawyer representing Iran in its bid to extradite the shah from Panama — Juan Materno Vazquez, former Panamanian Supreme Court justice — said in a telephone interview from Panama City he expects to have documents needed for his case in about two weeks.

Under Panamanian law, Iran has until March 22 to present the documents, which include proof of the shah's identity, a warrant for his arrest and the legal charges and probable penalties against him under Iranian law. However, Panamanian officials doubt Iran will be able to meet the deadline.

Bani-Sadr said Wednesday he expects normal diplomatic relations between his country and Canada to be restored now there is a new government in Ottawa.

Relations between the two countries worsened after the Canadian embassy in Iran was closed last month and six United States diplomats who had been hiding there were smuggled out with false Canadian passports.

Astronomer follows sun to Kilimanjaro

By AB KENT

There is something appropriate about going to the Dark Continent to see a solar eclipse.

That's what Dominion Astrophysical Observatory director Dr. Sidney van den Burgh was doing last Saturday, following a two-week safari holiday.

Along with a number of other scientists and amateur astronomers from Canada and the U.S., van den Burgh took part in a charter flight to Africa and had a front seat for the eclipse in a tiny community under the shadow of Mt. Kilimanjaro.

After the astronomers picked Lambini as the most promising vantage point, Tanzania's political leaders decided that was good enough for them, too, and the president, vice-president, prime minister and a number of cabinet ministers went along for the show.

There was also an anxious period in which cumulous clouds obscured the sun until 10 minutes before the eclipse. But then they parted and for the four minutes of totality conditions were perfect.

"Had we been a half mile down the road we would have lost everything," van den Burgh said.

Lambini was selected because it lay in the centre of the dark band which would be cast by the moon's shadow as earth, moon and sun came into alignment.

The director hopes to publish a paper covering one aspect of the event. Van den Burgh took a number of calibrated photographs he will analyse with equipment at the observatory.

He said he would like to establish the brightness of the sun's corona as it is affected by sun spots.

Although this is not within his particular field of research, which is the galaxies, he said it is one of the bricks of the profession, "one of those things in science that has to be done."

Meanwhile, two other members of the observatory staff are preparing for a visit to Saudi Arabia as part of a two-year joint undertaking with the National Research Council. Dr. Elmar Brosterhus and astronomer Ernie Pfannenschmidt are collaborating with the Saudis in a site survey for a proposed large telescope.

The observatory on Little Saanich Mountain is assembling mechanical parts for a number of computer-controlled monitor telescopes that will be set up in likely locations in the desert and northern mountain region in an effort to single out the best observatory site.

If a superior location can be found, the Saudi government may erect a four or five-metre optical telescope as part of a scientific program it is hoped will help regain for the Arabs a global reputation in astronomy.

Around the 12th or 13th century Arabs were considered the finest astronomers, a mantle now shared by a number of modern industrialized nations.

Canada, with the capacity and skills for grinding large telescope mirrors and for making technical support equipment, is in a strong position to win some of the prospective Saudi Arabian telescope work.

Tito's full recovery unlikely

BELGRADE (AP) — Medical sources say President Tito may stand a chance of recovery if he can survive the next two weeks of hospital treatment, but that his chances appear slim and there seems to be no prospect he might recover enough to resume all of his official duties.

A medical committee treating the 87-year-old Yugoslav leader said today Tito's condition is still grave and that "measures of intensive treatment are being continued." This was widely believed to mean Tito is using an artificial kidney machine.

Tito, leader of Yugoslavia for more than three decades, had been recovering from the amputation of his left leg Jan. 20 when heart and kidney problems developed earlier this month.

Medical sources claiming access only to the little information made public about Tito's problems said successful progress through the next two weeks might indicate Tito was not suffering from a combination of kidney and heart failure.

But if Tito were suffering only from kidney failure, they said, there was a chance he might survive with the aid of a dialysis machine to periodically take over the kidneys' function of cleaning body wastes from his blood.

Stamp dealer Sissons dies

TORONTO (CP) — A funeral service will be held Friday for James Normart Sissons, 65, one of Canada's leading stamp collectors. He died of cancer Tuesday in Florida.

Shops shut in Kabul to protest occupation

KABUL (AP) — Almost all shops and stores in Afghanistan's capital city closed today in the most spectacular protest so far against Soviet military occupation.

Exactly two months after Russian soldiers first crossed the Afghan border in an attempt to put down a Moslem rebellion against Kabul's Communist regime, a rebel leaflet urged shopkeepers to show their "unanimous condemnation" of the intervention by paralysing the commercial life of this city of one million.

All but a handful of shopkeepers obeyed the call despite frantic efforts by the Soviet-sponsored regime of President Babrak Karmal to force them to stay open.

Thursday, the eve of the Moslem Sabbath, is normally the capital's busiest shopping day. In street after street of downtown Kabul, most shop fronts were boarded up or closed by iron shutters.

"We have won a great victory today," one shopkeeper told a group of Western reporters. "We have shown the Russians what the Afghan people think of them."

The Kremlin on Wednesday rejected the Common Market's proposal to get Soviet soldiers out of Afghanistan, suggesting it was inspired by the White House.

A Kremlin leader accused the Carter administration Wednesday of violating several U.S.-Soviet agreements and said U.S. actions "will inflict damage first of all on the United States itself."

The angry attack by Mikhail A. Suslov, who is probably second only to Leonid I. Brezhnev in Kremlin power, was made in an election speech. Premier Alexei N. Kosygin, ostensibly the No. 2 man, has been inactive because of illness for more than four months, but made an election speech of his own Thursday.

Meanwhile, U.S. State Secretary Cyrus Vance was unable to get West German support for a boycott of the Moscow Olympics and headed into talks with the French today.

He was to spend four hours with French Foreign Minister Jean Francois-Poncet, before flying to London to end his tour of major European capitals, aimed at coordinating the Western response to the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.

Apparently in response to the U.S. naval presence, the Soviet Union is building up the largest fleet of warships it has had in the Indian Ocean in recent history.

Last weekend, according to the Pentagon, five more Soviet warships began sailing across the Indian Ocean to join the Soviet fleet, giving the Soviets a total of 31 ships in the area, including 15 warships.

The agency approved on Wednesday temporary payment of a 30-per-cent price increase for gas already being imported from Canada. But it barred new gas imports at the new price.

The department said Canada's higher price was unreasonable but must be paid, for the time being, rather than allowing disruption of the energy supply of states heavily dependent on Canadian gas.

It said it would review the situation and decide whether to allow continued payment of Canada's price after May 15, when the temporary authorization runs out.

The decision, issued by Douglas Robinson, deputy administrator of the department's economic regulatory administration, said Canada's previous price increases took three or four months to take effect, with the result they roughly matched the price of residual fuel oil.

The latest price increase, however, took effect only six weeks after it was announced, and Robinson said that speed-up threw it far out of line with current prices for residual fuel oil.

Ford's secret repair file open

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In a move that could open secret repair files of major automobile companies, Ford Motor Co. agreed today to stop using undisclosed warranties and to notify consumers when major engine and transmission problems develop.

The nation's second biggest automaker also said it will take out advertisements in national magazines explaining the new policy and will make technical service manuals available to consumers.

"For the first time, a major auto company has agreed to open its files on a wide range of significant repair problems and freely disclose that information to the public," said Tracy Westen of the Federal Trade Commission.

Today's agreement stems from an FTC complaint that 6 million Fords produced between 1974 and 1977 had engine defects which the company would repair only if the consumer complained about it. They were covered by so-called "secret warranties."

Those cars, the commission charged, were were subject to piston scuffing, premature camshaft and rocker arm wear or cracker engine blocks before the company told owners about the problems.

Thyroid condition link to radiation leak sought

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Medical researchers are investigating the possibility that an apparent increase in the rate of thyroid abnormalities in Harrisburg-area residents was caused by radiation released in the Three Mile Island nuclear accident.

The Pennsylvania Health Department said Wednesday it had begun the investigation after a routine survey showed the incidence of hypothyroidism was five times greater in Lancaster County, adjoining the nuclear plant, than in the general population.

But initial opinions by a variety of thyroid experts was that it was highly unlikely the Three Mile Island accident was to blame because the radioactive emissions during the accident were too small to cause such disorders.

Other possible causes of hypothyroidism — such as heredity, industrial or medical radiation sources and chemicals in foodstuffs — are also being investigated by state epidemiologists, said Dr. George Tokuhata, director of state health research.

"There is a remote possibility that radiation was the cause, and there are many other possible reasons," Tokuhata said. "We don't have enough evidence to make any conclusions, except to say the rate (of hypothyroidism) is apparently higher than normal in this area."

Hypothyroidism is a disorder that can lead to mental retardation. It can be caused by radioactive iodine. The disorder is detected during examinations of new-born babies.

The possible link between the hypothyroidism and Three Mile Island is that cows in the area grazed on contaminated pastures, officials said.

But Dr. Thomas Foley of Children's Hospital in Pittsburgh, who monitors hypothyroidism as a consultant to the state, said he did not believe the latest occurrences were related to Three Mile Island.

He said some of the cases were different types of hypothyroidism, indicating that a single environmental source such as nuclear radiation was not the cause.

State authorities reported a radioactive iodine level of 41 picocuries per liter in milk from a nearby farm a few days after the nuclear accident. The federal health limit is 1,000 picocuries per liter.

The routine state survey revealed that the hypothyroidism rate in Lancaster County was five times greater than normal. Since the accident, there were six cases of the disorder, or 1 in every 925 births — higher than the expected 1 in 5,000 births.

There were a total of 34 cases in the state, a rate of about 1 in 5,000 live births.

Everest team finds Mallory?

TOKYO (AP) — Chinese climbers on Mount Everest say they may have found the remains of Herbert Mallory, a famed British mountain climber who vanished in a 1924 assault on the world's tallest mountain.

Japanese climber Yoshinori Hasegawa said Thursday he was told last November by Wang Hongbao, a member of a 1975 Everest expedition, that the Chinese team saw what appeared to be the "body of an Englishman" buried in the snow at about 7,650 metres, but could not recover the body at the time. Hasegawa said a Japanese assault on the Chinese side of Everest next month will recover the body if it is found.

British mountaineer Mallory was last seen June 8, 1924, at about 7,700 metres along the same route up the mountain taken by Wang's group. It was Mallory's third attempt to climb Everest, which was not conquered until 1953 by Sir Edmund Hillary.

Jury clears aluminum wiring in fire

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP) — After 36 days of testimony and five hours of debate, jurors hearing the first case stemming from the Beverly Hills Supper Club fire concluded aluminum wiring was not to blame for the 1977 blaze that killed 165 people.

The defendants in the case were 22 aluminum-wire and electrical-device manufacturers and an independent testing laboratory. The trial was seen as significant litigation in the area of products liability and was the first jury test in a case stemming from the blaze May 26, 1977. All other cases have been settled out of court or are pending.

If the jury had returned a guilty verdict, a second phase of the trial would have been necessary to determine whether companies on trial had conspired to cover up alleged problems.

Stanley Chesley, lawyer for the plaintiffs — representatives of those who died in the fire and many of the persons injured — said the verdict will have to be evaluated before any decision can be made on whether to appeal.

Those who filed the suit contended the fire began in a cubbyhole where aluminum wiring, because of its properties, short-cicuited and cause the fire.

SALISBURY (AP) — Guerrilla leader Robert Mugabe's spokesman has been arrested on allegations of making "subversive statements" eight days before elections aimed at establishing a black-majority government in Rhodesia.

The spokesman, Justin Nyoka, a former free-lance journalist and now information officer for Mugabe's Zimbabwe African National Union, was arrested Wednesday night and was to appear in court today, police said.

Exactly what statements prompted his arrest were not immediately known, but some of Mugabe's men have been threatening a resumption of the guerrilla war if they are excluded from the elections or barred from taking power.

Nyoka had been campaigning for the Feb. 27-29 elections in which Mugabe is the favorite. The other leading candidates are Joshua Nkomo, who headed a guerrilla alliance with Mugabe, and Prime Minister Abel Muzorewa.

Rhodesia's seven million blacks are guaranteed representation in 80 of the 100 seats in the new Parliament. The country's 250,000 whites elected representatives to the 20 seats reserved for whites last week.

Nyoka, a key figure in the three-month Rhodesian settlement talks in London last year, is the latest of an undisclosed number of Mugabe officials and supporters arrested on a variety of charges.

Eight were seized last week under anti-terrorism laws. They face the death sentence under the sweeping law-and-order act introduced 14 years ago by the white-minority government to crack down on black nationalist guerrillas.

At the United Nations, Security Council members emerging from private talks said they agreed to ask Secretary-General Kurt Waldheim to name a three-member team to observe the Rhodesian elections.

They said the mission was proposed by the three African countries on the council — Tunisia, Nigeria and Zambia. Many African countries have criticized Britain's supervision of the election campaign, accusing it of discriminating against Mugabe's party and favoring others.

Soames, who is responsible for overseeing Rhodesia's national elections next week in the face of mounting political violence, held "calm and constructive" talks with Mugabe at the governor's residence, the sources said.

Meanwhile, sources in the British Commonwealth military command, which is monitoring the ceasefire, said guerrillas attacked security force patrols in two different areas today.

Rightists, leftists battle in Salvador

SAN SALVADOR (AP) — Leftists armed with machine-guns attacked a police patrol Wednesday evening 72 kilometres outside this capital city, government officials said.

A resident of the town of Sonsonate, where the attack occurred, said several policemen were killed in the 30-minute gun battle. "There are deaths. I just can't get close enough to see how many," said the resident, who was reached by telephone.

At least seven people have been killed in political violence in El Salvador this week, police said.

"We will wage war on the Communists in all of Central America," said leaflets distributed to news media by the anti-Communist Front for the Liberation of Central America.

Sources said the organization is a new one and probably was formed by right-wing groups to counter the political drift to the left taken by the civilian-military junta ruling this violence-torn Central American country of 4.5 million people.

The junta came to power following the Oct. 15 coup that deposed the military-backed government of Gen. Carlos Humberto Romero.

The ministry said it was closing its main offices until Monday because of fears of another occupation.

After a march by about 5,000 bloc members Tuesday, other members of the organization withdrew from a government-run farm loan bank, the foreign trade office and the country's water and sewer offices. They freed about 150 hostages.

Leftist spokesmen said the bloc demands were met by the government. They said the government cut the price of water service and agreed to help workers laid off by foreign companies find jobs.

Eaton's Consumer tips
What you should know about sewing machines

Most modern sewing machines have a number of stitches designed to increase the machine's sewing flexibility. How many stitches does your machine need for maximum sewing efficiency? That depends on how extensively you plan to use your machine. A good basic sewing machine should have straight stitch, zig-zag stitch, blind stitch (for hems), buttonhole stitch and stretch or overlock stitch for knits. If you plan to sew a variety of items, you may want to consider more stitches to meet your demands. And if your machine already has decorative stitches, you may soon begin to see them as 'necessary' rather than 'optional'.

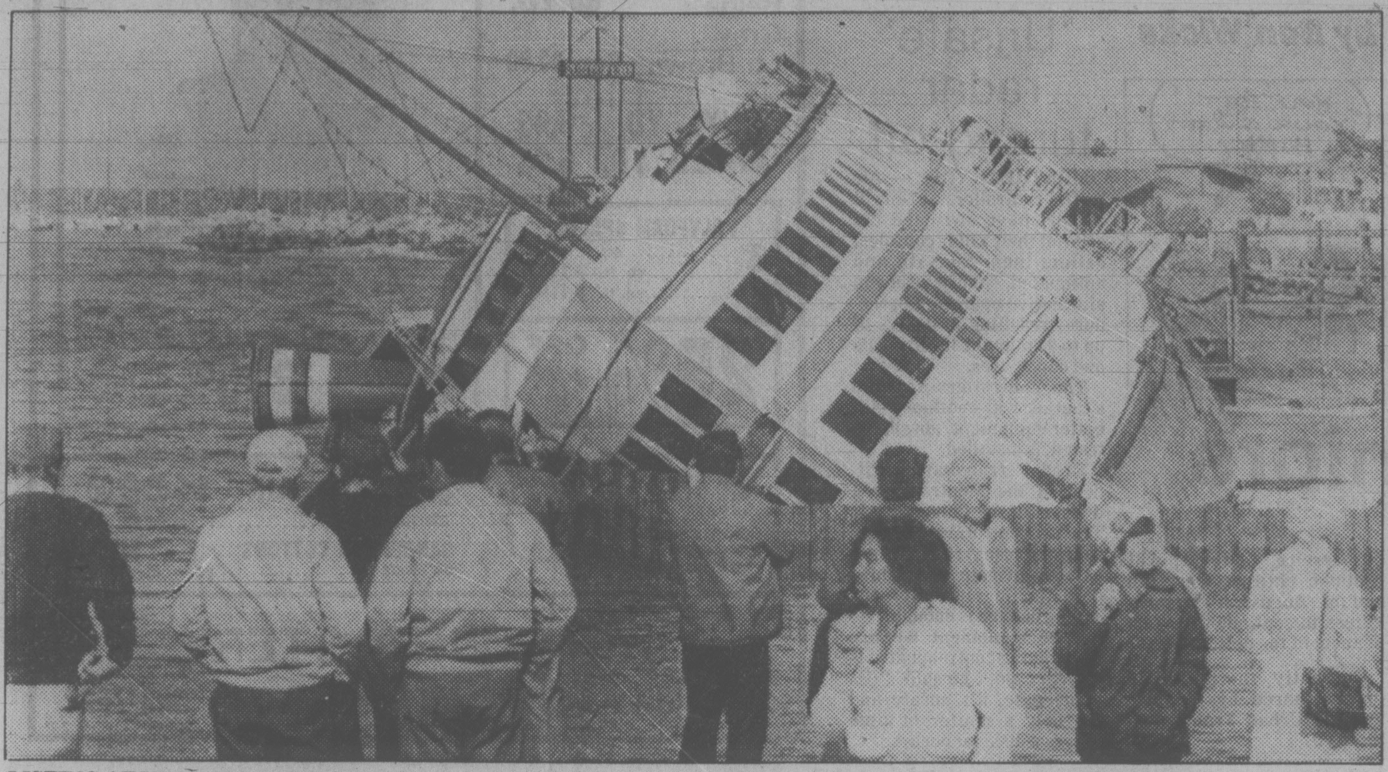
Hydro's billion not for B.C.



LISTING AT UNLADYLIKE 45 degrees in mud of Redondo Beach, former Union Steamship vessel Lady Alexandra is latest victim of storms lashing California coast (story on page 2). The ship, converted to a disco, cafe and backgammon parlor, was scuttled intentionally to avoid an "uncontrolled sinking". Lady Alexandra, familiar along B.C. north coast for 30 years, was taken out of service about 1955 and was for a number of years a restaurant ship in Coal Harbor, Vancouver. Fire destroyed much of her upperwork in 1961 and she was later sold to an American company which drastically changed her role one again.

Straits line jobs go to Italians, Japanese

By JAKE BANKY

B.C. Hydro's massive Cheekye-Dunsmuir power line project will create lots of employment — but not in B.C., Alberni NDP MLA Bob Skelly charged today.

Most of the jobs will go to Italians, Norwegians, Japanese or to Canadians in other parts of the country.

Skelly said a confidential B.C. Hydro document indicates construction of the 500-kilovolt line will put only about $10 million into the pay envelopes of B.C. workers.

That is only one per cent of the $1 billion-plus figure now being bandied about as the probable cost for the project, initially supposed to cost $315 million.

Hydro announced six months ago that the $235 million contract for manufacturing the transmission cable was awarded to two European companies, Pirelli, of Italy, and Standard Telefon, of Norway.

"They're going to create a huge number of jobs with that $235 million," Skelly said. "Very few will be created here."

Even the job of laying the underwater cable across the Strait of Georgia will be carried out by the Norwegian vessel Skagerrak using only Norwegian crew.

"Some unskilled labor may be hired locally," the Hydro document says, "but the skilled labor for this aspect of the construction is expected to be imported."

Skelly said Hydro awarded contracts this week for steel fabrication to firms in Quebec, Ontario and Japan.

The names of the successful bidders and the value of the contracts have not yet been made public.

Skelly said the huge construction project will provide few spin-off benefits for Vancouver Island or for the Sunshine Coast.

He quoted the Hydro document: "Post-construction employment supplementary to the normal B.C. Hydro crews in the region is expected to be minimal.

"Additional work would be generated only through periodic maintenance of the right-of-way. No additional permanent employment in the regional offices, directly related to the proposed facilities, is seen by B.C. Hydro."

Skelly said the impact on local businesses will also be minimal.

According to the Hydro document the project will not warrant hiring additional staff.

"The Cheekye-Dunsmuir Line is not going to benefit British Columbians," Skelly said.

"It will simply cause B.C. Hydro to borrow another billion dollars to build a power line which will be developed largely outside the province, creating jobs outside the province."

Outraged spokesmen for Greater Victoria senior citizens reacted bitterly today to a proposal by the Capital Regional Board to take away their $5 bus passes unless the human resources ministry picks up the tab.

"Most of the seniors I know are a hell of a lot better off than people of 30 or 40 who are raising families," Campbell said Wednesday.

"They all ride for nothing on the bloody ferry system and it is always for fun, and they drive good cars to do it."

Campbell said it is a popular political decision to give a concession and lay the cost on the backs of local government.

One pensioner spokesman, Pauline Barker, executive director of the Silver Threads Service said: "I'm so mad I could scream. The man should be slapped for what he said."

The CRD's transit planning committee recommended Wednesday that the passes be discontinued when they run out June 1 unless the human resources department agrees to cover the losses.

The committee was told the department issues the $5 six-month passes to people on supplementary income.

The CRD takes over public transit on April 1 and the district's transit planning committee was told Wednesday the cheap fares result in an estimated annual loss of $250,000.

The committee's decisions must be ratified by the full regional board next Wednesday but since the two bodies are almost identical in make-up, ratification is expected to be automatic.

But she said it would be premature to comment on the matter because there has been no final decision.

"However, senior citizens have traditionally been subsidized and we would still uphold that principle," she said.

"Let's wait until negotiations are through and then everybody can make a statement."

But the pensioners were bitter.

Barker said the maximum cash people on supplementary income can receive is $371.06 per month.

"Even a pretty sleazy room is going to cost you."

Barker said senior citizens are forced to use buses, even to get groceries, because the parcels are too heavy for them to carry any distance.

She said Campbell could hardly describe the bus passes as a vote-getting gimmick when they have been in existence so long.

Price-fix charge to movers

TORONTO (CP) — Five major Canadian moving companies have been charged under the federal Combines Investigation Act with a nation-wide criminal conspiracy dating back to 1963 to fix prices to lessen competition.

Court documents say the conspiracy existed in Metropolitan Toronto, Oakville, Whitby, Quebec City, Montreal, Saint John, N.B., Halifax, Charlottetown, St. John's, Nfld., and Yellowknife. The charges involve transport of office furniture as well as household goods.

Federal Crown Attorney Julius Isaac said RCMP served notice of the charges on those involved Wednesday and they are to appear in provincial court April 25.

Also charged are two professional associations, the Canadian Household Goods Carriers Tariff Bureau Association and the Canadian Warehousing Association.

Also named are 22 unindicted co-conspirators, mostly individual officers of the companies and associations, including the Canadian Association of Movers.

The indictment information says a conspiracy existed to fix tariffs in all 10 provinces and two territories between Sept. 1, 1963, and Jan. 1, 1980.

A source at the combines investigation branch said the companies named include all major concerns across Canada engaged in moving used household and office furniture.

A conviction under the section of the act under which the charges were laid carries a maximum penalty of five years in jail, fines up to $5 million, or both.

The Crown attorney would not elaborate on the circumstances of the charges before the accused have appeared in court.

Isaac also said customers of the five companies shouldn't rush to their lawyers looking for rebates on their moving bills.

He said individual customers should wait until the government has proven its case before thinking about private legal action against the companies.

Isaac said the federal law has a provision to ensure customers affected by such a conspiracy are reimbursed but "it's powers are pretty murky."

Raid nets $16,000 hash oil

A joint Greater Victoria police raid on a house in Saanich Wednesday night resulted in the seizure of a pound of what is believed to be hashish oil worth an estimated $16,000 on the street, and $1,000 worth of liquor.

Three men and three women were taken into custody after police, armed with search warrants, entered the house at 412 Burnside West.

Two men and one of the women were released after questioning but charges were laid against the others.

Charged with possession of a narcotic for purposes of trafficking are Robert Joseph Basil Saunders, 47, and Susan Margaret Lamont, 23, both of 412 Burnside West.

Insp. Robin Stewart, chief of Saanich detectives, said seven officers, including three each from Saanich and Victoria and one from RCMP subdivision headquarters, took part in the raid about 9:30 p.m.

Canada fumbles report

Times News Services

A progress report on the Rhodesian elections campaign has caused considerable embarrassment for the Canadian contingent of Commonwealth observers.

The report said coercion and violence were rife in Rhodesia, attributing it largely to security force auxiliaries and guerrillas who had not gone to the assembly points set up under the London peace agreement. (For other Rhodesia story see page 42).

The report was written as a progress report by the Canadians in Rhodesia for the foreign affairs department in Ottawa. A Canadian embassy spokesman in Addis Ababa said the report — distributed at last week's meeting of the Organization of African Unity foreign ministers — had been released by mistake.

A spokesman for the Commonwealth group in Salisbury later denied the group had made a report or reached conclusions on the way the ceasefire was being observed.

In Ottawa, an external affairs department spokesman said the document was not confidential and was an unclassified working paper outlining points the Canadians in the Commonwealth observer group wanted to raise with the British governor, Lord Soames.

Heiden grabs fourth gold

LAKE PLACID, N.Y. — Eric Heiden of the United States won an unprecedented fourth Winter Olympics individual gold medal today in the men's 1,500-metre speed skating event.

It is the first time in men's competition that one athlete has won four gold medals in a Winter Games.

Heiden, 21, hopes to make it five golds by winning the 10,000 metres on Saturday.

Minister wants Hydro reasons

Municipal Affairs Minister Bill Vander Zalm said today he intends to look into an April 1 seven per cent increase in electricity rates announced by B.C. Hydro.

He said since Hydro is dropping its transit services that have been losing around $60 million a year March 31, there is a considerable saving to Hydro.

"Should this not have some effect? It probably should and I intend to look at that aspect," the minister said.

Vander Zalm said he has not seen Hydro's arguments in favor of the increase, nor has he discussed it with Energy Minister Bob McClelland who sits on the B.C. Hydro board of directors.

The minister said he doesn't know how long it will take for the government to set up its proposed Public Utilities Commission which will have the power to review Hydro's rates.

Victoria NDP MLA Charles Barber has also criticized the rate increase.

Barber has sent a letter to a person who doesn't exist — the chairman-designate of the proposed PUC.

The letter, addressed care of Energy Minister Bob McClelland, points out that on March 31 Hydro will be divesting itself of its Vancouver and Victoria transit systems which lose about $60 million a year.

"If Hydro saves some $60 million a year, their claim of need for a seven-per-cent rate increase is, to say the least, suspect," Barber states.

He urges the unnamed PUC chairman to deny B.C. Hydro's rate increase and to insist on an analysis of the Hydro revenue picture as they shed responsibility for transit.

The rate increase also drew criticism from the executive of the Victoria Labor Council.

"The council is very concerned about these increases, especially when the Hydro authority does not have to go before any group to justify the increase," the executive said in a statement released today.

BCRIC even has investors in Newfoundland

VANCOUVER (CP) — Ownership of British Columbia Resources Investment Corp. (BCRIC) has spread across Canada since the shares were issued last year, says the company's annual report released Wednesday.

Most of the registered shareholders — 129,728 at Dec. 31 — reside in B.C., but Albertans and Ontario residents have also been buying the company's shares — and there are seven registered shareholders in Newfoundland.

The greatest number of shares per registered shareholder is in Ontario where 1,619 shareholders own in aggregate 5.8 million shares or an average 3,596 shares each.

By the end of 1979, about 3,600 Albertans had purchased 2.4 million shares for an average holding of 677 shares. The 129,728 registered shareholders in B.C. own 74.3 million shares or an average of 573 shares.

Only registered shareholders (those holding 100 or more shares — there were 136,143 at Dec. 31) will get the annual report and only registered shareholders are eligible to attend the company's annual meeting which is tentatively set for March 27 in Vancouver.

The annual report, the first since the company's free distribution of shares and capital raising last year, contains no surprises.

BCRIC president David Helliwell reiterated BCRIC's intentions to augment its 81-per-cent ownership of Canadian Cellulose and its other forestry interests by making "additional investments in the forest products industry to achieve a stronger position."

A BCRIC spokesman also announced Wednesday it will participate in gas and oil exploration in B.C.'s Nechako Basin between Williams Lake and Quesnel.

The exploration program in B.C. was revealed a day after Calgary-based Sulpetro Ltd. said it and the BCRIC will conduct a joint exploration program in Alberta for natural gas during 1980.

Under the B.C. exploration agreement, the BCRIC will earn a 50-per-cent share of a 17.5-per-cent interest held by Esso Resources Canada Ltd. under an existing agreement with Canadian Hunter Exploration Ltd.

Canadian Hunter has acquired 43 permits in the area.

A geophysical program will be conducted and the first well drilled this year, the corporation said in a news release.

Sulpetro President James Saunders said at least 26 wells will be completed in Alberta on behalf of BCRIC.

Sulpetro, as operator, would give up 50 per cent net interest in its own lands and BCRIC would pay the full costs. The initial investment commitment was estimated at $9 million.

Second pipeline studied by Hydro

By AL FORREST

B.C. Hydro has unveiled a new proposal to construct two natural gas pipelines to Vancouver Island.

But in addition, a Hydro spokesman revealed Wednesday in Victoria, the Crown agency is also considering building a second, smaller pipeline to send some of the natural gas back to Powell River on the Mainland, an area which can't be reached directly from Vancouver because of difficult terrain.

It would help to counter a proposal by Pacific Northern Gas, a subsidiary of Westcoast Transmission, which wants to supply Powell River and Vancouver Island through a single, long pipeline from Williams Lake through the coastal mountains.

They are PNG, Hydro, and Vancouver Island Gas Co., of Nanaimo, a subsidiary of Intercity Gas Utilities Ltd. of Winnipeg

The panel featured spokesmen for the three firms.

They were: Al McPherson, Hydro division manager for natural gas engineering, Norm Didur of Winnipeg, president of Intercity, and Robert O'Shaughnessy of Vancouver, vice-president and general manager of Pacific Northern.

The following points were made at the meeting:

— Two companies are bidding to construct the pipeline, PNG in a northern route and Hydro in the south.

— If the pipeline is constructed, residents could expect to pay between $700 and $800 to convert their oil furnaces to the cheaper fuel.

— The cost of natural gas would be set by the provincial government but would be at least 10 per cent below oil and might be as much as 50 per cent less.

The line would be 69 kilometres long. Once gas arrives on the Island it could be distributed in a Hydro pipeline to be constructed mainly in existing Hydro rights-of-way between Campbell River and Victoria.

A spur line to Alberni is also planned, meaning that natural gas would be available to 70 per cent of Island homes.

Hydro has been studying the proposed natural gas pipeline for more than a decade, he said, but only in the past two years with the escalating price of rival fuels, has the project become economically attractive.

— Natural gas would be the same price in Victoria and Vancouver. In effect, people on the Lower Mainland would help finance the cost of the pipeline.

— Ottawa might pay some or all of the $700 to $800 cost of converting oil furnaces to natural gas.

— And finally, Ottawa and the provincial government would have to approve the project and several hearings might be required. Nobody could state when a decision might be expected.

McPherson said Hydro is studying three route options, all in a narrow belt between Delta and just south of Nanaimo.

McPherson said a natural gas pipeline could not replace the new Dunsmuir power cable which is about to be laid across the strait but would reduce future electricity needs.

O'Shaughnessy said PNG is the logical firm to construct the pipeline because its parent firm, Westcoast Transmission, moves all natural gas found in B.C.

In addition, he said, PNG has had experience constructing a gas pipeline from Prince George to Kitimat and Prince Rupert.

The PNG proposal involves a new direct pipeline from Williams Lake through the coastal mountains to Powell River and across to the Island.

A Squamish lateral line could also supply mills at Port Mellon, Squamish and Woodfibre.

O'Shaughnessy said the pipeline should be built as soon as possible because B.C. has a great surplus of natural gas while it must import about 75 per cent of its crude oil from Alberta.

In addition, he said, the domestic price of natural gas is set in B.C. and not by Ottawa or OPEC.

Didur said his company, Vancouver Island Gas, was established in Nanaimo in 1955 in the expectation that natural gas would be brought to the Island.

The company was recently purchased by Intercity when it became likely that a decision on the line was near.

Didur's company wants the right to sell natural gas on the Island after it has been brought over in a pipeline contructed by Hydro or the PNG.

But Hydro and PNG also want the Island distribution rights.

The National Energy Board would have to approve the pipeline and the question of distribution rights would be made by the provincial government.

They don't call us cheeseheads anymore south of the border after our ambassador in Iran organized the escape of half a dozen American hostages, but the euphoria has worn off.

On a brief holiday in Seattle last week, nobody was particularly effusive to Canadians. One department store clerk praised "all the Canadians had done" and she was sorry to charge us the going exchange rate.

Even the Canadian-owned hotel where we stayed, the fading Olympic which is in the grand style of The Empress here, had a business-as-usual air about it.

Visitors from Canada are attracted by its television commercials advertising an "even Steven" policy on the exchange rate — in effect, a 16 per cent saving — but nobody said a word when we checked in about the general 55 per cent discount prevailing this month.

We found out from a half-page newspaper ad in the local morning dailies.

The Four Seasons chain bought it recently and plans to shut it down in October for renovations, reopening sometime later as a super-luxury hotel. One of the first casualties will certainly be "even Steven." Thanks a lot, fellow Canadians.

Seattle is more worried these days about the invasion of Canadian developers, the latest in a series of speculators who have driven downtown property prices up to record levels.

A Canadian development group called Carma of Calgary recently paid $165 a square foot for a block and a quarter on Second Avenue in the heart of downtown Seattle — a cool $14 million in all — more than three times the going rate for prime space as recently as 1977.

It plans to put up two office towers, one 30 storeys and the other 40, with a total floor space of 1.4 million square feet, says a Seattle paper.

(A comparison: all the retail shopping space in downtown Victoria, including the two big department stores, totals 1.9 million square feet.)

Daon Development, described by The Weekly as "the mammoth Canadian developer" run by Jack Poole of Vancouver, has plans for a 260,000-square foot, 19-storey block at 8th and Olive Way, called the Daon Building, of course.

* * *

While Seattle residents are apprehensive about the effects of the boom on downtown, the Canadians get marginally higher marks for quality.

"The new buildings will feature mediocre architecture, with rare exceptions. The Canadian giants coming into Seattle, however, have more urban sensitivity, (especially in a fondness for mixed office-and-retail projects) than their American counterparts," says The Weekly.

At least that's their reputation south of the border. Maybe we should send them some pictures of the uniformly ugly black towers which dot the downtowns of most big Canadian cities.

Let's hope they don't ruin the most livable city in the U.S. It's a great place to visit, despite those bad memories of what a dump it used to be and the mundane views most travellers see from the ugly freeway that slices south through town.

Vancouver has a beautiful physical setting and an unmatched ethnic flavor, but Seattle comes out ahead on several counts.

There's the incomparable Pike Street public market and the Kingdome with its strong professional sports teams. Hundreds of Canadians go down every summer to watch the Mariners play baseball. Some even have season tickets.

Seattle has a rejuvenated Pioneer Square area that puts Gastown in the shade and a downtown waterfront without fences to keep people out.

The city also has a strong environmental conscience and a fairly enlightened municipal government. Some parts of it still stink — like the incredible Aurora Avenue, the old main highway into Seattle — but Vancouver has its imitators in Surrey and on Kingsway.

All Seatle lacks is a decent transportation link with Vancouver Island. A tunnel to Tsawwassen? Dig it under the strait to Washington state instead. That would make more sense. The tolls on Canadians going down to shop at K-Mart on Sundays would pay for it in no time.

By LORRAINE LOCHERTY

Saanich will face a flock of angry residents if it creates a "Coney Island atmosphere" by constructing a marine park at Cordova Bay, a retired scientist said today.

Dr. Gordon Baines said most Cordova Bay residents feel a proposal to bulldoze a park after dumping tons of municipal fill along the shoreline will create a carnival atmosphere and is ecologically unsound.

"Dumping fill is a stupid thing to do, it will destroy the beach," said Baines, of 4961 Wesley.

Opponents include a medical doctor and a University of Victoria marine biologist who is an ecology expert, he said.

Storms along the unprotected stretch of waterfront make the project impractical.

"They'll have to have a massive structure to stand up to heavy gales," he said.

And there's no way Cordova Bay's road system can handle the added pressure — heavy truck traffic is already shaking houses, said Baines.

Thurber Consultants were hired by Saanich to do an $8,000 environmental impact study

Residents are annoyed about the unauthorized expenditure, because the project is not part of the local area plan put together last fall, he said.

The study is expected to be completed and handed over to Saanich council by the end of the month.

Cordova Bay Residents Association president Eric Robinson told the Times he doesn't know anybody who approves the project and most believe it would drastically change the neighborhood.

Robinson said residents believe increased traffic created by the park will bring all kinds of problems, including congested roads and landslides.

"They should call it a marine dump, not a marine park," said one woman who said the proposal is a thinly disguised attempt to get rid of municipal fill.

But Mayor Mel Couvelier said today residents are wrong if they think getting rid of fill is the municipality's only motive.

Council also wants to create a recreational asset that will last for years, he said.

Council hasn't approved the project — the study is to determine environmental side effects.

Saanich won't create a park if it proves ecologically unsound, it will just go on dumping fill into the saltchuck somewhere else, Couvelier stated.

The multi-use park would probably contain a boat marina similar to the one in Oak Bay, he said.

The entire operation will be self-sustaining because local truckers would pay a fee to dump fill in the marine park and the boat marina would collect revenues, Couvelier said.

The municipality has one of the longest stretches of coastline on the island and should be making more use of it, he said.

No switch on ferry decision — Fraser

Transportation Minister Alex Fraser said today there is absolutely no chance the government will reverse its decision to retire the elderly Princess Marguerite.

The Queen of Prince Rupert definitely will be used on the Victoria-Seattle run this summer, Fraser said.

Three unions representing employees of the B.C. Steamship Co. Ltd. have written to Fraser asking that the Maggie be put back into service.

Using the smaller, slower Rupert will mean 95,000 fewer passengers brought into Victoria this summer and could eventually spell the end of the Victoria-Seattle service, the unions say.

But Fraser is adamant.

"The government came up with a decision and I don't anticipate any change. As much as the government would like to come up with something better, I think it's impossible at this time."

He said engineering studies show it is unsafe to keep the Marguerite in service.

"The government isn't prepared to take the further risk that might be involved," he said.

(The Canadian Coast Guard, however, has consistently given the Marguerite a clean bill of health.)

Fraser said no decision has yet been made on a schedule for the Queen of Prince Rupert but he claimed the proposed two round trips per day will not be the big money-loser many critics claim.

"The Marguerite's fuel consumption was an absolute disgrace and what the Rupert saves on fuel will be used to offset the cost of double-crewing for the twice-a-day runs," the minister claimed.

Fraser said the government did the best it could with the vessels available but, admitted nobody is happy with the arrangement.

The people of Victoria are unhappy with the Queen of Prince Rupert and the people of the mid-coast are unhappy with the six-week gap in service between the beginning of April when the Rupert goes into drydock and mid-May when the refurbished Queen of Surrey resumes the Port Hardy-Prince Rupert run.

Fraser said he will ask the B.C. Ferry Corp. to consider leasing a small vessel to serve isolated Ocean Falls and Bella Bella during that six-week period.

Okay, thugs, lay off the cabbies

By DEREK SIDENIUS

Victoria Taxi Ltd. president Bud MacLean has a message for would-be robbers:

Don't rob us any more, because it won't be worth your while.

Starting this week none of MacLean's drivers will carry more than $20 in cash when driving the late-night shift.

The decision follows two recent incidents in which drivers for the company have been beaten and robbed.

The first was Feb. 8 when Claus Hellmodt, 58, was attacked in the 600-block Moss, beaten and robbed of about $100.

The second was last Friday when another driver who has not been identified was attacked by two passengers in Sooke who tried to steal his cab.

MacLean, president of the Greater Victoria Taxi Owners Association, said he's concerned about the vulnerability of taxi drivers.

He said limiting cash is one of the simplest forms of deterrence and has worked effectively in other areas.

"It's only common sense. If you reduce the amount of money, you reduce the amount of risk."

Bull said drivers are constantly being encouraged not to carry much money.

But Tom Fristoe, a driver with Esquimalt Taxi, said that while he could understand the need to reduce risks, the $20 limit is impractical.

MacLean doesn't feel the new system will pose problems for taxi patrons, noting many service stations demand exact change after normal business hours and there is a trend for late-night stores to limit the amount of cash they keep on hand.

MacLean believes that because of the growing need to take precautions, everyone in the taxi industry will have to eventually follow suit.

He said offences against taxi drivers have risen sharply in recent months in Victoria, although his view isn't shared by everyone in the industry.

Bruce Woodward, manager of Bluebird Cabs, the city's largest taxi company, said there have been only two or three incidents involving his drivers in the past year and that is about average.

However, MacLean said he knows of eight incidents so far this year where drivers have been robbed, beaten up or had their vehicles vandalized.

Only this week, he said, a man jumped on the hood of one of his cabs parked outside the Surfside Club on Wharf Street and kicked in the windshield.

While none of the taxi operators talk about it, it is not unusual for a cabbie to put a tire iron under his seat . . . just in case he has to defend himself.

Most companies also have elaborate code systems for cabbies to alert dispatchers of possible danger.

MacLean said cab companies in the U.S. have been forced to take even greater precautions than those contemplated here.

Some companies have installed safes in the cars.

But the ultimate security, said MacLean is computerized dispatching.

A company with such a system can monitor taxi movements on a video screen and its dispatcher knows precisely where the cab is at all times.

As one operator said, "It's like Big Brother watching you."

But then again 1984 isn't that far off.

Toronto

Trading in shares of Gulf Canada was delayed at the opening and later halted pending an announcement.

Mobil Oil Canada, Gulf's partner in the Hibernia 0-35 well being drilled off the Newfoundland coast, announced that zones of interest noted in the well have potential hydrocarbon-bearing sands in six separate intervals for a total thickness between 75 and 85 metres.

Mobil said potential hydrocarbon-bearing sands in the zone of interest noted in the Ben Nevis 1-45 well have a total thickness of about 30 metres.

Gulf Canada Products Co., a division of Gulf Canada Ltd., announced that it will expand its production at its Edmonton refinery by 40,000 barrels a day.

Gulf said the expansion will be designed primarily to process synthetic crude oil.

Among industrials, Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas gained 6½ to $144, Texaco Canada 5¼ to $90¼, Aquitaine of Canada 4¾ to $59½, Falconbridge Nickel A 4 to $135 and Crestbrook Forest 3 to $30.

Vancouver

VANCOUVER (CP) — Prices were up in heavy trading today on the Vancouver Stock Exchange. Volume at 11:00 a.m. PST was 6,370,538 shares.

B.C. Resources Investment Corp. led trading in the industrials, remaining unchanged at $7.95 on 72,545 shares and Proflex Ltd. gained .02 to .33 on 11,090. Taro Industries remained steady at $4.40 on 9,000 and Canadian Javelin Ltd. rose .09 to $1.55 on 2,000. Saratoga Processing gained .01 to $9 and Computrex Centres remained steady at .30.

On the resource and development board, Amflo Petroleum advanced .85 to $5.65 on 204,442 shares and Great Northern Pete rose .03 to $1.03 on 149,100. Reako Explorations gained .01 to $1.25 on 87,100 and North South Resources Warrants gained .06 to .29 on 84,000. Delta Petroleum advanced .50 to $6.10 and North South Resources was up .50 to $5.30.

New York

American Telephone and Telegraph was one of the notable losers today as the stock market abruptly turned downward again.

AT and T shares led the active list, down 1½ to $48⅜. On Wednesday the company, the nation's most widely held stock with nearly three million shareholders, decided not to raise its dividend, declaring only the regular $1.25-a-share quarterly payout.

The yield on the stock at its current level of payouts is better than 10 per cent. But lately yields on competing bonds have climbed well above that level.

Among Canadian issues on the NYSE, McIntyre Mines rose 4 to $79, Canadian Packers ⅞ to $41⅞ and Seagram Co. ⅝ to $48⅛.

London

Golds moved higher, banks declined and industrials were mixed.

Canadian stocks were mixed.
